Artist's Vision of Metropolitan Vista to Be Created When Memorial Plaza Is Completed

HUGH FERRISS has depicted here the ultimate appearance of Memorial Plaza, as seen from the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Market streets. The main axis will extend from the cascade in the foreground to the Civil Courthouse (with the pyramidal roof), now going up, in the background, with a fountain midway between. Along the right, or Market street side, are shown the Municipal Auditorium, to be started soon, Municipal Courts Building, City Hall and two suggested private structures. To the left of the courthouse towers the Telephone Building. Just beyond the cascade is the colonnaded Soldiers' Memorial, to be built later, while behind it are the Missouri Pacific Building, shown at its eventual height, and the proposed new Federal Building.

CRONY, 80, OF MAN FOUND SLAIN IN CISTERN SOUGHT

Charles Heinemann, in Whose Yard Frank Hammerle's Body Was Discovered, Gone Since Friday.

HAD TALKED OF GOING TO GERMANY

Recently Bought a Pistol—Murdered Man Said to Have Had Accumulated $30,000.

A Damon and Pythias friendship was severed when Frank Hammerle, 55-year-old bachelor, who had accumulated $30,000 or more through hard work and frugality, was murdered at the home of Charles Heinemann, 80-year-old widower, in the "Whisky Chute" section of East St. Louis.

Heinemann is missing. Investigators at first assumed he also had been murdered, but no trace of him has been found. It is learned he had made remarks which indicated he had designs on Hammerle's wealth and life.

The body of Hammerle, with a bullet hole in the right temple, his head covered with a sack and his feet tied with rope, was found Saturday afternoon in an abandoned cistern behind Heinemann's old frame house at 735 Locust street, as was told yesterday.

Hammerle and Heinemann had much in common. They were natives of Germany, and when together spoke in their native tongue. Both were thrifty to the point of being miserly, and eccentric to the point of avoiding new contacts and acquaintances.

Hammerle Saved Money.

A robust man, and a skillful house painter and interior decorator, Hammerle had worked for one employer for 20 years, seldom taking a day. For nine years he had roomed alone at 324 St. Louis avenue. His only amusements seemed to be painting water colors which decorated his room, in visiting his crony, Heinemann, and in saving money.

His employer, George W. Levy, estimates Hammerle had accumulated $30,000 or $40,000. Originally he was content to draw 2 per cent interest on his savings account, but as his hoard increased, he invested in 6 per cent bonds.

He saved his wages until he had as much as $1000 in his pockets or in his room before investing it. His bank book shows he did not make regular payday deposits, but rather, large deposits at long intervals. He often went without lunch to add a mite to his savings.

His friend, Heinemann, was equally thrifty but his earnings were less. He collected junk by pushing a cart through streets and alleys and public dumping grounds. He rented the frame house, half a century old, in which he had lived since coming to this country in 1904. The neighborhood was middle class at one time but deteriorated and became known as "Whisky Chute" from the number of saloons it possessed. It lies outside the Stockyards gate. Negroes were Heinemann's neighbors in recent years.

Bought a Pistol Recently.

Early this year Heinemann's wife, who shared his friendship for Hammerle, became seriously ill and was taken to a hospital. Heinemann sought so vigorously to hire a woman as his housekeeper that the woman had him arrested. While he was in jail, his wife died. The authorities in pity let Heinemann go.

He collected $600 insurance on his wife's life, but mourned her loss, weeping when his friend Hammerle called. He was a lonely old man. Hammerle stayed with him at intervals.

"I won't have to worry any more; Hammerle's got enough money, and is coming to live with me," he told a friend, John Patterson.

He bought a nickel-plated pistol, and showed it to Patterson, remarking: "I'll buy you one, too; you might need it."

Patterson, a locomotive fireman, was injured by an automobile March 15, and did not see Heinemann thereafter.

But Heinemann's Negro neighbor, Van Jetdine, passed the frame shack Thursday evening and heard men conversing in German inside. Later he heard the men quarreling. Then he heard a shot fired.

Missing Since Friday.

Friday morning Heinemann appeared in his back yard. He has not been seen since. The next day his landlord called and found Hammerle's body in the cistern.

Unfinished portions of two meals were spread on the kitchen table. What seemed to be blood stains

4,176,200-SHARE DAY SETS 'CHANGE RECORD

General Motors Goes Up $9 to New High of $199 —Other Rises.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Trading on the New York Stock Exchange today broke all records for volume with a total turnover of 4,176,200 shares. General Motors, soaring $9 a share to a new peak price at $199, was again the outstanding individual feature although gains of $5 to nearly $13 a share were distributed among a score of specialties. The previous record of 4,007,300 shares was established on March 22.

General Motors was reported "200 bid" just before the market closed, but no sales were arranged at that figure, the final quotation being $198.95.

Sears-Roebuck jumped $12.37½ a share to a new high record at $110. Montgomery Ward, Radio, Chrysler and Du Pont were among the many other issues to show net gains of $5 a share or more.

Rails played a more prominent part in today's market than they have since the current advance started there weeks ago. Pennsylvania and New York Central reached the best prices in their history and Wabash, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and several others showed net gains of $2 a share or more.

So great was the last-minute rush of orders that the ticker, which had been keeping fairly close to the market, was 20 minutes late in recording the final quotation.

German Flyers Reach Ireland; Plan Non-Stop Flight to U. S.

Junkers Monoplane Flies From Berlin to Point of Takeoff on Trans-Atlantic Attempt.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 26.—The German Junkers trans-Atlantic plane Bremen, on the first lap of a flight from east to west across the Atlantic, arrived at Baldonnel airdrome late today from Remschhafen Plyd, at Berlin.

The plane left Berlin at 8:15 a. m., carrying Baron von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Mechanic Spindler. The departure was marked by secrecy.

The Bremen was used in an attempted westward flight last summer, but on reaching the west coast of Ireland was forced to turn back by gales after a 22-hour flight.

Baron von Huenefeld, who is connected with the North German Lloyd Steamship Co., Capt. Hermann Koehl and Capt. Friedrich Loose were aboard the plane at that time.

The plane carries no radio and no life-saving apparatus. Instead, a revolver, carefully wrapped in oil cloth to keep it ready for action at all times, was tucked away. The Baron was said to have chosen this method of terminating a failure.

WILD SWANS SWEPT TO DEATH OVER NIAGARA FALLS BY ICE

1000 Birds Had Landed Just Before Frozen Barrier on Canadian Side Broke Up.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 26.—Large numbers of wild swans plunged to their death last night when a flock of about 1000 was carried over Horseshoe Falls when the ice bridge went out.

The birds had landed on the ice in the upper river just before it broke up. Many took wing as the ice went over, some landing on floes below the falls. Others, however, were carried over the falls, to the rocks below.

No estimate was made of the number of dead birds but several groups of 18 to 20 could be seen in the eddies of the lower river.

Hayes, said, after he had visited her at the Cooley Dickinson Hospital at 1 o'clock this afternoon. He said her condition had continued to become worse since he had seen her earlier in the day and expressed doubt whether she would live until her daughter arrived from Washington tonight.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Mrs. Coolidge left Washington this afternoon for Northampton, Mass., where her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, has suffered a serious relapse in her illness.

350 WORKMEN DRIVEN OUT BY $30,000 FIRE

Plant of G. D. Barnard Stationery Co., 3863 Laclede Avenue Damaged.

Warned of their danger by a plant fire alarm, 350 employes of the George D. Barnard Stationery Co. fled from the two-story building at 3863 Laclede avenue at the close of the lunch hour today, when fire started in a paper stock room on the west side of the building.

A brisk wind whipped the flames to such proportions that a general alarm was sounded, but the fire was under control within an hour. Fire Chief Alt estimated the damage at $15,000 to building and $15,000 to contents. G. B. Gannett, vice president, said the building and its contents were valued at about $1,000,000, but declined to make an estimate of the loss which is insured.

Charles Brosius, the plant engineer, discovered the fire at 12:50 o'clock and immediately set off the fire alarm, which warned employes. Flames spread rapidly through the inflammable stock on the second floor.

The Barnard building is 345 feet long on the Laclede avenue side and 242 feet deep toward the alley. Because the building is low, firemen were able to pour in a heavy volume of water from the streets. Salvage Corps men entered the building on the first floor and succeeded in covering most of the valuable printing presses with tarpaulins.

Hundreds of spectators gathered along the streets near the plant to watch the fire.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. Gannett thought it was probably caused by an electrical short circuit. Electricians had been working near the room where the fire started.

NEW TYPE OF MOTORBUS IN SERVICE ON DELMAR

Both Decks and Steps Are Enclosed, and Upper Floor Has Cane Seats.

A new type, six-cylinder, double-deck motorbus has been put in service by the Peoples Motorbus Co. on Delmar boulevard. The bus, a local development, has both upper and lower decks, including the steps, enclosed, and seats 73 passengers. Lower deck seats are upholstered in leather and upper deck seats in cane.

The new bus has four wheels equipped with semi-pneumatic tires, a type different from those now in use as they are not solid rubber, but contain air pockets to give a cushioning effect. Full pneumatic tires are held to be impractical for passenger busses, company officers assert, because they are unreliable and add dangerous height to the vehicles.

Greater speed and riding comfort is claimed for the new bus. The company contemplates building 15 or 17 busses here shortly.

Borah Reports Fund at $6000.

PLAZA COMMISSION REPORT PICTURES NEW CIVIC CENTER

First Official Design Submitted Showing Entire Plan Including War Memorial, a Fountain and a Cascade.

A vision of the civic center that St. Louis is building in connection with the projected Memorial Plaza downtown is contained in pictures and a report made public today by the Plaza Commission, Inc., the group of architects and engineers handling the work.

The bond issue of 1923 provided $15,000,000 for the civic center, extending from the present City Hall group to Central Library, including the $4,000,000 Civil Courthouse, the $5,000,000 Municipal Auditorium and $6,000,000 for acquiring land in 10 city blocks and erecting a war memorial. For the embellishment of this area a considerable additional sum is needed, and there is the opportunity for inclusion of two more fine public buildings at a cost of several million dollars.

Designs Prepared.

Pictures issued by the commission and published in this edition of the Post-Dispatch are:

Three sketches of the plaza and its contemplated structures, by Hugh Ferriss, noted architectural artist, a native St. Louisan. These show important structures adjoining the plaza and the designer's conception of others which private capital may erect.

The first portrayal of the official design for the war memorial to be built between Municipal Courts Building and Central Library.

The first official plan of the entire plaza, showing location of a cascade, fountain and pools, and the sites suggested for a new Federal Building and a new municipal structure, perhaps a Hall of Records.

Publication had been made previously of the designs of the new courthouse, which will be opened in 1929, and the Municipal Auditorium, on which it is hoped to start work this summer.

Description of War Memorial.

The War Memorial will occupy the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and will be massive and of simple outline, containing rooms available for meetings of patriotic or civic societies and space suitable for a museum—possibly for the permanent display of the trophies of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The Plaza Commission's report to Mayor Miller relates that the memorial thus will occupy a commanding position on both the north-south and east-west axes of the plaza. It will somewhat resemble Jefferson Memorial, in Forest Park, especially in that it will have a large opening in the center, through which a person standing on the steps of Municipal Courts Building can see the steps of Central Library, three blocks north. It will be 200 feet long on the Chestnut and Pine sides and 75 feet wide on the ends, 70 feet high and will contain only two floors. It will be built of white stone, like the auditorium. The two courthouses and the library. The exterior will consist almost entirely of a colonnade of square, fluted columns. In this respect it will be somewhat suggestive of the Lincoln Memorial at Washington. There will be no projecting cornices; a band of medallions and other suitable ornamentation in bronze will go all around the upper part.

TWO additional drawings by Hugh Ferriss, showing what the Municipal Plaza will be like when completed, as well as the accepted design for the Soldiers' Memorial, one of the features of the Plaza, are printed on the Picture Page of this edition of the Post-Dispatch.

The cost of this building is estimated at $1,500,000. Of the $6,000,000 provided in the bond issue for acquiring the plaza site and erecting this structure, it had been proposed to spend $1,000,000 on the Memorial. However, until condemnation commissioners now engaged in the slow process of acquiring the land make their report, it will not be known whether there will be anything left in this bond item for construction purposes. The general design of the building was made at this time in order to develop the plaza ensemble, but detailed plans remain to be prepared.

It may be necessary to ask the people to vote additional funds for the War Memorial and the plaza embellishment in the new bond issue for several improvements contemplated by the municipal administration.

Members of the commission are: Mauran, Russell & Crowell, La Beaume & Klein, William B. Ittner, Klipstein & Rathmann, T. P. Barnett Co., Preston J. Bradshaw, George D. Barnett, Helfensteller, Hirsch & Watson, architects; Frederick C. Taxis, Brussel & Viterbo, engineers; President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service and Engineer Bartholomew of the City Plan Commission, ex-officio.

What the Plaza Includes.

Officially, the plaza comprises, from south to north, the following: Site for the auditorium running 575 feet south from Market street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets; the four blocks between Market and Chestnut streets and between Eleventh and Fifteenth streets; the three blocks between Chestnut and Pine streets and between Twelfth boulevard and Fifteenth street, and the block bounded by Pine, Olive, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. The greater part of this area, now largely occupied by old buildings, has been acquired by the city by direct purchase, but the condemnation process must be completed to determine the final cost.

The Plaza Commission proposes that two strips, each a block wide, with their axes crossing in the center of the block bounded by Market, Chestnut, Thirteenth and Fourteenth, be kept free of buildings. At this point it proposes a tall water jet, or fountain. In the block to the west it plans a cascade along Fifteenth street, as the western frame of the picture, from which water will tumble down the hill directly opposite the auditorium facade, over artificial rifflex and into a pool extending to Fourteenth street. Another pool will occupy the block east of the fountain. The Civil Courthouse is going up in the next block east, and there will be clear spaces both

UNEMPLOYMENT 'NOT GRAVE BUT SERIOUS'—DAVIS; 1,874,000 OUT

Secretary of Labor Reports to Senate That Shrinkage in Jobs Since 1925 Is 7.43 Per Cent.

PROMISE PROMPT RELIEF FOR THE IDLE

Distress Is Less Extensive Than Estimates Generally Circulated, He Says in Survey of Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Secretary of Labor Davis reported today to the Senate that unemployment is "serious," although "not so extensive or grave as the estimates which have been generally circulated."

Responding to the resolution of Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, asking for a survey of labor, Davis said that 1,874,050 persons were out of work in the United States, but this number constituted "a very small percentage of those at work."

The "shrinkage" in employment among wage earners, including manufacturing, transportation, mining, agriculture, trade, clerical and domestic groups, was declared to be 7.43 per cent on the basis of those employed in 1925 as compared with January of this year.

It was estimated on the basis of census figures and otherwise that there were 26,222,742 persons [illegible] salaries in 1925. The "calculated number" of employes in January of this year was placed at 22,348,692.

Promises "Prompt Relief."

"Prompt relief" for those temporarily out of work was promised by the Secretary through the Federal public buildings program which is now being begun. He saw further aid in state and municipal building projects.

Davis, who personally took the copy of the report compiled by the department to Vice President Dawes, named as the factors contributing to the unemployment the floods in the Mississippi Valley and in New England, the Florida tornado, the temporary closing of industrial plants and a "disturbance" in the bituminous coal fields which has lasted several months.

The Secretary submitted data compiled by Commissioner Stewart of the Bureau of Labor statistics which gave actual figures on employment for only manufacturing and railroads for 1928 and estimated employment for January, 1928.

Shrinkage Since 1925.

For 1925 manufacturing employment was 8,383,781 against 7,739,907 for January this year, a shrinkage of 643,874. The figures of railroads were 1,752,589 in 1925; 1,642,356 this year and a shrinkage of 109,232. The total employed was 10,136,370 in 1925 against 9,382,263 in January, and the shrinkage was given as 753,107.

No figures were available for the group of agriculture, mining, clerical workers, domestic service and trade, but it was assumed, the report said, that they were "affected in like degree."

The year 1925 was selected as the basis for computations, it was explained, because it was a year in which "there was no noticeable unemployment question" and in the opinion of the Bureau represented a fair average between the "boom year" of 1929 and the subsequent periods of depression.

Cites Number of Immigrants.

Among contributing factors to the unemployment situation, Davis also mentioned that immigration to this country last year totaled 282,028, and he said, a "considerable number of these were laborers." In this connection he said this country itself produces 21,000,000 boys and girls of wage-earning age each year.

The downward trend in employment, Davis said, existed from April, 1927, up to and including January of this year, but he said the February report just published showed an upward movement.

Replying to the resolution as to what steps he had taken to prepare for the situation, the Secretary declared he had sounded warning in time for the "proper timing" of the opening of the public buildings program.

To meet the demand of the Senate resolution for making public accurate and "all-inclusive" statistics on employment, the Secretary called for an additional appropriation of $120,000.

MISSOURI G. O. P. LIKELY TO VOTE INDORSEMENT OF LOWDEN TODAY

Supporters of Illinoisan at State Convention Modify Demand for Iron-Clad Instructions.

DENUNCIATION OF OIL SCANDAL URGED

Gov. Baker, Miller, Koeln and Former Senator Williams Virtually Assured Places on "Big 7."

By BOYD F. CARROLL,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 26.—The Republican State Convention convened at noon today with an announcement by James A. Finch, Missouri manager of former Gov. Lowden's campaign for the presidency, that only an indorsement would be sought for the candidacy of the Illinoisan, instead of the iron-clad delegate instructions, which Lowden managers had stated they would demand.

Last night an ineffective effort was made in a caucus of Lowden supporters to determine the exact Lowden strength among the 1031 county delegates. It appeared more certain the positive instructions could not be put through, when St. Louis leaders today said majorities of their delegations would favor an indorsement, but not instructions.

Instructions by the convention would bind the "Big Seven" delegation-at-large to the national convention in Kansas City in June to Lowden. An indorsement is not so definite, and is more or less advisory rather than a positive order to the delegates.

Many Oppose Instructions.

Lowden leaders declare a majority of the delegates are favorable to Lowden, but many of the delegates are opposed to definite instructions. The convention action is binding only on the delegates-at-large, and not on the 32 district delegates, 23 of whom are claimed for Lowden.

Former Mayor Henry Kiel of St. Louis, chairman of the Republican State Committee, called the convention into session. Mayor Louis V. Stigal of St. Joseph, a Democrat, made an address of welcome.

Political viewpoints in Missouri were changing, Stigal said, and voters were more inclined to analyze political declarations. "The feeling is growing that men and measures should be offered for the welfare of the State and not alone the advancement of a party," Stigal said.

Finch was introduced as temporary chairman, and made the keynote address.

The convention elected R. R. Brewster of Kansas City, Republican senatorial nominee in 1922, as permanent chairman.

Mrs. C. T. Blesse, secretary of the Republican City Committee of St. Louis, was chosen convention secretary, and Louis Becker, a St. Louis City Committeeman, was elected sergeant at arms.

Would Denounce Oil Scandal.

An effort was made this afternoon to include a denunciation of the Teapot Dome oil scandal in the platform being drafted by the Resolutions Committee. Leaders such as former Gov. Hyde and former United States Senator George H. Williams, the latter a member of the committee, have said a definite statement should be included.

Opinion among the Republicans is divided and this may result in a cautious pronouncement against corruption in general, without specific instances.

Wallace Bell, a member of the Kirkwood City Council, and a delegate from St. Louis County, submitted a proposed plank calling for repudiation of Republican officials involved in disclosures in the Senate investigation, but not naming them.

Bell's plank declared the Republican party would be held responsible if it condoned the wrongful acts of "so-called leaders, who, in secret and without the knowledge of the rank and file of the party, betrayed the party's honor."

The proposed plank provides that "the participation of so-called leaders of the Republican party in corrupt transactions be repudiated and condemned."

Committee to Draft Platform.

Members of the Resolutions Committee to draft the platform elected by the 16 congressional districts are: W. A. Missetter, La Grange; Roy Monier, Carrollton; E. C. Ernst, Albany; B. G. Voorhees, St. Joseph; Edgar C. Ellis, Kansas City; Charles Muenka, Jefferson City; F. B. Meyer, Bay; George H. Williams, St. Louis County; A. F. Hemrichs and William Sacks, St. Louis; Charles E. Kiefner, Perryville; L. N. Henson, Poplar Bluff; E. N. Meador, Cassville, and W. C. Hawkins of Buffalo.

For Senatorial Re-Districting.

A recommendation for re-districting the 34 State Senatorial districts in Missouri, to wipe out the Democratic "Gerrymander" and substitute a Republican one, was submitte dto the Republican State Committee this afternoon by a subcommittee.

This plan would abolish Democratic control of the State Senate, if adopted, and give the Republicans control of the upper house of the Legislature.

The Democrats now have 22 of the 34 seats in the Senate. The plan proposed by the sub-committee of the State Committee, would give the Republicans 20 of the 34 seats, based on average results in off-year elections. The compilatio nby the committee was based on 1918 and 1922 election results.

Eight Senators for St. Louis.

The subcommittee plan would give St. Louis eight senatorial districts, instead of six as at present, and give Jackson County, including Kansas City, four districts instead of two. This would give the two principal cities 12 senatorships instead of eight. The remaining 22 senatorships would be apportioned to the remainder of the State.

It is planned to submit the proposal at the next election through circulation of initiative petitions, if the plan is approved by the full State Committee.

The subcommittee, made up of State committeemen, included O. E. Gorman of Springfield, chairman; D. W. Sherman, Lexington; Mrs. Lieutellus Cunningham, Bolivar; Charles Mitchell, Clinton, and Mrs. Sylvester Wells of Kansas City.

The Republican State Committee held a brief meeting before the convention opened.

The baby elephant brought to the convention by St. Louis Republicans led a short parade this morning and was "parked" in the lobby of the hotel, which is convention headquarters. The elephant appeared bored while Hoover and Lowden supporters took turns pinning signs on him. One delegate produced an oil can, but it did not remain on the elephant. The elephant was loaned to the Republicans by August A. Busch of St. Louis.

10 Delegates for Lowden.

Ten of the district delegates were instructed for Lowden and Lowden forces claim 13 of the remaining 22 delegates who were uninstructed.

Dr. E. B. Clements, national committeeman, has advocated an uninstructed delegation, although not openly taking a part in the fight. Former Governor Hyde, who is on the "big seven" slate, also has urged against instructions. The Hoover forces, in the minority in the convention, have made an active fight against a definite order for delegates.

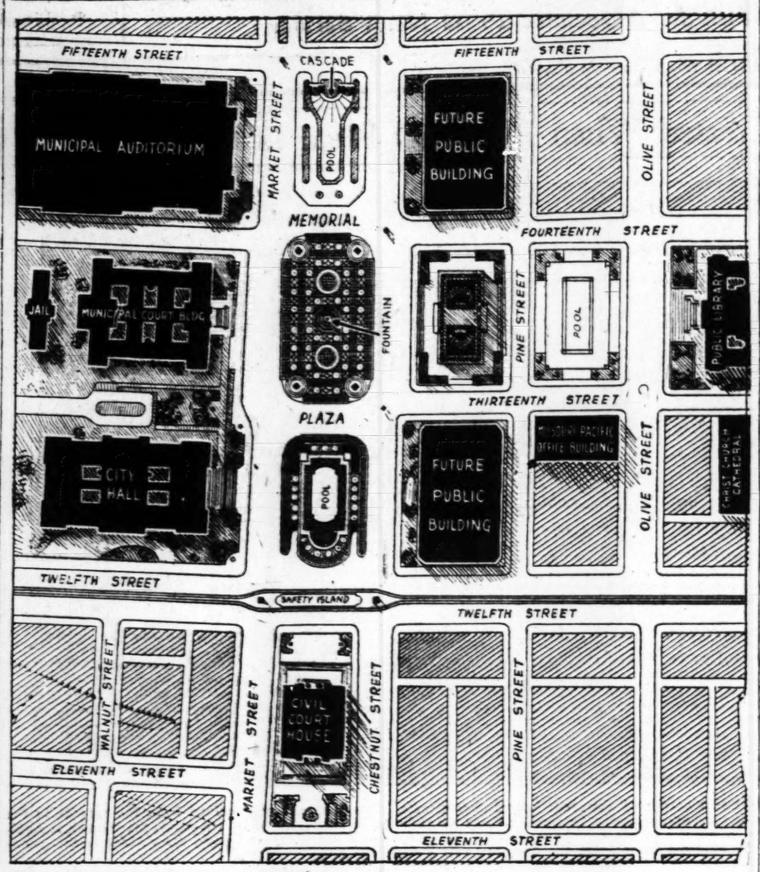

An agreement had been reached early today by Lowden supporters on virtually all of the delegates-at-large. Election of Mayor Victor J. Miller and Collector Edmond Koeln, both of St. Louis, Hyde, and Gov. Baker, was said to be assured.

The 44 delegates of St. Louis County have indorsed former United States Senator Williams for a place on the delegation-at-large.

Mrs. G. L. Zwick of St. Joseph, who had been uncertain as to Lowden, agreed to abide by Lowden instructions, if given, and was reinstated on the slate. A full agreement had not been reached as to Mrs. Lieutellus Cunningham of Bolivar, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee.

A virtual agreement was reached to place one Negro on the delegation, either Walthall Moore of St. Louis, member of the Legislature, or a candidate to be recommended by Negro delegates to the convention.

Plan of Plaza, Showing Sites of Structures

THIS shows for the first time how Memorial Plaza will be laid out. Included in its site are the locations of the Municipal Auditorium and of two suggested future public buildings. The main axis will run in the strip bounded by Market and Chestnut streets, from a cascade at Fifteenth street to the new Civil Courthouse at Twelfth boulevard. A cross axis will extend from Municipal Courts Building, through the projected Soldiers' Memorial, to Central Library. The greater part of the site is already owned by the city. Shaded sections show privately owned property.

REPORT ON PLAZA GIVES A PICTURE OF CIVIC CENTER

in front and back of it. Because of the width of Twelfth boulevard, a safety island for trolley passengers is proposed in front of the courthouse.

The north-south axis consists of the fountain block, the memorial building block, and a block between that structure and the library, which is to be occupied by another pool.

The remaining two blocks of the plaza between Chestnut and Pine, flanking the War Memorial, will be parked until desired for the suggested public buildings. The commission advocates erection of the projected new Federal Building on the one extending from Twelfth to Thirteenth, and of some municipal structure on the one running from Fourteenth to Fifteenth. It has been hld by the City Law Department that this would be a legal use of the land.

Surroundings of the Plaza.

Closely adjoining the civic center of the plaza are Lucas Gardens, back of the library; Christ Church Cathedral and the Bishop Tuttle Memorial, a group on Clark avenue comprising the new Police Headquarters, Coroner's Court and Municipal Service Building; the new Missouri Pacific Building, the lofty Telephone Building and a number of other imposing structures erected in recent years. The widening of Olive street, the projected widening of Market street and the existing width of Twelfth boulevard figure in the picture. Three blocks to the west of this open space will be the projected Union Station Plaza.

The length of Memorial Plaza between the west front of the Civil Courthouse and the cascade at Fifteenth street will be 1900 feet, and the width between the entrance of Municipal Courts Building and the south side of the War Memorial, 500 feet. A problem in the general scheme was to introduce elements of lively interest and color into this great area, the commission reports, so it relies on moving water to supply animation and quiet pools to "reflect the architecture of stately buildings, statuary, flagstaffs and all the essential accessories of a monumental design."

The commission suggests that monuments and statuary along the east-west axis should record historic events, while along the north-south axis the memory of St. Louis' public men should be perpetuated. Where, the commission inquires, are adequate memorials to Lewis and Clark, Laclede, a host of other pioneers, the city's part in the Indian, Mexican, Civil and Spanish wars, noted civilians like Hitchcock, Francis and Davis, and soldiers like Sherman and Pershing? The pictures of Ferriss demonstrate how statuary in honor of these men and events could be worked into the plaza.

To Put Street Cars Underground.

Existing streets in the plaza area will not be closed, but the commission proposes that no parking be permitted on these thoroughfares, not only to preserve the picture but to avoid traffic congestion, and that Market street cars be run underground between Twelfth and Fifteenth, and Bellefontaine cars be rerouted off of Fourteenth. The scheme for Market street would be to build part of the possible future subway, with entrances leading to City Hall, the auditorium and the two courthouses.

Since the grade is to be raised several feet to overcome the present depression along Thirteenth street, the commission advocates creation by the city of an underground garage in the three blocks bounded by Market, Chestnut, Twelfth and Fifteenth. The cost of excavation would be comparatively small, it is explained, and the investment would probably be profitable.

In its report to the Mayor, the commission points out that the 1923 bond issue was intended to be adequate to pay for the entire work, but proved insufficient. Pointing out that: "The vision of our city's greatness and future possibilities is growing brighter day by day," the commission relates that some additional money is needed to make the Civil Courthouse and auditorium complete, while more may be required for the War Memorial, and funds certainly will be necessary for clearing the plaza site, changing its grade, paving streets, lighting, sculpture, the decorative water features, public comfort stations and other accessories. A straightforward explanation will be the most convincing argument to induce the people to provide more money, the commission thinks, especially since the conduct of all bond projects has been "without taint of either extravagance or private interest."

Center for Reviewing Parades.

A feature of the central block to contain the fountain is that its pavement will be available for formation or review of parades and pageants, with space for spectators on steps of the adjacent memorial and Municipal Courts Building.

The commission's report concludes: "Without surface street cars to mar its serenity or parked motors to deaden its vitality, with the movement of man and motor, the play of cascade and fountain jet and the color of ever-moving flags against the sky and reflected in the pools, there will be produced that spirit of life which will make this St. Louis Memorial Plaza one of the most celebrated creations of modern times, a Mecca for the stranger within our gates and a source of wholesome and proper pride to every one who loves St. Louis and claims it as his home."

PRAISES G. O. P. RECORD AT STATE CONVENTION

Temporary Chairman Finch, at St. Joseph, Says Party Does Not Condone Dishonesty in Office.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 26.—Declaring that the Republican party "does not condone nor excuse dishonesty on the part of public servants nor fraudulent practice in elections," James A. Finch of New Madrid, Mo., manager of former Gov. Lowden's campaign for the presidential nomination, delivered the keynote address today before the Republican State convention.

Finch, as temporary chairman, delivered a satirical attack upon Senator James A. Reed's recent utterances that honesty in government and purity of elections will be the paramount issues in the coming campaign. Finch asserted that Reed was the beneficiary, along with other Democratic candidates, of alleged election frauds in Kansas City.

"When Missouri had the Democratic yoke about her neck; when legislation was auctioned off on the Capitol steps to the highest bidder; when the bribe giver and the bribe taker stalked the streets of our State capital with no shame and little secrecy; when the Democratic party in Missouri was synonymous with dishonesty, graft and bribery; when a Democratic Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri was required to leave the State to escape prosecution as a bribe taker—where was our senior Senator? Did he take the stump in Missouri in the election following and demand the defeat of the Democratic ticket, because of the corruption in his own party? Was he then a champion of clean government?

Cites Opposition to Folk.

"When Joseph W. Folk was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1904 on a platform of honesty in government in Missouri, where did our senior Senator stand in that fight? Did he support Mr. Folk in his advocacy of clean government, or is it not a fact that he entered the primary as an opposing candidate, as an ally of the corrupt machine that was threatened with extermination if Mr. Folk succeeded?

"When the infamous Nesbit law was effective in Missouri and under Democratic police protection, thousands upon thousands of fraudulent names were placed on the registration books of the large cities by the most venal, corrupt political machine in history; when honest men were driven from the polls by the combined effort of police and thugs, and repeaters went from polling place to polling place to stuff the ballot boxes—where was the senior Senator then? Was he prosecuting attorney of Jackson County? Did he prosecute the election thieves and thugs of his party, the ballot-box stuffers? Did he profit by their thievery and by the support which the corrupt machine of his city and county gave?

While not mentioning former Gov. Lowden's name, Finch declared in conclusion that the Republican party, in the agricultural problem which is impending for solution, will find a man, who, by reason of training and experience, has the ability, the courage and the desire to aid in the rehabilitation of the American farmer."

Commends Party's Record.

Finch declared at the outset that the Republicans have written a record during the last four years that entitled them to be continued in power. Labor is employed at a high wage, he declared, 40,000,000 Americans have savings accounts transportation lines are equipped for maximum service, industrial America is at work and standards of living are higher in America than any country of the world. He also praised the State administrations of Gov. Baker and ex-Gov. Hyde.

"The principles of our party have been steadfast and sound, growing and expanding with the development of the nation, but never embracing a plank for the sake of political expediency," he declared.

"The leaders of our party have been the far-seeing statesmen of their day. They have been the builders, not the destroyers. They have administered the affairs of our Government that today we are the best-fed, best-clothed, best-housed, best-educated, and happiest people on the face of the globe.

"It is the Republican tariff policy that keeps American capital employed in American industry; that keeps labor employed at an American living wage, and that sustains the American standard of living.

"The Republican party stands for the complete sovereignty and independence of our nation. We do not wish isolation, but we demand independence. The Republican party is unwilling to have either its foreign or domestic policies shaped and controlled by foreign influences. We are for nationalism not internationalism.

Accomplishments in Missouri.

"In Missouri, as in the nation, the Republican party has just cause to be proud of its accomplishments.

"In 1920 the eleemosynary institutions of the State were the mere football of politics. While under seven years of Republican administration, ability to serve the unfortunates rather than political "pull" has been prerequisite for employment.

"In 1920 Missouri was in the mud. In 1928 we have one of the best road systems in America, constructed during seven years of Republican State government at a minimum of cost.

"One of the outstanding accomplishments of Gov. Baker's administration was bringing together for arbitration the contending factions in the road bond controversy.

"Under Republican State Government in Missouri, general and special taxes have been reduced and the character of public service increased in efficiency.

"Much has been said in the last few weeks as to the issues in the coming campaign. We have been told by our esteemed senior Senator from Missouri that honesty in government and purity in elections will be the paramount issues.

"To the Republicans of Missouri this is a revelation. We little dreamed that he would ever join Missouri Republicans in their battle for honest government and pure elections.

"The attempt to raise so false an issue will receive little comfort, when at the head of the nation sits Calvin Coolidge, whose public and private life is an open book and whose rugged honesty and simple virtues have endeared him to all right-thinking people. The Republican party is big enough to right every wrong.

Flood Control and Farm Relief.

"The two great problems to be solved in the next administration will be flood control and the rehabilitation of agriculture. We must have some thorough and correlated flood prevention plan, and the Republican party should stand squarely behind this great internal improvement.

"That agriculture presents a serious question for solution all agree. Those engaged in agricultural pursuits constitute 30 per cent of our entire population, but receive only seven and one-half per cent of the nation's income."

SPLENDID FUNERAL FOR CHICAGO GANGSTER

'Diamond Joe' Esposito Buried in $5000 Coffin as Crowds Watch in Rain.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—"Diamond Joe" Esposito was buried today with the pomp and splendor that has become peculiar to Chicago gangsters. Thousands fought the police to enter the old Jesuit Church of the Holy Family, where a requiem high mass was said over the body of the Republican ward chief shot down a few days ago almost at the door of his home.

Those unable to get into the church stood in the rain for a glimpse of the $5000 casket as it was borne away to Mount Carmel Cemetery, in which also are buried Michael Merlo and Dion O'Banion, two of the Genna gang, with which Esposito also was identified.

The plan to have airplanes scatter roses along the route of the cortege was abandoned because of the rain.

BOY KILLED, FIVE CHILDREN INJURED BY WOMAN FLYER

Youngsters Were Standing on Wall Watching Miss Winthrop Brown Trying to Land Plane.

PILOT AND HER PASSENGER UNHURT

Crowd Panic Stricken When Machine Heads for Barrier After Alighting in 3000-Yard Field.

By the Associated Press.

DUKINFIELD, Cheshire, England, March 26.—Attempting to bring her plane to a stop on a small field near here, Miss Winthrop Brown crashed into a wall yesterday killing Jackie Hood, 10 years old, and injuring five other children, seated on the top of a wall.

The plane carried away the top of the wall with its nose. The propeller was smashed but neither Miss Brown nor her companion, Capt. Browning, were injured.

It was announced that Miss Brown would alight on a field about 300 yards square surrounded by an eight-foot stone wall as an advertising stunt for a motion picture she was carrying to Stalybridge where it is to be shown. Many spectators mounted the wall and others stood below it.

Miss Brown made several attempts to bring the plane down within the enclosure. Each time she was close to the wall and had to rise again.

Finally she managed to land in the center of the field. There were cries of horror as the machine failed to halt and rushed toward the part of the wall where the children were sitting. The crowd scattered in panic and several women fainted.

Miss Brown tried to clear the wall by taking off again, but failed and the plane crashed into it with fatal result.

Her propeller struck the Hood boy in the head and the other children were injured by other portions of the plane.

CITY AND FRISCO TO SHARE WELLINGTON VIADUCT COST

Agreement Filed for Each to Pay Half Toward $140,173 Project.

Counsel for the city and for the Frisco Railroad filed a stipulation today agreeing to share equally the cost of $140,173 for the proposed Wellington avenue viaduct above the Frisco tracks skirting Southwest St. Louis.

Wellington avenue, the proposed street that is to link up Skinker boulevard and McCausland avenue, was authorized by an ordinance passed in 1926. The viaduct is essential to the southwest highway as recommended by the City Plan Commission. The State Public Service Commission must approve the viaduct plans before construction can begin.

Another viaduct now is under construction over the Arsenal street tracks of the Frisco Railroad under a similar agreement. The Frisco, however, is to pay 60 per cent of the $500,000 construction costs of this bridge, the city 40 per cent.

CRONY, 80, OF MAN FOUND SLAIN IN CISTERN SOUGHT

were on the kitchen floor between the table and the door. The spots had been scrubbed, but not completely removed. Two cartridges of .32 and .41 caliber, and an old .22 caliber rifle, were in the house.

Hammerle had been shot with a .32-caliber pistol. Patterson, who had seen Heinemann with the new nickel-plated pistol, was unable to describe its caliber.

Robbery apparently was the motive for the murder. There was only 41 cents in Hammerle's clothes when his body was removed from the cistern.

Cahokia Creek, which flows 100 yards away from Heinemann's house, was dragged for Heinemann's body, until investigators decided he was not dead, but gone away. He had spoken recently of returning to Germany, and had invited his friend Hammerle, to go along.

Police are continuing their search for Heinemann for questioning, as a material witness in the case.

Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch today disclosed that Heinemann had appeared at the Stockyards National Bank last Wednesday and closed out his $636.75 account by accepting a draft on a New York Bank for that amount. He told an officer of the bank that he intended to go to New York, and would stop a few days at Cincinnati.

Ed Crissup, a painter, told East St. Louis police he visited the shack between 6 and 7 p. m. last Wednesday, the day Heinemann withdrew his money from the bank. "I knocked at the back door for several minutes before anyone answered," Crissup said. "Then someone inside said: 'Who's there, what do you want?' I called out my name, but there was no answer. Finally I tried to open the door, but it was barricaded, and I could budge it only a few inches, so I left."

TWO MEN HELD FOR ARSON AFTER FIRE IN STORE

Galoshes Filled With Gasoline Found at Webster Groves Blaze—Both Admit Plot.

Firemen responding to an alarm at the shoe store of George Moss at 121 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, at 2 a. m. yesterday, found a number of galoshes filled with gasoline, placed in various parts of the store. Further investigation disclosed that the blaze, which caused slight damage, had been started by burning candles placed in several of the gasoline-filled overshoes.

Police were summoned, and several hours later Chief McDonnell arrested Moss at his home, 1017 Aberdeen place. Moss admitted that he had conspired to set fire to his store, according to Chief McDonnell, and named Ben Yonaw, 38 years old, a coal and ice dealer of 5606 Lotus avenue, as the originator of the "galosh torch" idea. Yonaw was arrested at his home and added his confession to the statement made by Moss, Chief McDonnell said.

According to Moss' statement to police, Yonaw approached him a week ago with an offer to set fire to the store for "$50 down an1 $250 when the insurance was collected." Moss said he accepted the offer, and Yonaw accordingly delivered five gallons of gasoline at the store last Friday. About 10 o'clock Saturday night Yonaw returned, announcing that he "was ready to do the job."

Yonaw filled the galoshes with gasoline, Moss said, and propped open with sticks the tops of those in which lighted candles were inserted, so the flame would burn freely. They then locked the store and went home, Moss said. The discovery of the blaze by a passing motorist and prompt action of firemen resulted in the failure of the plot. Warrants charging Moss and Yonaw with arson will be applied for today.

Moss obtained $10,000 fire insurance on his stock and fixtures last January.

25,000 VISIT FLOWER SHOW ON LAST DAY OF EXHIBITION

Attendance Largest Since World's Fair Days; 20,000 Blooms Given to Hospitals.

At least 25,000 persons, a record since World's Fair day, visited Shaw's Garden yesterday on the fourth and closing day of the second annual spring flower show, sponsored by four local florists' associations.

Turnstiles at the main gate were overworked, and one of them broke at 4:30 p. m., when more than 21,000 persons had been registered. The crowd diminished for a while after the rain, but from dinner time until 10 p. m., when the gates closed, the display house was packed. Attendance ran as high as 30,000 in one day during the World's Fair, and the highest since then was 20,000 at the chrysanthemum show, several years ago.

The flowers, still were in excellent condition today, and between 20,000 and 30,000 blooms were given to patients in hospital.

The Sanders Nurseries won the $250 sweepstakes with Joseph Wifek second. The judges were members of the St. Louis Garden Club. The public judged florists' booths, and gave 2761 votes to W. H. Kruse, No. 5, and 2426 to Witek, No. 4.

M'NARY-HAUGEN BILL OK'D BY HOUSE COMMITTEE, 15 TO 6

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The House Agriculture Committee today voted to report favorably the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill. The vote was 15 to 6.

Chairman Haugen said that no last-minute changes of any consequence had been made in the measure and he and Representative Purrell of Indiana, the ranking Republican member, both declared that the measure was the best farm relief bill ever presented to Congress.

TRACES BEES FOUND IN SHOPS DOWNTOWN TO HIS HIVES

P. J. Meyers, Seed Company Manager, Thinks Insects Are From His Apiary.

The presence of bees in downtown flower stalls on the warm days last week was explained today by Peter J. Meyers, a State bee inspector. For the last five years he has profitably kept about 15 beehives in a small courtyard at the St. Louis Poultry Supply and Seed Co., 416-18 Lucas avenue, of which he is manager.

Meyers believed most of the bees seen downtown were from his stands. Some might have been brought in with the flowers, he added, but he judged the wind would dislodge nearly all that got into the flowers in the country. He said bees would fly as far as nine miles for nectar, but believed it was too early in the season for them to be flying to a great extent. It was quite possible, he said, that when midsummer heat had made nectar scarce, country bees might fly downtown to find it.

He recalled his own bees sometimes flew across the Mississippi to find flowers, but added the further they flew the less they carried. They thrive in the heart of the city, depending as much on juice from broken fruit on Commission Row as on flowers. Meyers said he had still a ton of honey to harvest from the last season and had taken as much as 400 pounds from one stand, an unusual amount, even for a country hive.

POLICE TO USE NEW DEVICE TO COMPARE MINUTE CLEWS

Comparograph Installed at Cost of $700 to Examine Details of Small Objects.

A department of scientific research was added to police facilities here today with the purchase of a "comparograph," a microscopic instrument used in the examination of minute evidence, particularly the markings on bullets taken from the bodies of murdered persons.

The instrument, which cost $700 is being set up in the Bureau of identification at Police Hearquarters and will be in charge of Thomas Lewis, department photographer. It consists of two microscopes with a single sight, permitting the observation of two objects in one circle of vision for the purpose of comparison. In this way the markings on a bullet taken from the body of a murdered person can be checked carefully against the markings on bullets taken from the weapon of the suspected murderer. Other evidence also can be similarly compared.

COMMUNITY FUND OVERDRAWN

Twenty-one of the 50 organizations which comprise the Community Fund spent more than their share of the budget during the first two months of the year because of greater appeals due to unemployment conditions, according to a report of the Budget Committee.

Among the organizations which exceeded their budgets for the two months are the Provident Association, Maternity Hospital, Children's Hospital and the Salvation Army. It is expected demands made on the organizations which have overdrawn will be lessened with the coming of warmer weather.

J. W. M'ELHINNEY, 27 YEARS A JUDGE, DIES IN CLAYTON

Succumbs to Heart Attack on Eve of Return to Bench, Apparently Recovered From Illness.

Circuit Judge John W. McElhinney, who served 27 years on the St. Louis County bench and was planning to retire in a year, died early today at his home, 7752 Maryland avenue, Clayton, after a heart attack. He was 77 years old.

He was forced to leave the bench a week ago last Wednesday when his physician prescribed at least two week's rest. However, he was feeling well as late as 10 o'clock last night when he told his family he intended to reurn to his courtroom this morning. At 1 a. m. he suffered a heart stroke, and he died within half an hour.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Sutter McElhinney; a daughter, Miss Lucy M. McElhinney and two sons, Robert W a member of the County Board of Election Commissioners, and Herbert G. McElhinney.

The body will lie in state until early Wednesday morning at Bopp's undertaking chapel, Kirkwood, and from 8 a. m. Wednesday to noon, in Circuit Courtroom No. 1, Clayton Courthouse.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday from Clayton Presbyterian Church, Forsythe boulevard and Hanley road, to Valhalla Cemetery.

Governor to Fill Vacancy.

The vacant judgeship will be filled by Gov. Baker. The other Circuit Judge is Jerry Mulloy, appointed by Gov. Baker several months ago to succeed G. A. Wurdeman, resigned.

Judge Mulloy read a resolution of condolence into the minutes of Judge McElhinney's court, and adjourned both divisions until next Monday. Judge McElhinney's courtroom was draped in black, and the Courthouse flag was at half-mast.

Judge McElhinney became a Judge Jan. 1, 1901, and had served longer than any other Circuit Judge in Missouri now on the bench. He declined appointment to the St. Louis Court of Appeals several years ago. He was a Republican.

His fairness, judicial capacity and legal wisdom were praised by leaders of the bench and bar at a nonpartisan dinner given in his honor in January, 1926, in celebration of his completion of a quarter century on the bench. The late Herbert S. Hadley, who tried cases before the Judge 20 years ago, said the Judge was one of the few men in public life with "practically unlimited tenure of office."

Regarded Best Judge in State.

Chief Justice David E. Blair of the Missouri Supreme Court, said: "No trial Judge in the State is better regarded by the Judges of the Supreme Court than is Judge McElhinney."

Replying to these and other compliments, Judge McElhinney said: "I believe it should be the attitude of the Court, when so many nice things are stated, that they ought to be investigated. There must be room for doubt."

Judge McElhinney was born on his father's farm on the Mason road in Bonhomme Township, between Creve Coeur and Manchester. He studied at the district school and when 14 years old he began preparing for a college education by studying under his father, who had been a teacher, lawyer and carpenter as well as farmer.

For a time he was a pupil in the public schools of the county and city and then he entered Wyman's City University, a St. Louis academy for boys. Afterward he received instructions from a private tutor at Amherst, Mass., and spent four years in Amherst College, graduating in 1872.

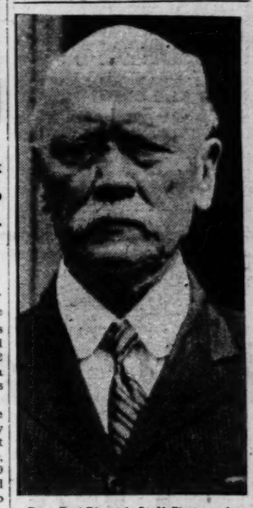

Taught Schools Two Years.

For two years he was a teacher, the second year at Washington, Mo. For two more years he attended the St. Louis Law School and the law department of Washington University, from which he was graduated in 1876.

While engaged in the practice of law, he was nominee for Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County in 1878, losing by 30 votes. He was legal adviser to five successive Sheriffs, covering a period of 20 years.

In 1900 he was elected a Circuit Judge for the Thirteenth Judicial District, then including St. Louis, Franklin, Gasconade and Osage counties, but later only St. Louis County. He was re-elected in 1904 for a six-year term, and again in 1910, 1916 and 1922.

KILLS HIS WIFE, THREE CHILDREN AND HIMSELF

Lowden, Ia., Postmaster Had Been Ordered Relieved of His Position.

By the Associated Press.

LOWDEN, Ia., March 26.—Lambert Meier, Postmaster here, today shot and killed his wife, three children and himself.

Meier, who was 30 years old, recently was ordered relieved of his duties as Postmaster following complaints of his handling of the office, and was soon to have turned his accounts over to a new appointee.

Apparently Meier was in good spirits last night when he visited relatives, but after going home he was observed cleaning a pistol in his garage. The children were Alice, 7 years old, Jean, 3, and a baby. All five bodies were found in Meier's home by M. B. Paul, the Town Marshal, and Fred Meier, father of the slayer.

G. W. HERTHEL, SECRETARY OF CONTRACTING FIRM, DIES

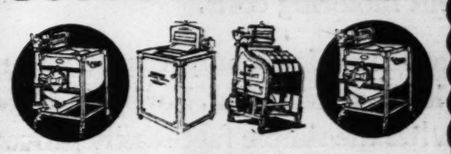

Funeral services for George W. Herthel, secretary for 22 years of the Selden-Breck Construction Co., which is engaged on the new Courthouse, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at a chapel at 3621 Olive street.

Herthel, who was 48 years old and resided at 96 Arundel place, complained of a cold and headache upon returning home from his office last Wednesday, was operated upon Thursday at St. Luke's Hospital and died Saturday of meningitis. Nine years ago, when he was building at Camp Benning, Columbus, Ga., fire broke out. As he ran through the buildings to warn others an explosion in the magazine caused a bullet to pierce his skull. The bullet was removed a few days later. His physician said the injury had no connection with his last illness.

Parachute Jumper Breaks Ankle.

W. Gentry Shelton is still at Barnes Hospital with a fractured right ankle, suffered in a parachute jump on which he won wagers amounting to $200 Saturday at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

You can own a PACKARD SIX for what your present motoring costs

THERE are only two reasons for you to buy a lower priced car than a Packard Six. The first is that you do not want a Packard —that you would really prefer a car less roomy, less comfortable and less beautiful, a car lacking the Packard reputation, distinction and long life.

The second reason is that you have never stopped to figure it out in black and white that Packard Six transportation, over a period of years, costs you no more than lesser car motoring.

This advertisement is addressed to those thousands who admire and long for a Packard—to those whom reason number two is keeping from the enjoyment of the car they really want.

If you can and do pay as much as $1500 for a car then you can buy a Packard Six. And on an ownership basis it will cost you no more per year than your present motoring costs.

There is nothing complicated about proving that statement. For behind that truth lies the simple fact—easily proved —that you, like other Packard owners, will keep your Packard longer.

The Packard Six is built to last longer. Owners want to and do drive it approximately twice as long as lesser cars. We know that the average owner of a $1500 car does not drive it more than two years.

Other costs are approximately equal and the lower depreciation of the Packard more than offsets the higher first cost which makes its longer life and finer service possible.

Any Packard may be purchased on a monthly payment basis. Your present car will no doubt more than take care of the down payment. May we appraise it?

AIRCRAFT CARRIER DAMAGES CANAL

U. S. S. Lexington Wrecks Rail on Panama Lock and Knocks Down Posts.

By the Associated Press.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 26.—Damaged locks and the scraped sides of the U. S. S. Lexington today testified to the difficulty the giant aircraft carrier had in passing through the Panama Canal.

A high wind blowing at the time of the journey yesterday made the handling of the big vessel difficult.

Three heavy concrete lampposts were torn down as the ship passed through the three chambers of the Gatun locks at the Atlantic end of the canal. As she started down to the Pacific at the Pedro Miguel lock another lamppost was demolished and a heavy steel handrail running along the top of the lock was crushed.

The ship, which is 106 feet across at its widest point and 888 feet long, had a narrow margin of clearance and was scraped. The locks are 110 feet wide and 1000 feet long.

The Lexington got through the canal in less time than the aircraft carrier Saratoga, which is of the same size, taking 13 hours, while it took the Saratoga three days to pass from Cristobal to Balboa.

When the vessel passed through the Gatun locks on Feb. 5 the anti-aircraft standard of the Saratoga peeled off several feet of concrete from the top of the lock wall. The ship took five hours to reach Gatun Lake. Because of fresh trade winds prevailing at the time the vessel stayed at Gatun Lake a day and then began the descent to the Pacific. In going through Pedro Miguel lock the ship slightly scraped the framework of the emergency lock on Feb. 7 and took nine hours to reach Balboa.

A lot of good clothes are sold "ready-to-wear." They are well-made of honest fabrics and there is a certain convenience in being able to walk in an old suit and walk out in a new one. There are many men to whom ready-to-wear garments are perfectly satisfactory.

But those who are really particular, prefer clothes made to their own individual measurement, with regard to their own ideas of taste and style—with the little touches of finish and detail that distinguish the tailor-built product. There's real economy in made-to-measure garments. They wear better and hold their shape better and longer.

SUNRISE SERVICE EASTER IN PARK

Band and Trained Choir Are Under Consideration by Committee.

A full-size band and a choir of trained singers are being considered by the committee preparing for the sunrise Easter service to be held in Forest Park. The sunrise ceremonies in the open air were inaugurated last year by the Rev. Dr. Edward S. Travers, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Their success indicated they would be an annual event.

Last year, a crowd of 8000 persons, gathered at dawn, sang the Easter hymns without being led by a trained choir. There was a sextet of brass instruments to carry the air. The committee has not definitely made up its mind as to the full band, but is deliberating. It was announced last year that a trained choir would be an adjunct of this year's celebration of Easter morning, although the committee has not yet so determined.

Easter Sunday, falling on April 8, comes earlier this year than it did in 1927, when it was April 17. The Weather Bureau has informed the committee the sun will rise at 5:34 a. m. and the services have been scheduled accordingly for 5:25 a. m., nine minutes before dawn.

The services took place last year west of the park's Lindell boulevard entrance. A tall brown cross and a small platform were placed at the junction of Grand Drive and West Pine cut off and thousands grouped in the adjoining park areas. It is believed that a new site is under consideration by the committee.

MAYOR EXPLAINS HIS ORDINANCE FOR TRANSIT SURVEY

Main Difficulty in Past Has Been Lack of Funds, He Says, Pointing Out Appropriation Plan.

Mayor Miller today gave out the following statement explanatory of his ordinance creating a Transportation Survey Commission, now pending in the Board of Aldermen:

"There seems to be some misunderstanding as to the city's position with reference to the proposed Transportation Survey Commission. This is indicated by editorials and news items that have appeared in several of the newspapers since the bill for the creation of the commission was introduced.

"The need for an exhaustive survey of our entire transportation problem has been felt for a long time. It is a problem that we have in common with every other large city, and that grows out of the epoch-making changes in the means of transportation, which have taken place in the last 25 years.

Auto Altered Traffic Plans.

"The almost universal adoption of the automobile as a means of conveyance, with the space it occupies, both while in motion and when parked, has necessitated replanning of streets on a large scale, and has, in spite of this, created conditions of congestion in certain district, which, if not checked and remedied, will cause a decided slump in property values.

"The difficulty about an exhaustive survey always has been a lack of funds. Just recently the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has found it necessary to cut some $4,000,000 off the estimates of the various departments of the City Government for necessary and important public work during the coming fiscal year, because the revenue in prospect was not sufficient to meet these budget estimates. Knowing, however, how important the solution of the traffic question is, it seemed to me there must be some way in which a thorough survey could be financed.

"The one agency most vitally interested in the future of transportation in this city is the Public Service Co., which has recently taken over the properties of the United Railways. It has an investment which, some years ago, was valued by the State Public Service Commission at upwards of $52,000,000. Naturally, a survey and report which would show the proper and probable future relations of its service to transportation facilities generally, must be of greatest value to it.

At Expense of Company.

"The company, although operating wholly within this city and adjoining suburban territory, is under the jurisdiction of the State Public Service Commission, and all proceedings, such as valuation and rate hearings, which have affected it, or in which it has been interested, have, under the law, been at its expense. The same law applies to investigations concerning other utilities.

"The present question being so closely related to other questions which concern the company and which are determined solely at its expense, it appeared to me entirely proper to require the company to bear the cost of the survey. In Pennsylvania, in fact, a similar survey of conditions in Philadelphia was ordered by the State Commission at the expense of the local transportation company.

"An examination of the proposed ordinance will show that it contains, in Section 4, an out-and-out appropriation, out of municipal revenue, of $100,000. This obligates the city for the cost in the first instance, and if the money can be obtained from any other source, it will not be necessary to call on the street car company for reimbursement.

"However, to provide for such reimbursement, if the money cannot be obtained otherwise, upon the theory, as I have stated, that payment for the survey by the company will not be improper or inconsistent with the custom prevailing for similar investigations, the same section provides that, subject to the approval of our local Board of Estimate and Apportionment, as well as the approval of the State Public Service Commission, the moneys expended out of the city treasurer may be recovered from the St. Louis Public Service Co., provided that the company, by its written acceptance of the ordinance, obligates itself to this effect.

Utility to Be Outnumbered.

"Even the casual examination of the ordinance will show that the Public Service Co., with its maximum representation of three members, will be hopelessly outnumbered on the commission, so that the charge that the city will be at the mercy of the company is wholly unfounded. With the exception of the three members of the State Public Service Commission, whom the bill provides for, and who may safely be presumed to be neutral in their attitude as between the company and the city, the balance of the membership of 20 on the commission is made up wholly of city officials and citizens appointed by myself as Mayor.

"Presumably, I may be trusted to select seven citizens who are fairly representative, and who have the interests of the entire community at heart. With this

'KNIGHT RIDERS' KLAN 'BATTALION OF DEATH'

Men With Past Were Members of Ohio "Terrorists," Witness Says.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 26.—The "battalion of death of the Knight Riders of Ohio," of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, was pictured here today by James R. Ramsey of Gratiot, Wis., as a unit made up of men "with a past," whose duty it was to carry out a "program of terror, including public whippings, burning of churches and theaters, making threats, illegal liquor raids and engaging in guerrilla warfare."

Ramsey made his statement in a deposition to Attorney-General Arthur L. Gilliom, who recently brought suit to oust the klan from Indiana. Ramsey testified he had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio, having entered the organization at Springfield. He said he was commander of the Knight Riders and also served with the grand dragon's guard.

The klan in Ohio in the 1924 political campaign supported Vic Donahey, who subsequently was elected Governor, according to Ramsey. He also said that the klan in Ohio supported Bert Buckley for Treasurer on the Republican ticket in 1926 and that Buckley also was elected. The klan, he asserted, was "head over heels in politics" in Ohio in 1924.

The Ohio National Guard and the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio were closely associated, Ramsey said, declaring officers of the guard in some instances were klansmen. National Guard rifles were given klansmen for use at Dayton, O., on one occasion, he said.

MAYOR EXPLAINS HIS ORDINANCE FOR TRANSIT SURVEY

composition, how can it be charged that the commission will be subject to the dominance or direction of the street railway company, or that whatever plan is devised will be in the interests or for the particular benefit of that company?

Members to Serve Without Pay.

"The proposed ordinance states very clearly that all members of the commission shall serve without compensation; that the survey shall cover not only all phases of transportation and traffic, but also general street and highway planning with reference to such transportation, and that in seeking relief for the general traffic congestion which now prevails, and a complete answer to the entire question presented, the commission itself (not the Public Service Co. members) employ such engineers and other experts as it may deem necessary, and, at the conclusion of its investigation and deliberations, make a report of its findings to the Board of Aldermen.

"A maximum of two salaried employes is provided for—a permanent secretary and a permanent stenographer—and only $6000 is appropriated out of the $100,000 total for the payment of their salaries, in addition to all necessary printing and other general administrative expenses, including those of the representatives of the Public Service Commission incurred in connection with their attendance at sessions.

"In my opinion, an investigation by a commission such as the one provided for in this bill promises the only satisfactory and business-like solution of this vexing and intricate problem, and I am convinced that no one who carefully reads the provisions of the bill will fail to conclude that the interests of the city have been fully and sufficiently safeguarded."

Wimer Wants Changes.

Alderman Wimer, a member of the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which will consider the Mayor's measure Wednesday, announced today that he would oppose it unless it limits the representatives of the Missouri Public Service Commission and Public Service Co. to one each, eliminates the $100,000 appropriation and gives the Mayor, Comptroller and president of the Board of Aldermen a vote on financial questions only. In the original rapid transsit survey bill introduced by Wimer an appropriation of $25,000 was provided.

MEXICO CITY, March 26. — Special dispatches from Tezlutlan say that only one miner was found alive of 27 known to have been in the Aurora mine when fire broke out and put off all means of escape.

The survivor was found Saturday, several hundred feet below the surface, where he had been for 16 days, without food, subsisting only on water in which he was partly submerged. Physicians expressed the opinion he would recover.

ERNEST LUCAS, SECRETARY OF HARDWARE FIRM, DIES

Was One of the Few Remaining Members of the Ground Hog Club.

Ernest Lucas, secretary and treasurer of the Rubelmann-Lucas Hardware Co., 1939 North Broadway, died today at Deaconess Hospital after a week's illness. Death was caused by pneumonia which developed after he had become ill with erysipelas.

Mr. Lucas, who was 68 years old, was born in Gasconade County, Missouri. His family moved to Pekin, Ill., when he was a boy, but in 1880 he came to St. Louis and began work with the Rubelmann firm, to whose owner he was related. He became a member of the firm in 1885.

He was unmarried and made his home at the Missouri Athletic Association. He was one of the few remaining members of the Ground Hog Club, an old St. Louis organization whose members' birthdays are on Ground Hog day. Lucas is survived by two brothers, Carl and Oscar, both of Pekin. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Burial will be at Pekin.

MAKE THIS
3-Minute TEST

Cut one slice each of Wonder Bread and any other bread you choose. Get your toaster hot. Toast both slices 1½ minutes on each side. Compare the rich, golden brown Wonder toast with your second slice. Wonder Bread toasts more quickly because it is better baked—slo-baked.

Then break the Wonder toast. Note the delicate, palate-tempting bread fragrance. Now try your other slice. Eat a bit of each. In three minutes you will have proved to yourself that a bread that's slo-baked is best. Not only for toast, but for every purpose.

Madam ...in Three Minutes the Proof...

MADAM—We wish that you could see just how we make Wonder Bread—what we use—how we prepare and blend the materials that go into it. But an easier way for you to prove that Wonder Bread is made of finest ingredients combined with an expert knowledge of baking—is to try the three-minute toast test described above.

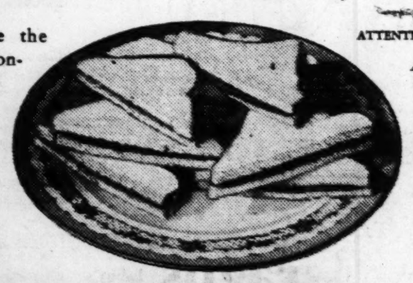

Instantly you'll see the difference between Wonder Bread and any other bread you know. For slo-baking seals into each loaf a delicate bread flavor—new to your palate. A flavor that tells you Wonder Bread is richer in milk—richer in its flour made only from the heart of the wheat berry.

Through slo-baking, too, Wonder Bread develops an even texture that will not crumble when you cut it. And this slo-baked bread retains freshness and flavor remarkably. Women tell us that the last slice is often as fresh as the first. Try Wonder Bread today—it's at your grocer's—fresh from the ovens:

Wonder Bakery
Continental Baking Company

Trained eyes watch oven temperature until each Wonder loaf is done to a turn. Out it comes—piping hot—deliciously tempting because it is slo-baked to develop the fragrant bread flavor that is Wonder Bread's alone. Try a loaf to-day.

ATTENTION! APPETITES

A new taste-thrill awaits you—when you make sandwiches of Wonder Bread. It's slo-baked to bring out all the delicate flavor bread should have.

C. M. HAY CLAIMS SUPPORT OF CITY COMMITTEEMEN

Senatorial Candidate Answers Statement of Chairman Mestres That No Pledges Have Been Made.

The statement of Joseph J. Mestres, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, that as far as he knows no member of the committee has pledged himself to the support of Charles M. Hay, candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination, was denied today by Hay.

In his reply, however, Hay disclaimed any desire to quarrel with those who are opposed to him. His disclaimer obviously was an attempt to maintain the serenity with which his campaign has proceeded so far.

"Several of the committee," Hay said, "have assured me of their support. I have not, as yet, talked to all of them personally. I sincerely appreciate the support tendered me. I have no quarrel with any who may not feel disposed to support me. My concern at this time is to see the primary campaign so conducted as to leave the party in the best possible condition for the fall campaign."

Mestres' statement of position with regard to Hay's candidacy was contained in a letter signed by him and read yesterday to the Third Ward Democratic organization in a meeting at 1439 Warren street.

Mestres' Letter.

In the letter Mestres said it was his belief that the majority of Democratic voters will support James A. Collet of Salisbury, who is a wet and is running with the tacit approval of Senator Reed and the active support of the Shannon and Pendergast factions of Kansas City.

"So far as I know," said Mestres, "no member of the committee has pledged himself to Hay. I do not believe any of them will. Hay has never been in sympathy or cooperated with the Democratic party of St. Louis. Should any member of the committee declare for Hay I do not believe he could control his own ward.

"Hay has been too much affiliated with the Anti-Saloon League to command the confidence of the party in St. Louis. He has been the legal representative of that organization."

Hay Makes Mild Reply.

Hay's tempered reply to Mestres' letter, which also included the statement that Hay "has flirted with the Ku Klux Klan," is in line with his set intention of carrying on the campaign without the bitter fighting that attended the Reed-Long senatorial primary race, for example, in which Hay on behalf of Long, made a determined but unsuccessful fight against Reed's nomination.

Incidentally, since Hay announced for the primaries it has been understood that despite his record as a dry and an opponent of Reed, he has had the promise of support from some members of the Democratic City Committee. If that is correct, however, none of his supporters on the committee has announced himself. The Hay organization is understood to hold that announcement of Hay support would make the committeemen in question the target for conversion efforts of members of the committee supporting Collet.

The Third Ward meeting yesterday voted its indorsement of Collet, who made a speech in which he pleaded for a return to the Democratic ideal of State's rights. Besides indorsing Collet, the organization adopted resolutions urging Congressman Cochran and State Senator Joseph Brogan to run for re-election.

A ST. LOUIS INSTITUTION

ROBERT FORBES, HEAD OF COFFEE FIRM, DIES

Succumbs on Trip to Indiana —Commuted Here From Alton for 47 Years.

Robert M. Forbes, president of the James H. Forbes Tea and Coffee Co. and known as St. Louis' oldest commuter because he had been traveling for 47 years between his home in Alton, Ill., and his office here, died today of heart disease at West Baden, Ind. He was 66 years old.

Mr. Forbes, with his wife and a party of friends, had gone to West Baden by motor to spend the week-end. He left Alton Saturday in apparent good health.

His two sons, James and Charles, also in the tea and coffee business founded by their grandfather, James H. Forbes, in 1853, left for West Baden on hearing that their father was ill.

The founder of the business established his home in Alton nearly 50 years ago, when railroad communication between St. Louis and Illinois towns became regular. With his sons, he commuted daily until his death in 1892.

After his father's death, Robert M. Forbes continued to make daily trips between Alton and his office at Ninth street and Clark avenue. His brother, A. E. Forbes, chairman of the board of the company, however, took up residence in St. Louis. He is visiting in Florida at present.

The railroads maintained fast trains between Alton and St. Louis for years until the electric suburban lines cut into their business. About 20 years ago, the Big Four abandoned its last Alton train. With the coming of the interurban line, Forbes, with other commuters, stopped riding trains.

At 50 miles a day he traveled altogether an estimated 700,000 miles.

Aside from the coffee and tea business, which was his major interest, he was a director of the Franklin Bank.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Mary Forbes, his two sons and his brother, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Aldus of Alton.

'CHICAGO' BRILLIANTLY DONE BY EMPRESS STOCK PLAYERS

Hazel Whitmore Stars in Francine Larrimore Role of Roxie Hart, Jazz Slayer.

It seemed hardly likely that a stock company could do much with Maurine Watkins' play, "Chicago," calling as it does for sharply drawn types not to be found in the ordinary run of actors but Director O. D. Woodward has thrown the National Player into it and the result at the Empress Theater this week is a rapid-fire, brilliant performance in no way apologetic or inferior to that given by the original Francine Larrimore company at the Shubert Rialto a few weeks ago.

Certainly Director Woodward is entitled to most of the credit, his meticulous attention to detail being manifest from curtain rise to curtain fall. But that is background. Hazel Whitmore in the Larrimore role of Roxie Hart, the jazz slayer, the empty-headed little cheater who kills her "other man" and cries herself out of it, all to the greater glory of the yellow press, is the bright star of the piece. Don Burroughs, leading man—who, by the way, has not had a real part for five weeks—was received enthusiastically by the audience yesterday in the comparatively unimportant part of a reporter on the murder story.

Splendid bits are contributed by Millard Vincent as attorney for the defense, Alice Baker as the crazy "messenger of God" who killed her man when he would not marry her, Helena Shipman, Betty Garth, Phil Macy and Kitty Rose. Hal Price is the police sergeant, Frank Jaquet the judge and Edward Schilling the prosecutor.

KILLED WHILE SCALING CLIFF

Youth Falls 60 Feet When Loose Rocks Give Way.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 26.—Sigmund Florczyk, 17 years old, was so anxious to beat four companions in cliff scaling at Green Lake in the Clark reservation yesterday that he chose the most dangerous route. When he was less than 15 feet from the top a slide of loose rocks sent him headlong in a 60-foot plunge to death on the beach below.

MRS. JOHN DIXON, Bedford, Ind.

Back Quit Hurting

"ABOUT eleven years ago I was so weak I could scarcely stand on my feet," says Mrs. John Dixon, of Bedford, Ind. "I felt like I would fall in my tracks. My back was so weak, and ached continually. The ache and pain would come in my sides. I was so tired all the time.

"I read of Cardui and decided to give it a trial. I knew I couldn't feel much worse and stay up. I didn't care to eat. After taking about half a bottle of Cardui I felt better. I felt hungry and I ate. I felt stronger then and kept up taking Cardui. I soon felt like working and, after taking six bottles, I was like a different person. My back quit hurting, and I was better than I had been in a long time.

"Since it did so much good for me then, when I get run-down, don't feel good, I know I need a tonic. About two bottles of Cardui build me up. I have taken it the third time now, and it always helps me. I surely recommend it for weak women."

BROWN CAB CO. ASSETS PUT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Charles Hertenstein and W. T. Brawner Named in Case of Defunct Concern.

Receivers were appointed by Circuit Judge Mix today for assets of the Brown Cab Co., a defunct taxicab concern, now held by the Yellow Motor Co., the largest cab operator here.

Charles Hertenstein, former chairman of the Efficiency Board, and William T. Brawner, were named to administer the assets.

This action resulted from two receivership suits filed last November and later consolidated, in which the defendants were the Yellow Motor Co., William J. Brown, its manager and former head of the Brown Cab Co.; Fred M. Williams, head of the Yellow company; R. O. Cathcart, J. R. Cathcart, L. Williams and Mrs. E. J. Denton.

The suits alleged that the Brown company bought a former corporation operating the Yellow taxis and in May, 1926, sold the assets of the business to the present Yellow Motor Co. in an alleged "wash sale" to defeat the creditors of the Brown company. Plaintiffs in the suits had obtained judgments aggregating $50,700, largely for personal damage claims against the Brown company, but were unable to satisfy them.

Although the defendants had filed a demurrer to the suits, which was overruled some time ago, their attorney, Alderman Schwartz, consented today to the appointment of the receivers.

In a recent Post-Dispatch article disclosing that taxicabs in St. Louis are unable to carry liability insurance and must meet accident claims from whatever cash they have available. Manager Brown admitted that $1,500,000 in claims against the Brown Cab Co. had been left unsatisfied when it went out of business in 1926, although in eight years of life it had paid out "several hundred thousand dollars" on claims.

The Yellow Motor Co. has 281 cabs, which are mortgaged for $175,000 and which cost as much as $2250 each, new. Brown said this corporation has no special fund for claims, but pays them from assets, settling on the average for 10 per cent of the sum sought. It owns no real estate and has no considerable physical assets aside from its comparatively small equity in the cabs.

MRS. A. J. BYRNS, MIDWIFE FOR 55 YEARS, DIES AT 77

The funeral of Mrs. Annie J. Byrns, who had practiced as a midwife in St. Louis for 55 years, will be held Wednesday at 8:30 a. m. from the Catholic Church of Our Lady of Good Council, Eleventh and Destrehan streets, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Byrns, who was 77 years old, died Saturday at the home of daughter, Mrs. Charles Guynn, 7368 Northmoor drive, Clayton, following two years' illness.

In addition to her active practice, Mrs. Byrns taught for 35 years at the St. Louis College of Midwifery. She is survived by two sons, Dr. R. E. Byrns and Edward J. Byrns, and two daughters, besides Mrs. Guyan, Mrs. Cora Sibelle and Mrs. Ola Berrian, the latter of Los Angeles.

FIGHT FOR 8-HOUR DAY, OPPOSED BY BRITAIN, RENEWED

Other Nations Are Making Effort to Have Washington Convention of 1919 Put Into Force.

ENGLISH ATTITUDE IS HOLDING UP TREATY

Industrialists Attempting to Reinstate Pre-War Working Hours and Wages to Reduce Expenses.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, March 26.—The principle of the eight-hour day, the keystone of the international labor office, is strongly opposed by the British conservative government. Strong interest has been aroused in various industrial countries.

Britain's attack came at the last meeting of the governing body of the Labor Office, a directing committee which, in a way, resembles the Council of the League of Nations. Betterton declared upon behalf of the Baldwin government, that the eight-hour convention, drawn up at Washington in 1919, should be revised and asked that the subject be placed upon the agenda of the 1929 conference.

Since a rigid campaign has been carried on in British industrial circles against the adoption of the eight-hour day, and no British Government has ever been able to obtain the ratification of the Washington convention, representatives of France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland and other countries at once assumed Great Britain intended to seek nullification of the treaty, which, if ratified by a majority of industrialized nations, would establish legally the principle of a universal eight-hour day.

Action Considered Reactionary.

Considering such an action as "reactionary to the extent of a return to industrial feudalism," the workers delegates, backed by the Government delegates of nearly every other large country, opposed Betterton's demand. Behind Britain's attitude lie three important factors.

The first is purely domestic—a desire on the part of British industrialists to return to pre-war labor conditions and incidentally pre-war prosperity.

Secondly, the attitude of British labor which would, especially in the mining industry, maintain at work thousands of surplus workers who would be idle, if longer shifts were enforced.

Thirdly, French and German industrialists, working in eight-hour shifts, could not compete with British industry on 10 or 12 hour shifts, while on the other hand British industry, working its manual labor eight hours at higher wages cannot compete in the world's markets with cheaper French and German labor on the same hourly schedule.

Effort to Enforce Convention.

The League and Labor Office, through diplomatic and official channels sought time and again to have the various governments bring the Washington convention treaty into force, and in 1925 and 1926 special conferences of labor ministers were held at Berne to iron out certain difficulties of interpretation which had arisen.

Italy ratified the convention conditionally after similar action by France, Germany, Belgium, England and Switzerland, the result being that the reform has never become effective. Belgium ratified and put the eight-hour day into force unconditionally, while France made her ratification conditionally upon Britain and Germany. Berlin now has under consideration a bill which, if passed, will make the treaty effective, but it is chiefly the British who are holding up progress.

Realizing that the backward attitude of Great Britain was holding up labor reforms in other countries, the European leaders, as well as the British workers, started a joint campaign to force the British Government through sheer weight of national and international opinion to modify its position. The British Government has retaliated by demanding that the entire convention be "scrapped" or revised. The French Government has officially declared that it will tolerate no such action.

While there are many who believe the action of Britain, if carried to its logical conclusion, may sound the death knell of the International Labor Office, others point out that it has furnished a rallying point for the workers' group and Government delegates of most countries members of the bureau. The fight for the international eight-hour day has taken on a new lease of life, they say.

$30,000,000,000 Stake Played for By Railroads of U. S. Seeking to Set Reproduction New Valuation

Analysis of Figures Shows Control of All Lines in Hands of About 300 Persons Who Would Share Enormous Profits.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The railroads of the United States are entitled by law to rates which will yield a fair return on their aggregate value. That value has been fixed, tentatively, by the Interstate Commerce Commission at around $23,000,000,000. It is probably a generous estimate; far more than the actual cost of the roads. But railway magnates are not satisfied. They claim that their properties must be valued at what it would cost to reproduce them; and that cost has been estimated by the Wall Street Journal at $55,000,000,000.

Using round numbers for convenience, the difference between the commission estimate and the Wall street estimate is $30,000,000,000. The figures are astronomical. This is the stake which railway magnates are playing for in the O'Fallon case, and in other cases. It makes war indemnities look like chicken feed. It is almost twice our present national debt. It is 50 per cent more than the estimated total wealth of the empire of Japan, with more than 60,000,000 inhabitants.

If this reproduction cost figure is established, who will get the profits?

Figures on Capitalization.

The outstanding capital of the railroads of the United States on Dec. 31, 1926, was $23,676,996,957, of which $9,484,802,738 was in the form of stocks, and $14,192,194,219 was in bonds. Of this sum, $2,654,338,306 of stocks and $2,788,347,014 of bonds were owned by other railroads, so that the amount of free railroad securities—those in the hands of non-railroad owners—was $18,234,311,637, par value. I doubt if the market price at present averages above par.

On the late date for which I can find an authoritative estimate, the market value of rail securities averaged far below par; and in spite of the "boom in rails," it is unlikely that market price has more than caught up with face value. (Statement 21, Annual Report of I. C. C.)

Bondholders Will Not Profit.

Of this railroad capital, $6,830,464,421 is in stock and $11,403,847,205 in bonds. Out of every $8 of railway capital, therefore, almost exactly $3 are stock and $5 are bonds. And the bondholder will not get one copper of the billions of excess value claimed by the railroads. His paper entitles him to nothing but a fixed return, and a fixed price at maturity. He furnished the real sinews of railroad building; for in many cases, perhaps in most cases, railroad stock was water, wholly or in considerable part, and the road was built and equipped by the sale of bonds.

But if the reproduction valuation formula is adopted, the whole gigantic, incredible prize goes to holders of railroad stock. The bondholder gets what is nominated in the bond, and no more.

Investors Pushed Out of Scene.

At one stroke, therefore, a heavy majority of that "vast army of railroad investors" we hear about so often is retired from the scene. They never enlisted in the valuation war, and have no interest in its outcome. This contingent of bondholders, by the way, includes practically all those hard-worked widows and orphans, who are pushed out as hostages whenever tardy reform seems to be catching up with corporate malpractice.

But the vast army of railroad investors must be narrowed still further. More than 20 per cent of railroad stock, according to the Interstate Commerce Commission tables, is preferred stock. In nearly all cases this pays a fixed income and is subject to call at a fixed price. The owner of preferred stocks, therefore, has little if any share in the valuation loot. For practical purposes, the holders of common stock get it all. Subtract 20 per cent from the $6,830,000,000 of rail stock outstanding, not held by other railroads, and you have something less than $5,500,000,000 as the outstanding common stock. The holders of this stock are the ones who stand to win the valuation prize.

Where Profits Will Go.

Suppose some super-investor, some J. Croesus Goldbags, say, should buy up this $5,500,000,000 of railroad common stock. Then no matter how high the valuation of the railroads was placed, Mr. Goldbags would get the entire benefit. Every dollar above that required to pay off the fixed liens in bonds and preferred stock would come to him. Since all these, and par value of common stocks besides, are more than covered by the Interstate Commerce Commission's valuation, every penny added to that valuation is clear gain to J. Croesus Goldbags—and to no one else.

If the Wall street estimate of $55,000,000,000 reproduction cost is accepted by the courts, he collects the entire 30-odd billions; and his common stock, bought at an average of $100 a share, becomes worth from $700 to $800 a share.

Limits of Ownership.

Ownership of railroad common stock is not so concentrated as that, of course; but it is confined within surprisingly narrow limits. The Interstate Commerce Commission estimates that there were 768,000 railroad stockholders at the close of 1926.

Probably a large share of these, particularly of the small holders, had prefered shares alone; but there is no way of telling. It is worth noting, however, that the number of owners of rail stocks is steadily declining. It stood above 800,000 only three years ago.

But let no one think that the 768,000 railroad stockholders have an equal chance at the valuation prize. Far from it. Valuation on the basis of reproduction cost will be a mortgage on the future. Those who hold that mortgage must still face the problem of collection. The small stockholder can do little but sit back and hope for the best. The greatest and earliest returns will go to those who control the roads.

Distribution of Control.

Every railroad is required to report to the Interstate Commerce Commission the total amount of its outstanding stock with the votes which that stock carries, the number of votes cast at the last election of railroad directors, the 20 largest stockholders, and the number of shares held by each. I have compiled these figures for 26 railroads, operating considerably more than half the railway mileage of the United States, and the results appear significant.

It is generally agreed that control of 20 per cent of the active shares of a road, that is, those shares commonly voted, is enough to control the road, in the absence of a pitched battle between fairly well matched contenders.

On two of the 26 roads, the 20 chief stockholders had a majority of all outstanding shares.

Variations in Voting Power.

On eight more, the 20 chief stockholders had stock enough to make a majority of the shares voted at the last election of directors.

On 11 more still, the 20 chief stockholders had stock enough to make more than 20 per cent of the shares voted at the last election of directors.

On four of the five remaining roads the 20 chief stockholders held an amount equal to from 12.5 per cent to 17 per cent of the shares voted at the last election of directors. Only on the Pennsylvania is the power of the 20 leaders negligible. There they held only 3.6 per cent of the total number of shares, and could make up only 5.3 per cent of the vote at the last election.

Some of the figures are surprising. The New York Central had 61,580 stockholders at the close of 1926, yet the leading 20 were able to cast 40 per cent of the vote counted at the last election. On the Baltimore & Ohio the favored 20 had 33 per cent of the last vote; on the Illinois Central, 51 per cent; on the Atlantic Coast Line, 78.7 per cent.

Same Names on Various Lists.

On 25 of the 26 chief railroads of the United States, therefore, the 20 chief stockholders have a power ranging from strong leverage to absolute mastery, and can be pretty sure of collecting the lion's share of any valuation profits. But that is just the beginning of the story. The briefest glance at these lists of 20 leading owners shows the same names recurring again and again. The firm of Paine, Webber & Co. recurs 16 times in the list of 26 roads; Harris, Winthrop & Co., 12 times; Hayden Stone, 10 times; J. S. Bache, 9 times; Hornblower & Weeks, 8 times; Clark, Childs & Co., E. F. Hutton and Kidder-Peabody, 6 times each; Arthur Lipper, Post & Flagg, Thompson & McKinnon, Home Insurance Co., Henry Clews and Shearson & Hamill, 5 times each.

Other names occur four and three times; different members of the same family appear in the same list; a group of charitable foundations, all with the same source of supply, bob up seven or eight times.

Giving full suffrage to holding companies, office boys, sisters, cousins and aunts, the list of 20 chief stockholders on 26 leading roads, which should contain 520 names, actually contains about 300. The power of these 300 is reinforced by still further concentration behind the scenes.

Two Firms Lead in Financing.

Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has pointed out in detail that two great financial houses, J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., do nearly all the railroad financing of this country, either directly or through affiliated concerns. The man who finds the money sets the course.

If J. Croesus Goldbags actually owned all the common stock of the railroads of this country, the American people would see him at the bottom of the bottomless pit before they would allow the valuation of railroads to be raised beyond the actual investment to give him an unearned increment. Why they should be more generous to a few hundred leading stockholders, who stand ready to skim the cream from the expected bounty is a source of wonderment.

OPEN SHOP POLICY IN WEST VIRGINIA MINES DEFENDED

Vice-President of Rockefeller Company Says Break With Union Meant More Pay for Each Man.

CITES INCREASE IN DAYS WORKED

Tells Senate Committee There Was Gain of 66 Per Cent in Output for 1927 Over 1924.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A statistical defense of the abandonment of union operation by the Consolidation Coal Co. of West Virginia, was given to the Senate Committee investigating the bituminous industry today by George Anderson, executive vice president.

Testifying last week John D. Rockefeller Jr., a stockholder in the Consolidation company, suggested that Anderson be allowed to answer for details of the concern's labor policy.

Anderson read statistics of operations for 1924 and 1927, explaining that the mines were on a union basis in 1924 and on an "open shop" basis in 1927. The comparative statistics for these two years indicated increases for 1927 as follows:

"Men working per day, 318, or 7½ per cent.

"Increased annual earnings per man, $322, or 27 per cent.

"Payroll increase, $1,831,000, or 36 per cent.

"Increased production, 2,233,000, or 66⅔ per cent.

"Increase in days worked per man, 125, or 95 per cent."

Says Struggle Is "Industrial War."

Turning to the struggle between the United Mine Workers and the operators, Anderson characterized it as "industrial war."

"It is war, not a battle," he went on, "and has already been going on twice as long as the World War."

The operator referred to the membership of the miners' union as "286,000 men constantly in the field as a standing army," adding that "on the operators' side, however, we have an unorganized mob."

He disavowed any bitterness toward unionism as such, at the same time attributing much of the distress in the soft coal industry to the stand taken by the union for maintenance of "the mystic $7.50 a day wage" after post-war readjustment.

Anderson referred to the "union army" as composed of "well disciplined conscripts." He described John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, as a "great general and a two-fisted fighting man."

"But this army doesn't believe in compulsory arbitration," he continued, "and what else is available."

Quotes Late President Harding.

The operator quoted the late President Harding as saying that the country was at the mercy of the United Mine Workers except for coal from the nonunion fields.

Anderson then traced the history of the Jacksonville and Baltimore wage conferences of 1924 and 1925, declaring the Northern West Virginia territory had not been represented at the first conference and saying that the West Virginia operators were told to accept the $7.50 basic wage scale obtained at Jacksonville or nothing at the meeting at Baltimore. "They refused to arbitrate," he added.

Anderson asserted that the fight on the Baltimore agreement had been hard and close among the operators, explaining that it had been ratified by the operators meeting at Fairmount, W. Va., by a 13 to 14 vote. Some operators withdrew from the organization to operate on a nonunion basis, he said.

Charges Miners Changed Policy.

"Within 60 days," the operator continued, "the officers of the union in that vicinity were all changed in an effort to save the wreckage of the union."

"From that hour the acts of the duly appointed officers of the United Mine Workers in Northern West Virginia had no more to do with the wishes of the rank and file of the men than with mine," he added.

NEW I. C. C. COMPLAINT AGAINST LOREE PLAN

Says Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad Violated Anti-Trust Law.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26. — A second complaint charging violation of the antitrust law, in connection with the Loree plan for merging southwestern railroads, was issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission today against the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad.

The Kansas City Southern, which was put forward as the center of the southwestern merger, was made defendant in the first complaint, last month.

In the complaint today, the commission charged that by the tentative merger agreement the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad "acquired directly or indirectly 135,000 shares of the preferred stock and 20,000 shares of the common stock of the St. Louis Southwestern railway without the approval of the commission and in violation of Section 7 of the Clayton Act."

The unlawful aspect of the stock transactions, the commission said, "may be to substantially lessen competition between the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad and the St. Louis Southwestern railway and to restrain commerce in certain sections and communities."

The railroad was ordered to show cause, May 1, at a hearing in Washington, why the commission should not require it to divest itself of ownership of the stock described. On the same date, under terms of a supplemental order, the Kansas City Southern will be required to defend itself on a charge involving the same general transaction.

K. C. Southern and M.-K.-T. Reported as Approving Loree Plan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The revised plan of L. F. Loree for a grouping of Southwestern railroads has been approved by directors of the Kansas City Southern and Missouri-Kansas-Texas roads, it was reported today.

The plan now is under discussion by a special committee of the directors of the St. Louis Southwestern, the third road in the proposed consolidation. If approved, it will be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which rejected the original plan and subsequently filed a complaint against the "Katy," ordering it to divest itself of "Cotton Belt" stock.

While officers of the roads involved declined to comment on the new situation, it is understood stockholders of the St. Louis-Southwestern are to be asked to exchange their $17,356,100 of stock on the basis of one share of "Cotton Belt" for 2½ shares of "Katy" common, and the $29,959,900 Kansas City Southern common be exchanged on the basis of one share of that stock for 1½ shares of "Katy." In order to provide for the exchange of the preferred issues, it is stated that a new issue of 5 per cent Katy preferred will be created and exchanged for the present Cotton Belt 5 per cent preferred on a share-for-share basis. The Kansas City Southern 4 per cent preferred stockholders will be asked to exchange each share of their stock for nine-tenths of a share of the new Katy 5 per cent preferred.

WOOLLEN BIDS REED WELCOME TO INDIANA

Exchange of Telegrams With "Favorite Son" Clears Way for Missourian.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, March 26. — Reed-for-President headquarters gave out today a telegraphic exchange of amenities between Senator Reed and Evans Woollen of Indianapolis, Indiana's favorite-son candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The exchange grew out of a telegram received by the Reed people last week from Leroy Keach, chairman of the Democratic committee of Marion County, in which Indianapolis is situated, saying that if Reed should come to that city, the organization, being committed to Woollen, could not stand sponsor for his meeting. The message was friendly in tone, and said that, if Reed should come under private auspices, he would probably have a large audience.

Reed thereupon wired to Woollen as follows: "There has been talk about my making a speech or two in Indiana. My attention has been called to the fact that some of the papers are claiming this in an attempt to interfere with your getting the delegation from your State. Nothing is further from my thought.

"If I come to Indiana at all, it will be merely to make a Democratic speech. I am not trying to get a delegation from that State, do not intend to ask for a delegate or vote from Indiana, unless you at some time see fit to release the delegation. If, however, there is any feeling on your part that I ought not to come, you have only to say so. Some of my friends and your friends in Indiana have thought a speech along the lines I have been following might be of service to the party. That is my sole object. Please answer."

In a telegram received today, Woollen replied: "There is no misapprehension here about your purpose, and we all will gladly join in welcoming you to Indiana."

Reed's Campaign Manager Dines With McAdoo.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat of Arkansas, was a guest Saturday night at a dinner given by Bernard M. Baruch at his Fifth avenue home. Other guests included Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Samuel W. Fordyce of St. Louis, campaign manager for Senator Reed of Missouri.

The New York Times says:

"It was said by some of those who attended the dinner that it was without political meaning and was a gathering of friends who previously had been entertained by Baruch on his estate in South Carolina. There was some discussion of politics at the dinner, it was said, but denial was made that this was the purpose of the dinner or that any attempt was made to bring about a line-up on a presidential candidate."

"Baruch was one of McAdoo's principal supporters in 1924.

80,000 ITALIAN YOUTHS TAKE FASCIST OATH

Mussolini Reviews Parade in Rome—Colorful Ceremonies Throughout Country.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 26.—Rain that varied from mere drizzles to soaking downpours throughout Italy, failed yesterday to dampen the ardor of 80,000 youths who graduated from the "Avanguardist" to the party badge and militiaman's musket of the Fascist. The badge and musket were solemnly bestowed at colorful ceremonies in the principal centers of population.

In Rome the ceremony was held in the famous Paizza del Popolo, from which Rome's conquering legions wended their way northward nearly 2000 years ago. More than 25,000 "Avanguardisti" youths and youngsters from 8 years upward belonging to the "Balilla" literally choked the square.

They strained their lungs in the Fascist yell when Mussolini appeared. Contrary to expectations, the Duce made no speech but he listened as they took the Fascist oath and then reviewed their phalanxes as they passed before him while the bands played "Giovinezza," the Fascist hymn of youth.

The oath was given to the new members of the party who had heached their eighteenth year. The boys said:

"I swear to execute the orders of the Duce without discussion and serve with all my force, if need be with my blood, the cause of the Fascist revolution."

From the square the newly-enrolled legionnaires paraded down the Corso Umberto with the wind and rain lashing their faces all the way to the Victor Emmanuel II monument, under which the Unknown Soldier sleeps. After giving the Fascist salute at that national shrine the youths and boys, drenched to the skin, dispersed to their habitations.

Twenty-four hundred young skiers from the Alpine provinces, who were brought to the capital for the occasion, were particularly applauded in the parade.

The city was decorated with national flags and the Fascist emblem of lictors rods bound around an axe. Last night all public buildings were illuminated in honor of this ninth anniversary celebration of the foundation of Fascism.

BERGER TO DEMAND U. S. BREAK WITH RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT

Socialist Congressman to Submit Resolution in House Charging Persecution of Minorities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The breaking off of relations with Rumania is urged in a resolution prepared for introduction today by Representative Berger, Socialist, of Wisconsin, who charges that nation with atrocities against her racial and religious minorities, including the Catholics, Lutherans, Baptists, Jews, Germans and Magyars.

Declaring the termination of diplomatic relations with Russia in 1911 by the United States largely due to the persecution by the Czar of religious and racial minorities, Berger said the time had come when "Rumania must be made to realize that it cannot revert to a stage of barbarism without incurring the hatred of other nations.

NORRIS CHECKS UP LEGAL STATUS OF O'NEIL, BLACKMER

Senator Hires Attorney to Ascertain Whether Fugitive Parties to Oil Deal Can Be Prosecuted.

LAWYER DEPARTS TO QUESTION FALL

Deposition of Ex-Member of Cabinet Will Be Used by Sinclair at His Trial April 4.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—With the Senate Teapot Dome Committee in adjournment until late in the week, chief attention in the oil investigations today shifted to El Paso, Tex., where on Thursday Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of Interior, will tell attorneys sent there for the purpose how he came to lease the Wyoming oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair.

Taken orally in a hospital in the Texas city, where he is said to be suffering from an illness that may prove fatal, the deposition of the former Cabinet officer will be the first direct evidence he has given in the long oil inquiry and litigation of almost five years.

It will be used in the defense of Sinclair when the oil operator goes on trial here again April 4 for conspiracy to defraud the Government in the secret leasing of Teapot Dome. The first trial, with both Fall and Sinclair facing similar charges, ended in a mistrial and last week their cases were severed because of Fall's inability to come here for the retrial.

Departs to Get Fall's Story.

Daniel Thew Wright, associate counsel for Sinclair, departed from New York last night for El Paso to conduct the direct examination of Fall, who already has stated in an affidavit read in court here that he leased Teapot Dome reluctantly after the late President Harding insisted upon it. Government counsel will cross-examine Fall and his testimony will not be disclosed until read in Sinclair's trial in Washington.

Meanwhile, Senator Norris, Independent Republican, will carry on an investigation of his own to determine whether H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil, fugitive witnesses in the Sinclair and Fall conspiracy cases and among the original beneficiaries of the $3,080,000 Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., are answerable to the law for the part they played in the celebrated oil transaction seven years ago in New York.

Norris Consults Attorney.

In making the announcement yesterday, Norris, who is author of the resolution authorizing the present Senate inquiry, said he had employed an attorney to look into the matter for him and upon the latter's report will depend whether Department of Justice officials will be called into the case.

O'Neil is former president of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., and the investigation has shown that he got $750,000 of the Continental profits. The long sought witness, now in hiding abroad, made a special trip to Montreal when he thought his death was near and restored the bonds to the Prairie company, with the request that they be held intact pending the outcome of the court actions against Sinclair.

Blackmer is former chairman of the board of the Mid-West Refining Co. and the evidence shows he obtained $300,000 as his share in the Continental profits. Like O'Neil, however, he made a trip from Paris to Montreal and placed his bonds in escrow until it was decided whether any action was to be taken by the Mid-West or its parent company, the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, to make recovery. The profits were made on oil bought at $1.50 a barrel and sold at $1.75 to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., half owned by the Indiana Standard and O'Neil company.

Besides O'Neil and Blackmer, the Senate investigators believe that Sinclair participated in a third share of the $3,080,000 bond earnings since they have traced $258,000 of the securities to Fall and $240,000 more to Will H. Hays, who, after receiving such a sum from Sinclair for use in wiping out the Republican party deficit hanging over from the Harding campaign, returned $100,000 to the oil operator.

The Senate committee now is engaged in seeking information as to a possible fourth sharer in the profits, as $1,012,000 of the total earnings in the over-night deal have yet to show up in their quest. The investigators also are tracing all of the bonds Sinclair is assumed to have received.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Pleads for Return of Republican Form of Government.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch,

BELIEVING the Post-Dispatch to be absolutely the best afternoon newspaper in the world, and one of the best five newspapers, morning or afternoon, I often wonder why it permits itself to become wrought up and indignant over the age-old, always repetitious, malfeasance, hypocrisy, corruption, injustice and oppression of Government. Have not these conditions always been, will they not always be, inseparable from government?

The Post-Dispatch appears to believe that there is a cure for this eternal condition in government by the people. Surely the Post-Dispatch knows that successful government by the people, which cannot be anything but government by the mob, is impossible.

Ideal democracy, universal suffrage, popular primaries, initiative, referendum, recall, mean nothing but chaos; the Klu Klux Klan the super, irresponsible government of the Anti-Saloon League. Is not the average busy man too busy with the day's work to be fitted to govern?

The Post-Dispatch knows that the idea behind and in the Constitution of the United States is that we should elect representatives to govern and abide by their decisions under law, or, disapproving, elect others in due season, that this was never meant to be a government of the mob.

The Post-Dispatch also must know that the strong will infallibly rule under any kind of government, as the war barons did in Germany, as the union labor barons now do in Russia. The terms strong and rich are almost synonymous, especially in the United States, where, even among working men and farmers, Mammon is King. We once had many financially weak newspapers. Now, a few financially strong newspapers dominate the journalistic world. The strong always have and always will rule.

We have had nomination of candidates for the United States Senate by popular primary. We have initiative, referendum and recall. We have prohibition by law. We have government by the Board of Morals of the Methodist Church. We have had William Jennings Bryan and democratization of government. Yet, according to the clergy themselves, we have more petty and major crimes, a lower moral condition, more corruption in high places, than we ever have had.

I daresay that nothing in the way of corruption equaled that of the Harding regime, 1920-23. And, Mr. Harding was from Ohio, the Nazareth of the Anti-Saloon League. Also of the "Ohio Gang," Harry Daugherty, Jesse Smith, Roxie Stinson, George Remus, Senator Willis, Wayne Wheeler, the convict warden of the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Forbes, and all that sweet-scented crowd. Was not Mr. Harding the holy choice of the people, made at the most "solemn referendum" ever held, by some 7,000,000 majority?

In view of the proved impossibility of securing good government by popular government, how can the Post-Dispatch advocate government by the people, except as the Constitution provides, through legally elected representatives? If the mobs of the K. K. K., Anti-Saloon League, any mob, can browbeat, intimidate, overawe, elect, or direct or recall, at will, representatives, how can we get decent, courageous men to submit their names to the decent element for election to civic, State, or Federal office? We can't. So we get bootlickers and cowards, willing to take kicks and abuse for the privilege of plundering the city, the State or the nation.

I am surprised that the Post-Dispatch wittingly or unwittingly supports these conditions. Why can't we return to the republican form of government decreed by the Constitution, elected representatives, decent, independent citizens, unafraid of mob or of money?

OLD AMERICAN.

A Novelty For the White House.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch,

I SEE where objection again is being raised to Senator Reed's candidacy because he has a prosecutor's mind. The Democrats seem to be afraid that the Republicans would make political capital of this terrible charge.

If the Republicans can, by all means let them. Having a man in the White House possessed of any sort of mind would be something unheard of since 1921, to be exact. And if ever in the face of Republican corruption, the country needs a man possessed of a prosecutor's mind, it needs him now.

THE DELPHIAN ORACLE.

A Constructive Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch,

SINCE the Marines are in Nicaragua to assure the purity of the elections, what would be wrong with sending down a few observers, official or unofficial, to learn how the thing is done?

The scheme, of course, is Utopian. If the Nicaraguan elections turn out the right way, we will learn the Marines were there to guard the canal, or just to work out a military problem.

But I insist it is a swell idea.

FATHER OF FIVE.

A STRANGLED COMMISSION.

When the Union Electric Light and Power Co. showed in its annual statement, issued in February, a profit of $5,214,479 for 1927, a gain of 21 per cent over its 1926 earnings, the people of this city naturally looked for a reduction in rates.

Demurrers, however, were at once offered by the company. In the ensuing discussions the people of St. Louis were disappointed to learn that there has been no audit and appraisal of Union Electric's property by the State Public Service Commission since 1915.

Why? Here is one of Missouri's greatest public utilities. Here is a State board created and commanded by law to supervise our public utilities and see to it that the rates charged are fair.

How can our Public Service Commission presume to say, in the case of a company which it has not audited for 13 years, that the company's rates are fair?

The answer is, it can't. Moreover, the Union Electric's long period of suspended supervision is not exceptional. The truth is that our State Public Service Commission is not able, with its present inadequate means, to do the work it was designed to do. It is buried under the staggering magnitude and complexities of its task.

The story of how the commission is understaffed, overworked and incapacitated by the short-sighted penuriousness of the Legislature was told in the Sunday Post-Dispatch. This board of five men is supposed to be in intimate touch with the affairs of 665 corporations, with an aggregate capital of more than $600,000,000. It is supposed to know the property value of each of these corporations, the quality of service rendered, the operating and financing practices of all of them, whether they are well or badly managed—all this to the end of determining whether the people of Missouri are getting a square deal in the matter of rates.

For this herculean job the commission is allowed an accounting and engineering staff of 11; three rate experts, a clerical and stenographic force and two attorneys.

As regards salaries and routine expenses, the provisions are modestly satisfactory. But to the appropriation for investigations and general regulation work—which is the very heart of the commission's office—the Legislature has attached a stifling condition. The amount of this appropriation is $252,120. It is paid from fees earned by the commission, which cannot exceed that figure.

This money does not come out of any State fund. In the valuation of a public utility the expenses of engineers and accountants are charged to the utility. Say it costs $250,000 to inventory a public utility. The State does not pay it. The utility company pays it. But whenever the commission investigation account reaches the appropriated sum, it can do no more investigating that year. Its budget, or rather its authority, is exhausted.

What's the result? Less than half of our public utility enterprises have been valued. Many of the valuations are out of date. The commission is hopelessly behind in its most vital duty and falling further behind all the time. In effect, the Legislature has hobbled and handcuffed the Public Service Commission by a stipulation that does not, and never can, save the State a penny, but which imposes unknown taxes on the people of Missouri by enabling our public utilities to go on and on and on, unregulated, unsupervised, unchecked.

State regulation of public utilities in Missouri by a commission strangled as is our Public Service Commission by the Legislture is a delusion and a mockery. And the people pay and will continue to pay until they take enough interest in their government to elect competent legislators and competent Governors.

'WAY BACK IN 1920.

As the hangar in Forest Park is being turned to prosaic warehouse uses, and the last vestige of the old aviation field destroyed, let us remember what happened there in the paleolithic aviation days of 1920. We had an air mail service to Chicago then. It didn't last very long, but its short life was full of incident and excitement. The public is now too blase to go to Lambert Field to watch the mail ships hop off and land, but then curious crowds gathered to experience the romance of aviation.

St. Louis had a Lindbergh in 1920, too. His name was Earl F. Baskey and he did marvelous things with a decrepit Curtiss Jennie. As we recall, the maximum speed of this sorry old ship theoretically was 85 miles an hour. But Baskey, a Bellerophon on a Pegasus, made it whistle through the air (God save the struts!) at 128 miles an hour. A tail wind helped. In what was billed as a "non-stop flight to Chicago," (quaint phrase) Baskey made a speed record of 2 hours and 6 minutes.

There was rivalry among pilots Baskey, Russell G. Jones and H. C. Brown. They alternated in establishing and surpassing records on these "non-stop flights." Don't forget, speaking of non-stop flights, that the stop at Rantoul for gas and oil didn't count. Nowadays our mail pilots rarely have accidents, and the service has become utterly routine, but then each flight was an adventure, and to make a forced landing because of a defect in the plane or to break a propeller in attempting the feat of landing at night was all in the day's work.

It was a matter of much congratulation, after the service had been in operation a few months, that 65,477 miles had been traversed without injury to a pilot or permanent disablement to a plane. Great days they were, and if our present air mail service is infinitely superior in every way, it isn't nearly as much fun.

And before leaving the subject, are we not correct in saying that the institution now known as the Robertson Aircraft Corporation used that field? The Corporation then consisted of one pilot and one Curtiss Oriole, which used to take up passengers on Sunday at so much a ride.

NOT A DRY EYE.

Sobersides himself, were he gilded o'er with an inch-thick coat of Chesterfieldian courtesy, could scarce restrain an ill-mannered snicker at the doughty opposition put up by the residents of the Country Club district against the efforts of Clayton to take the district to its bosom by an edict of annexation.

Not that the dour gentleman would scorn the efforts of any city to throw out its boundaries. But what more humorous than that the city wherein centered the resistance of the St. Louis annexation plan in October 1926, should itself now be trying against opposition to expand. Clayton and the machine politicians who make their headquarters there bent every effort to block the St. Louis enlargement plan, and did it successfully. Now that Clayton seems about to be blocked in the same sort of an effort Mr. Sobersides would probably remark to himself, "There is not a dry eye in the house."

ST. LOUIS AND THE CITY HALL.

Mayor Miller says that no expert has been able to tell him what traffic and transportation will be like in any large city even ten years from now, to say nothing of the thirty years over which the street railway company wants to extend its franchise.

That is a sound view. The street railway company is seeking to advance its own interest, but the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen are bound by oath to serve the interest of the city. If they will hold to the view expressed by the Mayor in his interview with the Post-Dispatch last week, the city will come out of the discussion with rapid transit and no dead horses to pay for.

This has not always been the relation of the City Hall to St. Louis, and the city has paid dearly for it. In the decade from 1910 to 1920 St. Louis was passed in the census list by two cities which have had the benefit of the best municipal government to be found in the history of American cities. Cleveland had Tom Johnson, and Detroit had Couzens. Both men faced city government about. From serving the interests of the public utilities at the expense of the community, it made through them the public interest paramount. St. Louis has not enjoyed such municipal government, with the consequence that it has gone from fourth to seventh place among American cities in sixteen years.

It is high time we had that sort of municipal government in St. Louis. A Tom Johnson or a Couzens would not hesitate in the vital matters now before our own City Hall. Neither man would have thought of extending the franchise of the street railways to accommodate exploitation of the property by financiers when the public welfare dictates the opposite course. Both would have turned their backs upon the exploiters and struck mightily for municipal progress.

This is what the City Hall should do now. It is encouraging to learn from the Mayor's interview with the Post-Dispatch that the interest of the city has a chance to gain over every other interest. That is the way it should be. It is the way cities are made.

WISTFUL WYOMING.

Wistful Wyoming, with which most people first became acquainted in "The Virginian," has not changed much since Owen Wister went out there and wrote that classic of the West. Republicans of Wyoming have sent Mr. Coolidge this message:

> The Republican State Central Committee of Wyoming urges you to waive your personal preference and consent to continue for an additional four years that leadership which has brought honor and prosperity to the country.

Since the honor of the country has been reduced to the vanishing point by the oil scandal, and the unemployment is unprecedented, Wyoming cannot have lost anything in wistfulness since Mr. Wister lived in Shoshone Canyon.

BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD.

The scene is a criminal court in Boston. Before the bar stands a stoutish man. Middle age has blurred the trim lines of a figure that still bears, somehow, the mark of athletic training. The Judge is pronouncing sentence. Fifteen months in jail for the theft of $10,000 in crooked stock deals.

The realization that the man before the bar is Charlie Brickley, one of the greatest football backfield men that ever trod on cleats, hurts, somehow. There is a distinct feeling of disillusionment for the man who remembers 1914, when Brickley, Eddie Mahan, "Tacks" Hardwick, Harry Legore, Merillat of West Point, and lesser lights, were writing gridiron history.

Fortune has not played fairly with Brickley. Nor, indeed, has Brickley played fairly with himself. Nor with his clients. Yet, somehow, there is something unduly stern about the necessity that sends him to jail for 15 months. Thus does hero worship break into our sense of values. Thus tenaciously do we cling to the ideals of yesterday, crying out with hurt when they prove false, telling ourselves that somewhere there must have been a mistake, not in our original judgment but in the newer finding that shows the feet of clay.

TULSA GOES BACK.

The gay red suspenders which once graced the manly frames of the fire fighters of Tulsa, Ok., are done away with by official edict. No longer will Tulsa's dashing fire trucks, hurrying on to the scene of battle, be enlivened by the bright elastics caught tight about the stanch shoulders of the city's defenders. For new regulations indict the once proud galluses as "small town, inconvenient and cumbersome." It is too bad.

It is too bad because the well dressed Tulsa fire fighter now must wear such somber attire as a belt, a black bow tie, gray shirt and other quite as anemic trappings. And it isn't right because red is the fireman's color and red he ought to wear. And if the great ones who direct Tulsa's fire-fighting fashions want to know the truth about it, suspenders aren't small town at all, at all, any more. They have come back. They are quite the thing on Fifth avenue, although they are neither red nor visible.

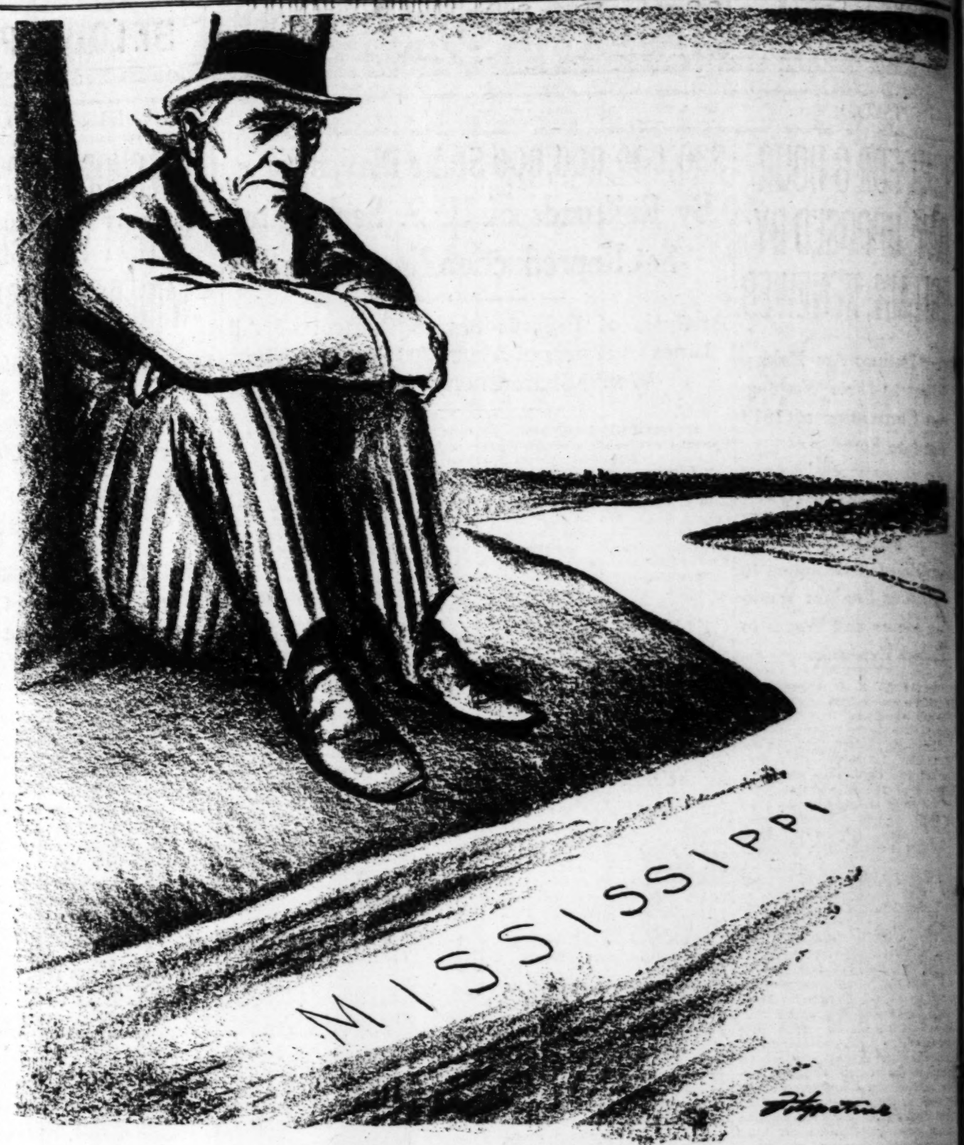

OLD PETE.

Not all is lost. It looks black enough for honest government. But old Pete is himself. The great and everlasting Alexander, the glory of baseball and augury of still greater triumphs for the St. Louis Cardinals, has pitched eight innings against three teams in the pre-season series, and he has not been scored on. Two of those teams were the Yankees and the Athletics, and if they can't hit nobody can.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, one-time Nebraska telephone lineman, a baseball hero in Philadelphia before the war, the man who stepped into the breach and saved the world's championship for the Cardinals, is 41. In a game with the Athletics the other day he had men on second and third, with nobody out. He struck out Simmons and Hauser, two of Connie Mack's heavy hitters, and made Cochrane, another hard hitter, foul to the catcher. When he walked to the bench, with the audience and the players on both teams lifting a lusty yoo-hoo for such a prodigious pitching feat, Old Pete drawled:

"Well, I can't help it if they strike at the ball and can't hit it."

What a man—the same yesterday, today and, let us hope, for long.

A Missouri Editor on Mexico

What the Government Is Doing for Education and Agriculture; the Efficiency of the Publicly-Owned Railroads; the Beauties of Mexico City, Which is Compared to Paris.

H. J. BLANTON in Monroe County Appeal.

MY first impression of Mexico was that it was a country of contrasts. Splendor and squalor, poverty and riches, ignorance and learning, ancient and modern, hope and despair, confront the visitor at every turn. Schools without schoolhouses and churches without priests, add to the bewilderment of the tourist from "up North."

The preponderance of schools over schoolhouses is due to the fact that the Calles Government has gone faster with its program for universal education than it has been able to go with whatever building program it may have in mind. In 1926, a Government official stated, there were only 900 public schools in the nation. Today there are more than 5000. Teachers are using tents, sheds, abandoned structures and, in some instances, the open air, for their classes. The children seem eager to learn. Their parents are tremendously proud of their accomplishments. At Orizaba, some 200 miles south of Mexico City, I came upon a night school while wandering through a side street one night. Practically every one of the hundred or more students were adults. Schools of this sort were being fostered in that locality by labor organizations. A neighboring town of considerable size, a labor leader told me, was able to boast of the fact that every laborer in its midst was able to read and write. The Minister of Education requires that all rural teachers instruct their pupils in the art of making bread and the benefits which come from eating bread instead of the unwholesome viands on which most of them subsist.

I WAS also impressed with the Government's interest in agriculture. Our party spent the afternoon at the College of Agriculture it is operating at Roque, one of the seven institutions of this type that have been established during the last two or three years in a program of one for each of the 28 states. There were 160 students—Indians, half bloods and every other type incident to rural Mexico. The Government gives them free tuition, free board, free clothes and a certain per cent of what they help the management earn from livestock and cropping activities. After graduation the Government backs them in the purchase of small farms and otherwise co-operates with them in their efforts to teach by practical example better methods of production and higher standards of living.

Incidentally, while at this school our party witnessed an interstate baseball game between the Roque team and the team from a rival college of agriculture in a neighboring State. The natives flocked in from far and near to enjoy the sport. Trees around the athletic field were filled with boys, just as is every vantage point in our own country. The game was fast and snappy. The home team won. Boys in this school, under direction of a native director who was educated in the United States, are becoming dairy experts, poultry and hog experts, and experts in the use of modern farming tools. They earn half enough to keep the institution going and hope to make it entirely independent of Government support when they finish the task of increasing their alfalfa fields to 300 acres. Six to eight crops of alfalfa are harvested every year. It brings a total of $100 an acre in American money.

ANOTHER thing the Government is doing for agriculture is the building of vast dams and reservoirs through which more than 300,000 acres of the world's most fertile lands will be reclaimed. We visited one of these projects near Aguas Calientes. When it is finished this summer 120,000 acres of desert soil will blossom as the rose. The Government has a practical plan for encouraging a "Back to the Farm" movement. It is taking over vast estates on which the residents have been little more than slaves, and is dividing these estates into small farms which are sold very cheap and on very easy terms to natives who are ambitious to be owners. But the Government takes no foolishness from such buyers. It ejects those who neglect their farms or who otherwise have not shown themselves to be in earnest about farming after two years. I think Calles has two things in mind. One is to return to native farmers lands which outsiders have acquired through unfair or questionable tactics. The other is to take the taste for revolution out of the native mouth, experience in all lands having taught that the home owner seldom responds when the hell-raiser calls for recruits.

I was impressed with Mexico's railroads and the skill with which they were operated by native Mexicans. Our train, consisting of seven heavy Pullmans, two diners and two other cars, covered 5000 miles of these railways without a single accident or any delay that was worthy of mention, going through innumerable tunnels, to elevations equal to any in America or Europe and descending through plain and valley to seacoast levels, at a fine rate of speed and in the utmost comfort. Mexican railways are Government owned. I doubt if they are self sustaining, considering the immense construction costs incident to such engineering problems as they were called upon to solve, but, reaching into every State in the republic, they do so much for the economic development of the nation and serve such useful purposes in other directions that their importance really is beyond estimate.

MEXICO CITY impressed me as being just as beautiful and fine as Paris, France. Nowhere in my travels over Europe and America have I seen lovelier parks, more classic statuary, prettier fountains, grander boulevards or better traffic officers. A visit to the floating gardens just outside the city is like a trip through Venice. At every turn through the maze of canals your gondola meets other gondolas loaded to the guards with gorgeous tropical flowers. The largest market I ever saw is in this vicinity. Everything that is grown or manufactured in Mexico and every sort of garb that is worn in Mexico can be seen. Many Americans down there, assert that there are more killings and robberies in the United States in one week than that republic has in months.

That's taking place—
We ban the harsh realities for euphemistic

No fighter wants the money that a fight is

The tariff's not a tax at all, and blessings round it cling;
Revaluation's not a scheme to flay us all

Prosperity is not a myth—'tis that by which we thrive;
We can with thought the brutal facts with

Or if they mean a thing at all, since words

for gladly we allow
The cars we once thought secondhand are

Prosperity Explained

AMERICAN PROSPERITY: ITS CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES. By Paul M. Mazur. (Viking Press).

As a courtesy to any chance reader who may have joined the ranks of the unemployed, or who, though working regularly, sometimes suspects that he may be running as fast as he can in order to stand still, it should be explained at once that by the term "prosperity" the author of this masterly analysis of American business means simply that state of economic activity in which enormous consumption makes possible enormous production.

Mr. Mazur is a Wall street banker who is recognized as an authority in his field. American business to him is a huge and intricate mechanism, now operating at a furious speed that has aroused the envy of the world, and it is as a master mechanic that he discusses it, leaving to sociologists, philosophers, humanitarians, preachers, poets and other impractical people, the question as to the ultimate meaning to human beings of so much frenzied motion.

But even the impractical idealist must grant that never before has so much luxury been possible of attainment to so large a portion of the people, and it is Mr. Mazur's purpose to show by what methods American business has brought about this result, what new problems have arisen out of certain conflicts inherent in those methods, and how such problems may possibly be solved that we may continue to consume more and more voraciously, thus making possible still greater and greater production, to some end not yet revealed.

Mr. Mazur shows, in an interesting way, how industry, growing up from the simple task of supplying local needs, has become a master exacting of the consumer an increasing market for products, the desire for which must be created. From beginnings that were marked by plentiful raw material and a shortage of labor, there grew up a system of mass production, which made necessary high pressure methods of distribution. From this need sprang the mechanism of advertising and salesmanship that is characteristically American. Mr. Mazur traces this evolution from its earliest stages up to the present moment, where he finds elements of conflict at work in the production-distribution machine. As the search for markets grows more and more frantic, the costs of high pressure distribution are beginning to offset the economy of mass-production. The result is decreased profits, without which, obviously, the machine would be unjustified. Must high cost distribution be abandoned? Mr. Mazur says no. Instead, he puts his faith in a new

The Week's New

—:— By NIE

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has come along with another colorful, finely photographed screen romance, "The Gaucho," which is at Loew's this week. A gaucho, be it known, is a sort of South American cowboy and the llamas—or can it be the pampas—down there are full of them. But Doug is not one of the common herd. He is THE gaucho of gauchos and he rides rough-shod over hill and dale, robbing the rich, petting the poor and making love when he is not otherwise engaged in defeating whole armies single-handed. He has South America pretty much at his mercy until he catches the black doom, a quaint disease of that section of the world which instantly wants to make a man go out in the woods and shoot himself. Prosperity Explained

AMERICAN PROSPERITY: ITS CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES. By Paul M. Mazur. (Viking Press).

As a courtesy to any chance reader who may have joined the ranks of the unemployed, or who, though working regularly, sometimes suspects that he may be running as fast as he can in order to stand still, it should be explained at once that by the term "prosperity" the author of this masterly analysis of American business means simply that state of economic activity in which enormous consumption makes possible enormous production.

Mr. Mazur is a Wall street banker who is recognized as an authority in his field. American business to him is a huge and intricate machanism, now operating at a furious speed that has aroused the envy of the world, and it is as a master mechanic that he discusses it, leaving to sociologists, philosophers, humanitarians, preachers, poets and other impractical people, the question as to the ultimate meaning to human beings of so much frenzied motion.

But even the impractical idealist must grant that never before has so much luxury been possible of attainment to so large a portion of the people, and it is Mr. Mazur's purpose to show by what methods American business has brought about this result, what new problems have arisen out of certain conflicts inherent in those methods, and how such problems may possibly be solved that we may continue to consume more and more voraciously, thus making possible still greater and greater production, to some end not yet revealed.

Mr. Mazur shows, in an interesting way, how industry growing up from the simple task of supplying local needs, has become a master exacting of the consumer an increasing market for products, the desire for which must be created. From beginnings that were marked by plentiful raw material and shortage of labor, there grew up a system of mass production, which made necessary high pressure methods of distribution. From this need sprang the mechanism of advertising and salesmanship that is characteristically American. Mr. Mazur traces this evolution from it earliest stages up to the present moment, where he finds elements of conflict at work in the production-distribution machine. As the search for markets grows more and more frantic, the costs of high pressure distribution are beginning to offset the economy of mass-production. The result is decreased profits, without which, obviously, the machine would be unjustified. Must high cost distribution be abandoned? Mr. Mazur says no. Instead, he puts his faith in a new method which he calls "merchandising" and defines as "the intelligent link between production and distribution which adjusts them to each other's needs." This, he believes, is the new agency which must guide both mass production and high-pressure distribution to new heights.

The capacity of the consumer seems not to be considered. Evidently it is his not to reason why, but rather to do and die.

Another threat to mass production, we are told, is the practice of hand-to-mouth buying made necessary by rapid style-changes deliberately introduced by way of increasing consumption. Merchants dare not pile up large inventories, and so it becomes harder and harder to manufacture a standardized product in huge quantities. Must mass production be abandoned then? No, says Mr. Mazur and he proceeds to emphasize the need for still more high-pressure distribution.

One other conflict remains to be resolved—the European trade balance. For years the United States has had a surplus of exports over imports; but all this time Europe has been our creditor, so that our exports merely helped to balance our debts. Now the situation is reversed. Our debts are more than paid; Europe owes us money—and still our export surplus continues. What will happen when Europe can no longer absorb an excess of our exports? How is she going to pay us back, except by sending us imports? And what will this do to our prosperity?

Mr. Mazur is very optimistic, expressing the belief that all these conflicts will be allayed. Thinking of his monthly bills, the puzzled layman will hope that the optimism is well founded. But he is likely to wonder, nevertheless, if, after all luxuries are considered, the life of a mere consuming mechanism is worth the effort and worry it costs.

WHY MEN FAIL. Edited by Morris Fishbein and William A. White. (Century.)

The articles here collected were written as a result of the conference of psychiatrists held in Cincinnati last June under the auspices of the American Medical Association and the American psychiatric association. Eleven distinguished specialists have contributed. In simple language and in a practical way, each writer discusses some mental maladjustment which may lead to failure in business and in family life, and methods of readjustment are suggested. Undoubtedly the book will help many.

Revaluation's not a scheme to flay us all

Prosperity is not a myth—'tis that by which

We can with thought the brutal facts with

So long as statements please the ear, what

Or if they mean a thing at all, since words

Then point with pride, and well we may,
for gladly we allow
The cars we once thought secondhand are reconditioned now.

CARROLL'S VANITIES A RIOT OF COMEDY

Moran and Mack, Julius Tannen and Johnny Dooley Keep Audience in Uproar.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

In many respects the most interesting nonsensical show—one hesitates to call it a musical revue—St. Louis has seen in many seasons came to the American Theater last night in the Vanities of Earl Carroll. It was greeted by a Sunday night audience which fairly bulged the sides of the show house and rocked the building with nearly three hours of almost continuous laughter. Occasionally the fun halted momentarily for the introduction of a song, which might just as well have been left unsung. Every so often, too, there was a dazzling display of chorus numbers but riotous fun was the keynote of the show, a keynote ably sounded at the beginning by Julius Tannen, who acted as introducer and master of ceremonies throughout the evening. Mr. Tannen, a pretty good night's entertainment by himself, makes other masters of ceremonies appear inarticulate.

This sixth edition of Carroll's form of amusement is in no way of the girl and music brand. There are girl's aplenty to be sure—a stage full of them—but the music is unimportant, almost irrelevant, and the stars of the show are all men.

Interest naturally centers in in Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, who have climbed to fame by way of the phonograph records. They appear twice during the evening, once as prisoners manicuring a rock pile and later as general handy men on a locomotive. They are uproariously funny in their fruitless arguments over nothing at all.

And then there was Johnny Dooley. Dooley, another one-man show, did his funny falls and the rest of his capers and as a comedy paper hanger, in a sketch in which he was assisted by Cliff Crane, he brought down the house.

Crane, too, is an excellent dancer and does some fine entertaining on his own hook, and Norman Frescott and Jerry Isaacs assist in the fun making. When Brian McDonald, the tenor, could do without the cold which he brought to St. Louis, is not known.

Of the women with the show, aside from the chorus, only Maxine Stone, a dancer, is worthy of mention, but the Vanities is a riot of enjoyment without much feminine assistance.

Day by Day in New York

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 26.

Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and talked to Francis Albertanti and we discussed old days when I read copy on the Evening Mail, the most depressing of my newspaper experiences. Nor can I pass the site where the building stood without a shudder.

So to a restaurant and few there, yet the waitresses were standing and holding their trays and one told me that was a strict rule, which struck me as silly. And I determined to write a letter to the management, which was equally silly.

In the evening to a musical play of no importance, but sat behind the trap drummer, and his antics amused me more than the performance, and we engaged in talk and he told of coming from a place called Nip's Neck. Then to eat spaghetti and so to bed.

A NEW YORKER who invites many out-of-towners to his various week-end parties always adds this rare bit of thoughtfulness to his invitations: "Bring your shirt studs."

She stepped from a limousine arrayed in evening splendor. Then suddenly her expression was one of amazement. She seemed to shrink like a slowly deflating balloon, hobbling across the sidewalk like an ancient flat-footed waiter. Both heels of her evening slippers had crumpled up.

Music publishers say more than 10,000 persons in New York work at obscure jobs while trying to write a popular song, an operetta or music for a musical comedy. Next to writing, composing music attracts the most followers, yet it is perhaps the most difficult of all fields in which to achieve success. During the last year only two newcomers have won anything like conspicuous success.

There are bootleggers who have reduced chances of arrest to a minimum. They are known as "contacts" and merely take orders and relay them to supply stations with which they are in no wise connected, save as numbers. That is their sole part in the transaction. They are paid 20 per cent of the sale price, always in cash, by the head man.

A high speed New Yorker is interesting and a bit amusing. I dropped in on one in his hotel apartment before he started for his office. The masseur had just left. A barber was shaving him. Two stenographers were taking dictation while a harried secretary was trying to get Chicago on the telephone. A valet was rubbing off his shoes and two callers waited in the ante-room for an audience. I was there about five minutes and went away feeling as important as a sick gnat at an elephant round-up.

My trouble has been that if anybody drops in just to say "Hello" they can remain as long as they like and even tell stories with long beards, without my showing the acute annoyance I feel. But the way big men can waltz you out of the office and make you like it is simply superb.

The trained secretary is a big help to important men in giving the visitor a polite bum's rush. He can pounce in, suggesting it is time for this conference and that engagement and do almost everything but put on your hat. He has the advantage, too, of not caring whether you like it or not.

Of course, some men exaggerate the New York importance. And the best answer to them was given by Ring Lardner. Having a fixed engagement with one he arrived to find a card on the door: "Will be back in ten minutes,' underneath which Lardner queried: "What for?" and went on his way.

"CHAUVE SOURIS" AGAIN ENTERTAINS

Balieff's Russian Revue Is One of the Best of Stage Amusements.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

Though lacking the surface finish that distinguished its first appearance in America Balieff's "Chauve Souris," which opened a week's engagement last night at the Shubert-Rialto, is still one of the best entertainments in the contemporary theater. Much of the material in the present show has been a part of Balieff's program since he first began to play before the American public. And speaking generally, these were the numbers which brought forth the greatest response from the audience.

Despite the fact that it has been sung, caricatured, played on the phonograph, done into the movies and worked into school entertainments all over America "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" marked the first time last night that the audience signalized its willingness to have a good time. After that, the rapport between stage and auditorium which Mr. Balieff strives so earnestly and skillfully to bring about, was an obvious reality instead of an assumption.

Among the new numbers revealed at this showing of "The Bat," I thought "The Surgeon," a short dramatic sketch for two characters representing a Russian peasant's encounter with a backwoods dentist, the most thoroughly amusing. The dialogue was in Russian, but the pantomime was so vivid, so rich with humors of a universal order, that every person in the audience could write his own lines.

Mr. Balieff also presented for the first time in St. Louis a new dancing artist in the person of Tamara Geva. Though her terpsichorean talents are not remarkable, she has a beautiful body, and her second dance, the "Spanish Grotesque," was a highly colored study in unique postures.

In the main, however, the "Chauve Souris" now as always specializes in naive humor projected through sophisticated intelligences. It is a show that no one should have any trouble in liking.

EDDIE LEONARD HEADLINER ON ORPHEUM ANNIVERSARY BILL

His Minstrel Troupe and Fred Allen Chief Features on One of Season's Best Programs.

Ida is still sweet as apple cidah and Eddie Leonard at the Orpheum Theater this week ida-lizes her as he has these many years in a voice that never seems to grow old. Eddie has several new songs but he still sings a few of the old ones in the style he invented. In addition he carries a company of 15 including two banjo players, a double quartet and a group of dancers, one of them a woman who blacks up like the rest. Her partner is a shade the most agile stepper that has come down the pike recently. Leonard lets them have their full share of the time and the result is the best minstrel act on the circuit. Fred Allen in the "Disappointments of 1925" keeps the crowd laughing. A young woman whose stage alias is Portland Hoffa serves as background.

Bessie Hay a ballet dancer with Sidney Tracey and a pianist, Bussey and Case who do everything from singing to club juggling and Willie Mauss who rides a bicycle inside a whirling wheel round out one of the very best bills of the season in honor of thirtieth anniversary week.

Estelle Taylor is the detective in "Lady Raffles," the film, the leading man of which apparently tries to make her feel at home by looking as much like Jack Dempsey as a human being can.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

Douglas Fairbanks has come along with another colorful, finely photographed screen romance, "The Gaucho," which is at Loew's this week. A gaucho, be it known, is a sort of South American cowboy and the llamas—or can it be the pampas—down there are full of them. But Doug is not one of the common herd. He is THE gaucho of gauchos and he rides rough-shod over hill and dale, robbing the rich, petting the poor and making love when he is not otherwise engaged in defeating whole armies single-handed. He has South America pretty much at his mercy until he catches the black doom, a quaint disease of that section of the world which instantly wants to make a man go out in the woods and shoot himself. Doug is about to commit hari kari when he is cured by a miracle and he resumes his post, as head of an outlaw band when the story comes to an end. There is a suggestion, however, that the miracle has worked wonders in the gaucho's soul as well as in his body and presumably he gallops out of the picture determined to lead his followers along straight and narrow paths. This story of romance in the shadow of the Andes will be a delight to all who enjoy tales of adventure—and who doesn't?

Heaven Help the Color Blind.

In "Red Hair," at the Ambassador, Clara Bow demonstrates, thoroughly enough, that a gold digger doesn't have to be a blonde to be preferred by gentlemen in search of a live one. To set at rest any doubts as to the shade of Clara's mop of hair the picture opens with some shots in color which show that Elinor Glyn certainly had Clara in mind when she wrote this play and the title. It is all done in Miss Glyn's best style with Clara being required, as is customary in Miss Glyn's works, to disrobe at a party and jump into a swimming pool. No Glynn opus is complete without a pool and a girl to dive into it. It might be added that Clara shows up to considerable advantage in this scene. "Red Hair" is the best picture little Miss Bow has ever had and it will add considerably to her reputation as the screen's best bet of the moment.

Always Room at the Top.

Realizing that in the face of so much competition the field of Worst Films of the Year is always uncomfortably crowded it is reasonably certain that a small niche can be found for the Missouri's offering of "The Crystal Cup." From the Paris slums it jumps, via a sub title, into the inermost circles of American aristocracy and it attempts to make serious actors of that excellent pair of comedians, Dorothy Mackail and Jack Mulhall. The story is stupid and slow moving and the subtitles, which are almost as frequent as the shots of the players, are in the best mid-Victorian manner with a dash of Laura Jean Libby hitting on all six. Some idea of it all may be gained from mention of the fact that the male characters are named Geoffrey and Eustace while Miss Mackail rejoices in the title of Gita. It's that sort of a picture if you know what we mean.

What Price Indiscretion?

A great deal of the monotony of the deserts of India has been caught in "The Desired Woman" at the Grand Central. The picture gets into the spirit of the idea soon after the start and is never able to raise its head above the sand storms after that. It is all about a woman who married a cave man soldier and then discovered that she loved one or two other men better. She succeeds in wrecking everything fairly well until, in some unexplained way, she shows up in the last scene as the wife of the man she should have married in the first reel. The Vitaphone accompaniment to the film is very fine—but it hardly saves the picture. The short reel talking and playing films part of the program furnishes novel, and better entertainment.

TOTO HEADLINER AT ST. LOUIS

Clown Features Comedy Bill; "Dressed to Kill" Is Movie.

There are lots of laughs in the vaudeville at the St. Louis Theater this week, laughs for everybody, but especially for children, for Toto, the clown, and an unusually clever one, too, is the headliner. Toto trots out the usual grotesqueries, but relies mainly on pantomime and novelties. His imitation of Pavlowa is something of an acrobatic feat as well as a remarkable bit of funny business. The program also includes Murdock and Mayo, eccentric dancers; Britt Wood, harmonica player; Crawford and Broderick, who exchange amusing insults, and Weir's Elephants.

The motion picture is "Dressed to Kill," with Edmund Lowe, who was Sergt. Quirt in "What Price Glory?" and Mary Astor. It is one of the recent crop of underworld stories, having to do with a high-hat gang of holdup men and murderers who, after misadventures, turn on their chief (Lowe) and kill him. The pious ending is a warning to crooks: "You can't win."

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU TO PROTECT WIDOWS

Letters will be sent to widows immediately following the death of the husband cautioning them against investing the savings left by the husbands, in stock and other securities of questionable value, the Better Business Bureau announced yesterday. The campaign of warning will be maintained by a letter to the widow each week.

"In every community," the letter will state, "there are smooth talkers who make it their business to call on widows and either directly or indirectly urge them to invest their money in securities or stocks of questionable values by offering large earnings or interest. It is against this class we desire to warn you."

Several Bad Breaks in First Half Help Bring Downfall of Visitors

Local Soccerites Force Battling Throughout — Rudge and Hilker Score Goals—Angelicas Defeat Hutchisons of Kansas City, 6 to 0 — About 4000 Witness Contests.

By Dent McSkimming

After all, there must be something worth while about St. Louis' peculiar soccer style. It wins games. It's brisk, and it's snappy, and sometimes it's over-rough, but it gets results. An Edinburg Scotsman might not go into ecstacies over the St. Louis boys' efforts at a display of scientific combination; but, after all, St. Louis keeps on winning.

At Fairground Park yesterday afternoon, on a public park field surrounded by about 4000 persons, St. Louis soccer players received visitors from Kansas City and Chicago. The visitors were well behaved guests. They smiled when the host cracked a joke and they accepted their defeats without protest. St. Louis won both games, one of which went to the Angelicas by a score of 6 to 0, over the Hutchisons, and the other to the St. Louis Olympic squad, 2 to 1.

It is well that St. Louis sport lovers support soccer, for if the Olympic test game had been played at Chicago, it is probable that St. Louis would have lost. But, St. Louis gave greater promise of a big "gate" and more revenue for the Olympic fund, and thus the game was played here and thus St. Louis won. This is not to be construed as an intimation that St. Louis won unfairly, but rather as the opinion of one observer that Chicago had a very excellent team which might very well have won the game on its home field but was not capable of dominating the play on a foreign field before a hostile crowd. There is no certainty whatever that St. Louis would have lost if the game were played at Chicago, but it is true that the breaks, such as they were, went against the visitors.

Bad Breaks for Chicago.

There were two notable instances when Chicago had the worst of the luck. One came late in the first half when Goaltender Hamm of St. Louis, after grabbing Greenlees' high shot, pulled his hands and the ball over the goal line in making a throw to safety. In other words, he unwittingly carried the ball into goal. There was no goal linesman, and Referee Murphy was about 30 yards away, so that he was not in position to determine whether the ball was in the goal. The Chicagoans called for a decision but when the referee refused their appeal, the visitors went on, accepting the play as a bad break.

The second notable incident came very late in the same period when Chicago was awarded a penalty kick on Kelly's illegal use of hands on the ball. Graham Gardiner, the outstanding star in the Chicago team, took the kick. He is a native of Scotland, and like all well-schooled Scot footballers, he tried to outguess his opponent, in this case John Hamm.

"I usually put the ball into the lower left corner," said Gardiner last night. "The left is the goaltender's 'awkward' side. But, I noticed that this goaltender was a bit over toward his left, so I thought I'd better put it in the right corner. I tried then to be sure of my kick, and I hit a trifle soft, just for accuracy, but the goalie somehow reached it. A St. Louis defender came in from the side of the penalty area and deflected the ball just enough to prevent me from scoring on the rebound from the goaltender's hands, and then the pistol popped signifying halftime."

Quist's Shot Goes Into the Net; Not Allowed When Gun Pops to End Period

The "pistol popped" just as Center-halfback Quist planted his foot on the ball for a shot at goal. His shot was true as an arrow and the ball nestled in the St. Louis net, but the sound of the time-keeper's gun had definitely ended play in the first half and the goal therefore did not count.

Not more than one second elapsed between the sound of the gun and the completion of Quist's drive, so it may well be admitted that Chicago got a very bad break. Hamm deserves credit, however, for stopping the penalty kick.

Gardiner, the big left fullback who missed the kick, later scored Chicago's only goal. He played for the great Sparta team against the Bricklayers in the Western division semifinal and he knows good football when he sees it. He was captain of the Chicago team yesterday. "We should have scored some goals," he said, "but St. Louis got the breaks and we are very eager to let the boys know that we are behind them to a man in their endeavor to represent America in the Olympic Games. They played fast football, they took advantage of the breaks and, after all, they won, and that's enough." Jack Parry of Chicago, president of the Illinois State Football Association, expressed the same sentiment.

In soccer, as in any other game, the so-called "breaks" go to him who earns them. St. Louis forced the play throughout the game. In scoring the first goal, St. Louis forwards retrieved a ball which was all but over the line, out of play. The Chicago defenders relaxed when Hilker hooked the ball from the line toward the goal, where Neagel tapped it backward to Rudge, who scored. Referee Murphy was in good position to determine whether or not the ball was over the line and Chicago's backs blundered in taking too much for granted.

Takes Nothing for Granted.

St. Louis took nothing for granted. The forwards flew into a fullback or a halfback, always trying to block a kick or so disconcert the kicker that he would become confused and miss the ball, and thus many "breaks" went in favor of St. Louis.

The second goal was scored on such a play when Hilker, coming in fast from outside left, scored on a rebound from Goaltender Nudera who had stopped a hard shot from the right wing.

In their first test against high-class opposition, the St. Louis Olympic team played far above the expectations of most of the spectators. The halfbacks, Claeys, Kane and Wiesler, and also Charbetter control of the ball than many of the professional soccer players of this district. Kane showed a very worthy aptitude for combination with his wing halfbacks and his forwards. Claeys was wild with some of his kicks but he worked like a Trojan on the defense.

The fullbacks, Murphy, Kelly and Dueker, were not as brilliant as they have been in previous games, but Murphy was under a handicap from a strained thigh muscle. Hamm was not put to the test very often in goal but he was always equal to the emergency. He had no chance whatever when Gardiner drove in his long low shot from 20 yards out. He looks to be a far better man than some of the local professional goalies.

There was no trace of combination play in the St. Louis forward line, but it may be that the kick-and-run style is the best system, provided the kicks are fairly accurate. Neagel was often wild in his efforts to put the ball to his wing men, a fault which is usually fatal in a center forward. Cronin made no noticeable effort to get between the opposing halfback and the St. Louis goal when the ball was in St. Louis territory and as a result the local defense was put to greater effort than was necessary. Neither Hilker nor O'Mara nor Budo was as finished a wing man as might be, O'Mara being too slow, Hilker too timid and Budo lacking in ingenuity in getting the ball past a defending halfback. There was a lack of ability to shoot the ball at goal, Cronin especially being guilty of a flagrant transgression in waiting for a rolling ball to pass from his left foot to his right when he should have scored on the play with his left

Paris Wins From Berlin in Soccer Resumption, 4—1

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 26.

PARIS defeated Berlin, 4 to 1, in a football match yesterday, making the resumption of soccer relations between the two cities, interrupted by the war.

The contest was marked by extreme courtesy on both sides, not one player being injured or ruled off the field for rough tactics.

In the game between France and Switzerland last week at Lausanne, nine Swiss players were injured and two French players were penalized.

Washington Football Team Starts Spring Work Today

Outdoor Work in Baseball and Track Also Scheduled to Get Under Way—Dr. Sharpe, New Gridiron Coach, Expected Here for Last Workouts.

The Washington U. Spring outdoor program will get under full swing this afternoon with football, baseball and track sharing the attention of the athletes on Liggett and Francis Fields. The tennis squad, which is still being held indoors, is watching the condition of the courts carefully and it is possible that the men will be outside in several days.

Gale Bullman, assistant in charge of football, will begin the spring gridiron schedule this afternoon. Bullman has announced that he will conduct a 15-days' intensive drill on fundamentals. The appointment of Dr. Al Sharpe as head coach and athletic director will not affect the spring practice in any manner, but it is hoped that some of Sharpe's plays and the style of football which he will employ here may be obtained for the last few days of practice.

Don White, head baseball coach, issued 15 varsity uniforms Saturday but still is debating over the list of players he will slice from the present unwieldly varsity squad. White will conduct practice games this week between first and second string nines and will shift his better players to the first string combination as their work distinguishes them. The first "chalk talk" of the season will be held tonight at Francis gymnasium for the squad.

The Francis Field cinder oval and jumping pits have been put into shape and Coach Johnny Davis, who has had to divide his attention lately between activities in the field house and the cinder parking field, will be able to view all his charges on one field. Davis is getting his squad well in hand and the runners are following a set program each afternoon with Davis tendering the special attention necessary.

A lack of material in the dash and middle distance runs will prevent Davis from having a balanced track team this season, it is thought, but the weight men whom he is carefully drilling may put the Bears to the fore in their dual encounters. The first meet will be held here on April 14 with the University of Arkansas.

The freshman football squad is expected to be one of the largest yet summoned to spring maneuvers. The possibility of a visit by Dr. Sharpe, the new director, will quicken the interest of varsity squad members and recruits from the freshman squad. From last year's squad of 33 men four will be missing, Captain McCarroll, Harding, Kaplin and Libman.

PAT COONEY TO MEET GUENTHER IN SPECIAL BOUT AT FLORI A. C.

C. boxing program to be presented Thursday night at the Triangle Hall, 4100 South Broadway. Matchmaker Joe Herbst announced today that he has paired Cooney with Frank Guenther of Coach Ora Dean's Kirkwood A. C. team.

Another event on Thursday night's bill brings Clyde Taylor of Belleville, a lightweight finalist in the recent district meet, against Sam Burns of the Kirkwood A. C. Doc Hyatt of the Flori Olympians and Gene Burke of the Business Men's A. C., will meet in an inter-club flyweight special.

MOUNT CALVARY QUINT WINS LUTHERAN TITLE

The Lutheran League basketball championship is held today by the Mount Calvary quintet following its victory over St. Matthew, 29 to 21, in the deciding game yesterday afternoon at Battery A gymnasium. Mount Calvary will play Christ Church five in a post-season game Saturday night. In a preliminary game yesterday, Bethlehem defeated Bethany, 30 to 22.

Special Trains to Derby.

As in former years, railroads operating in St. Louis will run special trains to Churchill Downs, for the Kentucky Derby, May 19. The Southern Railway system has announced that special trains of that railroad will leave St. Louis at 9:30 and 9:45 p. m., May 18, arriving in Louisville at 7 a. m. the day following. The specials will leave Louisville 10 p. m. the same day, arriving in St. Louis at 6:55

WESTERN A. A. U. MEET ATTRACTS 150 ENTRIES

Field and track officials of the Western A. A. U. will meet tonight at the offices of Robert L. Probst, president of the district organization, to complete arrangements for the annual indoor championships to be held Saturday night at the New Coliseum. The meet has already attracted approximately 150 entries.

Twenty additional entries were announced today when word was received that Webster Groves and Central will each place teams of eight men in the prep events and that Wentworth Military Academy of Lexington, Mo., will send a squad of four athletes to compete in the open events and the junior college relay.

YALE SWIMMERS TAKE 7 OF 16 ALL-STAR POSTS

Three of Six Positions on All-Star Water Polo Squad Also Go to New Haven Aquatic Stars.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Yale's great array of aquatic stars, champions of the Eastern Intercollegiate League in swimming and water polo for 1928, monopolize the all-star league selections made by the coaches for the Associated Press. The Elis take seven of the 16 places on the swimming first team and capture three of the six positions on the mythical water polo combination.

The choices of seven coaches are included in the consensus made for the first time this year. The eighth college, Princeton, was not represented because of the resignation of its coach, Frank Sullivan.

Places Nine on Second Team.

First and second swimming teams of two men each were selected for each of the six individual events, and two relay teams. The choices were based entirely on performances in the dual meets of the regular league competition.

In addition to its six first team representatives, Yale placed nine men on the second team, four of whom were tied for a place in the breast stroke event, and five on the two water polo teams. Three places on the first team and two on the second were given to Princeton swimmers. The other places were divided among Dartmouth, Syracuse, Navy and Columbia. Only C. C. N. Y. and Pennsylvania, which finished at the bottom of the standing, failed to place a man on either team.

House and Bryant Named Twice.

Captain Jimmie House of Yale and Jimmie Bryant, star Dartmouth sprinter, were the only swimmers who gained more than one first team place in individual events. House was the unanimous choice of the coaches for first place in the 50-yard dash and 150-yard back stroke, as well as for a place on the relay team. The Eli crack also was chosen for the second team in the 100-yard dash. Bryant's first team places were in the 50 and 100 yard dashes, while Phillips of Navy barely beat him out for a place in the relay.

NEW YORK CELTICS DEFEAT FORT WAYNE FOR BASKET TITLE

NEW YORK, March 26.—The New York Celtics won the world's basketball championship of the American League for the second successive year by defeating Fort Wayne at Arcadia Hall in Brooklyn last night, 27 to 26.

The Celtics, Eastern division finalists in the American League, took three out of four games played against Fort Wayne, the leaders in the Western division. The first three games were played at Fort Wayne where the Celtics came out on top in the first and third clashes.

Banks of the Celtics was the star of the evening with five field goals and one foul goal for a total of 11 points. At half time, the New Yorkers led 16 to 4. Fort Wayne's only threat came in the final minutes of play when Chadwick, center, hooped a basket from the middle of the court to make the count 26 for the visitors.

DAVIS CUP TEAM IS ON ITS WAY TO MEXICO CITY

Tilden Defeats Coen, While Hennessey Wins Over Shields and Abe in Final Practices.

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 26.—America's Davis Cup training squad yesterday completed practice and prepared to depart immediately for Mexico City to meet the Mexican team in the first round of American zone play, which is expected to lead to a challenge by the team led by William Tilden II, making a renewed effort to recapture the trophy now held by France.

In final practice games, Tilden won from W. F. Coen Jr. of Kansas City, who is being carried on the squad to Mexico. The match went five sets, the veteran finally winning out, 6—2, 6—3, 3—6, 7—9, 6—4.

Coen, during the final sets, played Big Bill on even terms, often out-maneuvering the former national champion. Tilden is suffering from a slightly sprained arm.

In the other two singles matches of the day, Johnny Hennessey, Indianapolis, featured in both. He defeated Frank Shields of New York in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2, and then turned around and duplicated his easy victory in winning from Tamio Abe, Japanese national champion, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4.

The Davis Cup squad, comprising Tilden, Hennessey, Arnold Jones of Providence, R. I., and Wilmer Allison, University of Texas, accompanied by Coen, who is being carried along for the experience to be gained, departed early this morning via Atlanta, Memphis and Laredo for Mexico City.

Several members of the squad that tried out here this week for the team and failed to make the four selected, expect to stay over for the South Atlantic tournament next week.

How About This?

THE dog-racing game is about to resume in the St. Louis district, we are told. There is a chance that Missouri may frown on this, but in that case the track at Madison will then be utilized to tap the public till.

The Madison and Wellston tracks had a wonderful year last campaign. They raced between them more than half a year and the total takeout would amaze the public if it could be calculated.

If dog-race promotion is to be permanent, however, it will eventually have to make concessions to the public, and one of them will be in reducing the amount of the "takeout," now admitted to be 10 per cent and "breakage"—an aggregate of about 11½ per cent.

This is 5 per cent more than is charged at Fairmount and other Illinois tracks, and at Fair Grounds Park, New Orleans. All Kentucky tracks henceforth will take only 6½ per cent. In addition, they pay out from $1500 to $2500 a day to the State for the privilege of racing.

The average horse racetrack costs 10 times more than a dog-racing plant, and the daily operating cost is at least five times as much.

Thus the horse tracks tax the public only a trifle more than half as much as the dogs, notwithstanding capitalization and operating costs many times greater.

That's bearing down hard.

Maryland and Mr. Sinclair.

WHEN the Maryland Racing Commission barred Harry Sinclair's horses from Maryland race tracks it may have been reminded of the running of one of the Rancocas Stable's most famous performers, Zev, in 1923.

Zev was a Preakness and Derby favorite in the early winter book betting. Entered in the Preakness, run in Maryland the week before the Kentucky Derby, Zev performed miserably and was far out of the money.

In mid-week Zev started in a short race, and surprised and pained those who had passed him up, by winning a fine victory. The reversal was explained on the ground that Zev "obviously was just a sprinter" and would not do for the derby.

Yet he was shipped to Churchill Downs and, to lend color to the doubt cast upon Zev's distance qualities, his owner, Harry Sinclair did not attend the race and Trainer Hildreth sent him in charge of a stable representative, "merely to fulfill an agreement with the racing association to start him if he was in condition."

The world knows now that Zev was no sprinter, for he galloped away with the derby paying nearly 20 to 1 for the money wagered!

Just an Accident?

HOWEVER, that could have happened through the whimsies of racing and not through calculation. When 15 or 20 horses, the pick of the land, line for a race of one and one-quarter miles, accidents of the race may explain almost anything.

A horse running on the "pole," for example, as compared with another that was running five yards away from the pole, would cover about 62 feet less distance than his contender, in a one and one-quarter mile race. Everything else being equal this advantage would mean a victory for the "pole" horse by more than five lengths!

Coming Fast.

Phil Ball's rebuilt Brownies, composed of next to nothing except youth and pep plus a few veterans as a framework, is coming with a rattle, if training camp showing means anything.

The club is very hard to figure as a factor, because of several dangerous spots and replacement weaknesses. But the fact remains that it has made a fine showing down South.

"That's always true of young teams," it will be said. But then there are several members of the Browns who are not so young, still doing their share.

The future of the Browns, rather than this year's pennant race, is the club's objective. And the more youthful players who can hold their places in the regular lineup, the sooner the team will be ready for serious pennant contention.

Manguna Ruling To Be Handed Down Tomorrow

Board Will Decide Whether Boxer Will Get Purse for Coliseum Bout.

Whether Milton "Battling" Manguna of New Orleans will receive his purse for his bout with Peewee Kaiser last Thursday night at the New Coliseum, now being held by the State commission pending investigation that Manguna claimed a foul falsely, will be announced by Secretary Ben Harrison of the State commission in St. Louis tomorrow, he said today.

Manguna went down in the fifth round of the bout in evident pain, and his handlers immediately claimed he had been fouled. He was taken to the dressing room for examination by the official physician. This investigation disclosed no evidence of a foul blow, according to Dr. R. A. Walker. However, a protecting aluminum cup which had been inspected before Manguna entered the ring, was found to have a dent in it.

The New Orleans boxer declared Friday that he has engaged in 45 fights and has never claimed foul. He said he was sure he could defeat Kaiser and he expressed a desire for a return bout. He was being severely punished when the alleged low blow was delivered, but it was not sure that he would not be able to come back in the later rounds, as did Joey Rivers in an earlier bout.

CHICAGO, March 26.—De La Salle High School of Joliet, Ill., shattered tradition last night by winning the National Catholic High School basketball championship for the second consecutive year.

Led by a six-foot-two sophomore center, "Bubbles" McCarthy, the Joliet team overwhelmed St. Louis University High School of St. Louis, Mo., 32 to 11. It was the fifth annual Catholic tourney and the first time a champion has retained its title.

The champion's defense was just as ingenious as its offense, which broke through almost at will and allowed the players such a large margin at the three-quarter mark that they were allowed to stall at will. McCarthy scored more points that the entire St. Louis quintet, looping six baskets. Eight thousand persons saw the game, which was played at the Coliseum.

By defeating St. Patrick's of Pueblo, Colo., last night, the midget team of the tournament, St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., won third place.

THREE INJURED IN JOLIET CELEBRATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOLIET, Ill., March 26.—Three persons were injured and numerous traffic accidents occurred and several scores of arrests were made here when police attempted to quell a riotous celebration which raged through the night following the winning of the National Catholic high school basketball championship by De la Salle High of Joliet.

Police reserves were called out when the crowd threatened to get beyond control.

The celebrators formed in lines and paraded through the streets, entering cafes, theaters and any places that were open, doing considerable damage to property. Two men were seriously injured by automobiles driven down the sidewalk. An unidentified woman was struck over the head with a club and rendered unconscious.

More than 50 of the rioters were arrested and locked up.

ROWING REGATTA IS AWARDED PHILADELPHIA

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—The annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen will be held on the Schuylkill River in this city, Aug. 3 and 4, Samuel H. Truitt of the "Schuylkill Navy," announced last night.

The Nationals had been awarded to Springfield, Mass., which city, Truitt said, had declined the regatta after it had failed to obtain the Olympic tryouts also. Springfield had planned to hold both meets at the same time. The Olympic Rowing Committee awarded the tryouts to Philadelphia and then Springfield turned down the Nationals in favor of this city.

Browns' Prospects Brighter Than at Start of Training

Hurling Staff Surpasses Expectations With Coffman Standing Out — Young Infielders Have Come Through.

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

EN ROUTE TO BIRMINGHAM, March 26.—Dan Howley's Browns have completed their Florida spring training and are on their way home, with stopovers scheduled at Birmingham, Memphis, Kansas City, Tulsa and Joplin for exhibition games. The squad will arrive at Birmingham tonight, meet the Birmingham team of the Southern Association tomorrow and then depart for Memphis for two games, Wednesday and Thursday.

Prospects for the Browns are much brighter today than they were when training started at West Palm Beach. The Tulsa club had been wrecked for a shortstop, second baseman and utility first baseman and the pitching staff, with the exception of Sam Gray, was made up of young men. Such woeful lack of experience in all departments except catching coupled with the fact that only three major league outfielders were on the roster, made the outlook gloomy.

But the Tulsa shortstop and second baseman, Ralph Kress and Otis Brannon, have developed into two of the most promising young infielders in the big leagues. The infield, with Lu Blue, the artist, at first, and Frank O'Rourke, the courageous fighter, at third, is good enough. The fans will like it. The outfield is still shaky because of lack of reserves, but perhaps the fates will be kind and Manush, Schulte and McNeely will not have any accidents.

Two Brilliant Prospects.

And the pitching staff is going to be better than it promised early in the year. What is lacking in experience will make up in hard work and hustle. In Dick Coffman and Walter Beck the Browns have two brilliant prospects. It would not be surprising if each turned in 15 victories. Veteran members of the Brownie squad are willing to bet that Coffman will do that good.

Defeat at the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers gave the Browns a chance to show yesterday what they could do on an uphill grade. The National Leaguers took an early lead on a double and a single in the third inning and a triple and an error in the fourth and they stayed in the lead throughout, but the Browns hustled right down to the last wire and they scored two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth to make the final 5 to 3.

There was no relaxing in defeat for the Browns. Even when Jumbo Jim Elliott was holding them hitless for five innings they were in there scrapping. Clark, another southpaw, finished the game for Brooklyn, going four innings and Howley's men pecked away until they had piled up eight hits and three runs in four frames.

Beck and Blaeholder did the pitching for the Browns and had their support been better they could have avoided the defeat. But Kress missed connections with a hot grounder, Brannon fumbled one and fell down going after another; Lu Blue made a wild throw and a wild pitch by Blaeholder contributed to the Brooklyn total. Beck gave three hits in five innings and Blaeholder four in four which is not bad pitching at all.

Guy Sturdy Is Ill.

Guy Sturdy, the first-baseman from Tulsa, started in left field, but he has been suffering from an attack of indigestion and is not hitting his normal average. Schang batted for him in the eighth inning and Badgro played the ninth inning in the field.

Walter Stewart, the only southpaw on the Brownie staff, will pitch against the Birmingham team tomorrow. He was not right in his exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds, and was pounded a bit hard. He is expected to be a regular starter for the Browns and his showing against the Southern Association team will be watched with interest.

Brooklyn in the three games with the Browns did not show anything to indicate that the Dodgers would cause any excitement in the National League race. Uncle Wilbert Robinson has a new infield combination but the team won't do any better than sixth, unless Cincinnati is worse than it was last season. The Dodgers are sure to have great pitching, but it will be a daily contest to see whether the team's weak fielding or strong pitching is to prevail. However any team with Vance, Petty, Elliott and Doak will be hard to beat when the defense is doing its share.

SIKESTON MEET WILL QUALIFY FOR STATE FINALS AT COLUMBIA

SIKESTON, Mo., March 26.—Winners at the annual high school track and field meet to be held here April 20 will be eligible for state competition at the Columbia meet, according to information from State High School Athletic Association officials to Supt. Roy Ellise. Boys who place first and second in each event will be eligible for the state event. Both boys and girls will participate in the meet here.

New York Giants Win.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The New York soccer Giants kept up their winning streak yesterday in American League competition by defeating J. & P. Coats, 5 to 2, at Starlight Park before 3000 fans. Max Gruenwald was the outstanding star, scoring three brilliant goals.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

The Michigan bowlers landed in sixth place. The Collinswood Shale and Brick five of Cleveland wound up with a 2935 mark to take ninth berth in the standings.

Overcomes Five Lengths Lead in Beating Wooldridge Over Two Miles—Race Valued at $11,500 to Victor.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 26.—Handy Mandy, a 4-year-old filly, with Jack Hardy riding, carried the colors of the Three D's Stable of E. P. Waggoner, Texas oil baron to victory in the eighth renewal of the Tijuana cup, at two miles, at the Tijuana Jockey Club track yesterday afternoon.

Handy Mandy ran the two miles in 3:25 1-5, more than two seconds slower than the track record for the distance set by Backbone last year. She won by a length over Wooldridge, owned by Bowman and Crofton with Grippeminaud ten lengths back in third place. Firth of Tay was fourth.

Crystal Pennant, winner of the Coffroth Handicap, did not start, although entered overnight.

Handy Mandy rewarded at the rate of $3.60 to win, $3 to place and $2.40 to show in the $2 mutuels. Place tickets on Wooldridge paid $3 and show $2.40; Grippeminaud paid $2.40 to show.

The race was worth $11,450 to the winner, the Three D's Stable, with second money of $1500 going to Wooldridge, $1000 to Grippeminaud for third and $500 to Firth of Tay for fourth.

Deep Thought set the early pace in the race, going to the front at once wth Bonnie Omar and Rip Rap in closest pursuit. Wooldridge, slow to begin, got to the front after the field had gone a mile and one half, and was five lengths in front of Handy Mandy as they entered the stretch.

Getting clear running for the first time in the stretch, Handy Mandy overtook the leader and was slowly drawing away at the end.

Nine started in the race.

Too True.

Luther Burbank has passed on but we have a hunch that a number of peaches will be found under those cherry trees in Forest Park.

A False Alarm.

See where Rin Tin Tin remained asleep while a burglar burgled the house in which he lives. These movie stars can't be bothered with burglars. Besides, Rinty is an actor, not a burglar alarm.

Furthermore, the scenario doesn't read right. According to all precedent, after the burglar had made the shack, Rin Tin Tin should have been accused of being the culprit and ordered shot at sunrise, or, as near thereafter as he gets up.

And we'll bet a dime to a dog biscuit that the burglar would have been brought to book just as the firing squad was about to pull the trigger.

Hot Dog!

Which reminds us of an old hair-raiser we used to read when we were a kid. It was called "Snarley Yow the Dog Fiend." Boy, there was a dog!

Mrs. Former Champion Dempsey says Jack might reconsider his retirement if guaranteed 500,000 berries. She ought to make him fight for that.

However, offering Jack $500,000 may be as futile as asking the colored boy who already had a quarter if he wanted to make one.

At any rate, Eugene O'Neill's 9-act play "The Strange Interlude," can't be called a brief interlude.

With Jimmy could not do a thing.

By Davison Obear.

The second annual St. Louis District indoor tennis tournament for men opens tonight at the Washington University Field House with an entry of 54 players in the singles. Dr. Frank Diekneite, tournament chairman, announced that the entry list in the men's doubles would be left open until 9 o'clock tonight. Twenty two teams have already entered.

Wray D. Brown, present singles champion, will defend his title and with Fred Josties as a partner will also defend the men's doubles honors. All of the first ten ranking players, except Theodore Drewes, are entered in the singles.

The four seeded players in the upper bracket of the draw are Wray Brown, Sidney Smith, Robert Norton and Karl Hodge. In the lower bracket the other seeded players are Fred Josties, Teddy Eggmann, Charles Barnes and Herbert Weinstock.

A glance at the draw indicates that Wray Brown and Robert Norton are likely semi-finalists in the upper half of the bracket. Norton, however, must travel at top speed because such players as Bill Bascom, Joe Werner and Karl Hodge are in his bracket.

In the lower bracket the likely semi-finalists are Fred Josties and Charles Barnes. Both Ed Serrano and Teddy Eggmann may give Josties some trouble while Barnes will find some competition from Vernon Tietjen and Herbert Weinstock in his section of the draw.

The first round pairings are as follows:

Edmund Serrano vs. Carl Price.
Reinhard Krause vs. Ray Epstein.
Walter Skrainka vs. Albert Withers.
Joseph Smith vs. B. A. Thompson.
Leon Neuman vs. E. J. Sullivan.
Edward Woo vs. Robert Semple.
Charles Barnes vs. Joyce Fortney.
Junior Boehmer vs. Peter Shukest.
Teddy Eggman cs. Henry Scherck.
Karl Kammann vs. R. N. Skrainka.
Robert Norton vs. J. H. Witherspoon.
William Bascom vs. Talbot Murphy.
Shields Hauhart vs. McNeill Smith.
Gus Serrano vs. Fred Bomhoff.

LEO LOMSKI TRAINS FOR LIGHT-HEAVY BOUT WITH JOE SEKYRA, FRIDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Leo Lomski of Aberdeen, Wash., and Joe Sekyra of Dayton, O., rival contenders for Tommy Loughran's light-heavyweight crown, will clash in a main 10-round attraction in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The Pacific Coast boxer came within an eyelash of scoring a knockout victory over Loughran in a title tiff several months ago and is campaigning for another opportunity to meet the champion. Lomski is training at Orangeburg, N. Y., while Sekyra is exercising at Pompon Lakes, N. J.

Supporting bouts include three eight-rounders. Sunny Jim Williams of California faces Benny Ross of Buffalo; Andy Divodi opposes Jimmy Finley, and Georgie (Kid) Lee of Boston checks up against Nick Teste of Troy, N. Y.

Mike McTigue, ring ancient and former world's light-heavyweight champion, tilts with Tony (Young) Marullo of New Orleans in a 10-round feature at the St. Nicholas arena tonight.

Why Clown Cigarettes are Made by Organized Labor

Number Thirteen of a series of statements

The Flesh and Blood of Little Children

The flesh and blood of children is not a necessary ingredient for any manufactured product. Child labor is an industrial crime. We are with the American Federation of Labor in its crusade against child labor.

Much has been done—but much remains to do. Exploitation of child life for private gain must not be permitted. We believe in this principle. That is just another reason why Clown Cigarettes are made by Organized Labor.

Old Sores and Ulcers Can Be Healed!

Many a person has succeeded in healing stubborn old sores and ulcers with applications of Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had utterly failed.

Here is a letter well worth reading and if you have a friend afflicted the same, why not send him this?

"About a year ago, I contracted 15 varicose ulcers on my arm which rapidly grew worse. They extended up my whole arm, one-half inch deep. I used several salves, but instead of making my arm better they made it worse. Blood poisoning nearly set in. Doctors told me I would have to have my arm amputated. Finally I read about your Peterson's Ointment in the newspapers and began to use it. After several boxes I began to see an improvement, and within a short time the ulcers were entirely closed up and healed. I am glad to say a good word for Peterson's Ointment and you can refer to me any time."—Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nearly every druggist recommends Peterson's Ointment and you can get a good-sized box for only 35 cents.

FORMER UTAH U. GIRL HELD WITH MURDER SUSPECT

Wife of Armed Whisky Runner With Him When Two Are Captured in Colorado Springs.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 26.—A former woman student at the Utah University, said by police to have been trained in the use of firearms by her husband and who admitted she knew he was engaged in liquor traffic, was held in jail with him here today in connection with investigation of a series of crimes, including a murder in California.

The pair, arrested here yesterday, were known as Mr. and Mrs. James Shannon. The woman was later identified as Grace Winkleman, 27, who on leaving the University of Utah, became society editor of a Salt Lake City newspaper. Shannon admitted he was known to coast police as Albert H. Adams, and, authorities said, confessed to several robberies.

They were seated in an automobile when arrested at the request of Salt Lake City police. Shannon was carrying a pistol and another pistol was found in the car, within reach of his companion.

When Shannon confessed to Chief of Police Hugh D. Harper that he had robbed a bank at Murray, Utah, of $4000 and also hda looted banks in Los Angeles, his wife declared she was amazed.

Wife Knew of Whisky Running.

She told Chief Harper that her husband had informed her he was running whisky to make a stake with which to buy a ranch where they could "settle down."

The woman insisted that her husband never had told her about any of the crimes to which he confessed. She declared she would stand by him to the limit."

"Search of a ranch near here, which the pair recently purchased, revealed a collection of firearms.

In describing the two and asking for the arrest, Salt Lake City officers warned authorities to take precautions in accosting them. Six detectives armed with shotguns were detailed to make the arrest and when confronted by this squad, the suspects offered no resistance.

In his confession, Adams named a "Joe Wysong," as one of a gang of robbers he said he led in the looting of the Citizens' National Bank of Los Angeles, last fall.

Robbed Same Bank Twice.

Asked to name the other places he had robbed, he declared he "could not remember all of them," but said that after robbing the Citizens' bank he went six blocks away and held up another bank, and two weeks later held up the Citizens' bank again.

In her cell Mrs. Adams said: "I am simply flabbergasted; it seems utterly incredible. Harry is the gentlest man I have ever known; I've never known him to lose his temper, and he is the kind that thinks every man is his friend. Of course, that vague charge of murder against him in California is all wrong. Harry simply could not kill a man. Of that I am certain.

"I think that after we get back to Salt Lake City I might be able to do something for Harry. I think I have some influence there. Of course, the charge that I'm his accomplice is utterly absurd. I didn't have the least suspicion that Harry had robbed banks, as the police say.

"Harry had to give up his work in Hollywood because of the injuries he received. I don't like to think of him breaking the law, but," with a shrug of her shoulders, "that wasn't very bad. Aside from the fact that I think Harry is the best man on earth, I'm not yet certain of what I can do, but I think that I have some influence."

Old Sores and Ulcers Can Be Healed!

Many a person has succeeded in healing stubborn old sores and ulcers with applications of Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had utterly failed.

Here is a letter well worth reading and if you have a friend afflicted the same, why not send him this?

"About a year ago, I contracted 11 varicose ulcers on my arm which rapidly grew worse. They extended up my whole arm, one-half inch deep. I used several salves, but instead of making my arm better they made it worse. Blood poisoning nearly set in. Doctors told me I would have to have my arm amputated. Finally I read about your Peterson's Ointment in the newspapers and began to use it. After several boxes I began to see an improvement, and within a short time the ulcers were entirely closed up and healed. I am glad to say a good word for Peterson's Ointment and you can refer to me any time."—Mr. Patrick O'Neill, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nearly every druggist recommends Peterson's Ointment and you can get a good-sized box for only 35 cents.

General Motors Ranges Up Nine Points to New Top of 199 as New Record for Day's Trade Is Set on Exchange.

Total stock sales, 4,176,200 shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Setting another new high record for a single day's trading at 4,176,200 shares, the stock market today witnessed a resumption of violent speculation for the advance under the leadership of General oMtors, which soared 9 points to a new high record at 199 and closed within a small fraction of the top. Spectacular gains of 5 to nearly 13 points took place in about a score of specialties, but these were interspersed with a sprinkling of rather substantial declines.

One of the most significant developments of the day to which the market apparently paid no heed was the stiffening in time money rates, the first advance in weeks. The short maturities were quoted at 4¾ per cent instead of 4½, and the longer dates at 4⅝ to 4¾ instead of 4½ to 4⅝. Call money held steady at 4½ per cent, with a plentiful supply of funds available at that figure.

The only other finanical or business development of importance during the day was the announcement that L. F. Loree's revised Southwestern merger plan had been approved by the directors of the Kansas City Southern and Missouri-Kansas-Texas roads, and was under consideration by the St. Louis-Southwestern, with indications of its early commission to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Meanwhile, the I. C. C. filed a second complaint charging violation of the antitrust law against the Missouri-Kansas-Texas in connection with acquisition of a large block of St. Louis-Southwestern stock.

Heavy Buying of G. M.

Heavy buying of General Motors was again reported by brokerage houses previously identified with the market operations of a well known trader, who also was reported to be active in Chrysler, which advanced nearly nine points to a new high record at 72. Other automotive issues rallied in sympathy. Hudson advanced 3⅜ points to within a fraction of the year's high and new peak prices were recorded by Hupp, Packard, Eectric Auto-Lite, Briggs and Murray Bodies, Eaton Axle and Reynolds Springs.

Merchandising issues moved forward under the leadership of Sears Roebuck, which advanced 12⅜ points to 110. Net gains of five points or more were recorded by American International Corporation, American Machine & Foundry, Du Pont, Lambert Company, Montgomery Ward and Radio.

Midland Steel products preferred and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe each broke about 8 points and net declines of 3 points or more were recorded by Adams Express, Calumet & Arizona, Case Threshing, Sloss-Sheffield and Victor Talking Machine convertible preferred.

Switch to Rails.

Extensive switching from the industrials to the rails also was repotted during the day. New ork Central and Pennsylvania established new high prices at 175⅝ and 70⅝ respectively. Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Wabash, New York & Harlem and Seaboard Air Line preferred advanced 2 points or so.

Except for a jump of 42 points in Japanese yen to a new high record at 47.63 cents, there were no changes of importance in the foreign market. Most of the European rates ruled a shade lower, sterling cables being quoted around $4.88 3-16.

HIGH GRADE BONDS AT BETTER PRICES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—High grade bonds again were accumulated at slightly better prices in today's market. Chief interest, however, centered in the public offering and prompt oversubscription of the $35,000,000 Republic of Colombia issue, again indicating a brisk demand for new material.

Many gilt-edged railway securities continued to sell readily around their high prices for the year, while there was further accumulation of the public utilities, Philadelphia Electric 4½s, Utah Light and Traction 5s, and North American Edison 5s were among the leaders in the latter group.

St. Paul 5s of 2000 were purchased in rather large amounts at their previous peak price of 68¼, and some of the seaboard mortgages again moved upward fractionally.

Kayser 5½s stood out in the convertible group. Andes Copper 7s also gained, but trading appeared less active than in recent sessions.

Some French industrials led the foreign group, Paris-Lyons Mediterranean 6s changing hands rapidly, while the Government issues at one time inclined to heaviness on profit-taking. The foreign list as a whole was irregular.

COTTON FUTURES HIGHER PARTLY ON RAIN REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Reports of showers or rain in the Eastern belt over Sunday and reiterated reports of a steady spot situation seemed responsible for advances in the cotton market today. All active months made new high ground for the movement, selling about 20 to 26 points above Saturday's closing quotations. There seemed a little more cotton for sale at this advance, but the mid-afternoon market was holding within seven or eight points of the best.

Futures closed steady 4 to 14 points higher. May 19.48 to 49; July 1936 to 37; Oct. 19.00 to .02; Dec. 1887 to .89; Jan. 1885. Spot quiet; middling 20.00.

The mark*et opened steady at a gain of 4 to 10 points, active months showing net advances of 10 to 16 points early on covering and trade or commission house buying promoted by reports of rains in the Eastern belt over Sunday, and the forecast for low temperatures in some parts of the Southwest.

May contracts sold up to 1950c and October to 19.06c, which carried the market back within 4 or 5 points of the belt levels touched on the advances last week. Business was comparatively quiet at the start but broadened out on the advance.

Liverpool reported hedging and Bombay selling had been absorbed by trade calling and local buying on the strength of Egyptian cotton in the market there.

The advance extended to 19.59c for May and 19.12c October, making new high ground for the movement. Some stop orders were uncovered as prices worked through the high levels of last week and after their execution on the net advance of about 15 to 25 points, the market became quiet. There was considerable realizing but prices held steady within 3 or 4 points of the best at midday.

INDUSTRIAL GROUP LEADER ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The business of establishing new high prices was resumed in the curb market today after the week-end interruption. Led by motors, chain stores and a few specialties, the industrial group moved skyward one to 28 points and held most of the gains. Utilities again were strong. Strong renewed buying of pipe lines cause a wide advance which lifted the oils a bit in sympathy. Trading was the broadest in market history, with dealings in 691 bond and stock issues, as compared with 621 on Dec. 28, 1927.

The motor shares apparently were strong in sympathy with motor stocks on the "Big Board." Auburn Auto advanced nine points to a new high at 138. Caterpillar Tractor, Bendix, Timken Detroit Axle, Detroit Motor Bus and Pines Winterfront "A" also were lifted to new high prices, while Marmon, Brockway, Wire Wheel, Yellow Taxi and a few others made smaller gains.

Safeway Stores again led the advance of the chain stores, soaring 28 points net to a new high at 485. American Solvents and Chemical par preferred and Monsanto Chemical Works both were at new highs, the latter rising 4 points. Gains of 1 to 8 points were recorded by Casein, Sheaffer Pen, Firestone Tire, Libby Owens, Ruberoid and Tubize Art Silk.

Initial trading brought heavy demand for Curtiss Aero Export, which closed at 32¼, after opening at 31 and rising to top at 32½. Canadian Marconi accounted for more than half the turnover but closed unchanged at 6⅝. Marconi of London made a small gain.

Buckeye Pipe Line moved up 4 points to a new high at 71. Vacuum, Humble and a few of the Standard Oils gained.

A few utilities, such as Central and Southwest utilities, Massachusetts Lighting and United Light and Power A rose 2 to 10 points to new high ground.

CORN FUTURES HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Surprise over a decrease of 1,388,000 bushels in the corn visible supply did much to bring about a rise in corn values today. The corn visible supply is now 44,154,000 bushels, against 48,330,000 bushels a year ago. Furthermore, stocks of corn at Eastern points are small and country offerings to arrive are light.

Corn closed strong, ¾c to 1⅛c net higher, wheat ⅛c to 1⅛c up, oats unchanged to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

Influenced by reports of prospective large abandonment of acreage in soft winter wheat sections, wheat values developed strength early today.

At noon wheat was ⅛ cent to ⅝ cent higher and corn up ⅝ cents to 1⅛ cents.

Corn also went upward in price, owing to unfavorable weather for corn movement. Opening at ½c decline to ⅝c advance, wheat later showed a rise all around. Corn started ⅛c off to ⅛c up and subsequently scored general gains. Oats followed corn. Provisions likewise became firmer.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The raw sugar market was firm and unchanged. Refiners were still inclined to hold off and there appeared to be no interest in purchases by sugars, which were obtainable at $4.58 for Cuban duty paid, but buyers continued interested in shipment sugars and sales were reported of 14,000 bags of Philippines for May-June shipment to an outport refiner at $4.63, and 21,000 bags for May-June shipment to an operator at $4.60.

The raw sugar futures market was not very active but the undertone was steady, influenced by the firmness of the spot market and more favorable advices from abroad. The market opened unchanged to 2 points higher with some of the active positions gaining another point on covering and commission house buying, but Cuban interests sold on the upturn and the advance was checked, with the market at midday net unchanged to 2 points higher.

In refined sugar a fair withdrawal demand was reported, but new business was light and supplied mostly through second hands. Refiners' prices were unchanged at $5.80 to $5.85.

Sugar futures closed steady. Approximate sales 38,000 tons. May $2.78; July $2.88; Sept. $2.97; Dec. $3.03; March $2.83.

...N FUTURES HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Surprise over a decrease of 1,388,000 bushels in the corn visible supply did much to bring about a rise in corn values today. The corn visible supply is now 44,154,000 bushels, against 48,330,000 bushels a year ago. Furthermore, stocks of corn at Eastern points are small and country offerings have been light.

Corn closed strong, ⅝c to 1⅝c net higher, wheat ¼c to 1⅜c up, oats unchanged to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

Influenced by reports of prospective abandonment of acreage in soft winter wheat sections, wheat values developed strength early today.

At noon wheat was ⅛ cent to ⅞ cent higher and corn up ⅝ cents to 1⅛.

Corn also went upward in price, owing to unfavorable weather for corn movement. Opening at ½c decline to ⅝c advance, wheat later showed a rise all around. Corn started ⅜c off to ¼c up and subsequently scored general gains. Oats followed corn. Provisions likewise became firmer.

Take Care of Your Kidneys!

Colds and Chills Throw Heavy Burdens on the Kidneys.

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself always lame and stiff—tired and achy? Are you bothered with nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness! Then you should give some thought to your kidneys.

Colds and chills increase the poisons in the blood and bring extra work to the kidneys. When the kidneys act sluggishly waste impurities remain in the blood and cause many unpleasant symptoms.

Following winter's colds many users rely on Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Since 1885 they have been winning new friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

EAST ST. LOUIS WOMAN DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Eleven in Sedan Hurt When Car Overturns in Riverview Park.

Mrs. Fred Nester, 66 years old, of East St. Louis, died early yesterday of injuries suffered when knocked down Saturday night by an automobile while she was crossing the street near her home, 425 North Eighteenth street.

The driver of the machine, G. W. Egner of 4339 Olive street, was released on bond. He said Mrs. Nester stepped into the path of his car.

Mrs. Nester is survived by her husband, one son, a brother, three sisters and five grandchildren.

11 in Auto Injured When it Overturns.

Ten young men and women, riding in a five-passenger sedan, were injured, three of them seriously, when the machine overturned in a ditch beside Lookaway drive, in Riverview Park, yesterday. Norbert Knollman, a tuck pointer, 2209 North Market street, was driving the automobile, which had been rented from a "drive-it-yourself" company.

Knollman told police he lost control when he swerved to avoid collision with another machine. Those seriously injured are Miss Rose Kernebeck, 1505 Monroe street, who may lose the sight of her right eye, and Miss Margaret Scott, 1417 Cass avenue and Martin Czarnecki, 1315 Sullivan avenue, each of whom suffered internal injuries and lacerations.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kennedy, 4010 Delmar boulevard, and two young men friends who were riding in a Ford coupe were cut and bruised yesterday when the machine collided with a Park avenue car at Fourteenth and Olive streets. They were taken to City Hospital.

Lane Welch, 6 years old, 2505A Dodier street, suffered brain concussion when run down by an automobile as he attempted to cross at Twenty-fifth street and Sullivan avenue yesterday. The driver was arrested.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator from New York and Ex-Health Commissioner of New York City, is a recognised national authority on public health.

Dr. Copeland Says:

"Mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many cathartic compounds. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. In their effects upon the bowel and its lining membranes they are far less irritating. Indeed, many have qualities that make them soothing and healing. Sugar-coated pills are pleasant to take, which may add to their danger. They are no less habit-forming and drastic because they appeal to the taste."

Pluto Water, with its mineral content, flushes the bowels and washes away impurities. It is gentle, soothing, healing, non-habit-forming. Corrects constipation and restores normal bowel movements. Acts in 30 minutes to 2 hours.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Vistas of Magnificent Civic Center to Be Created in Memorial Plaza

The two vistas of the projected Memorial Plaza are by Hugh Ferriss, and the inset, showing the $1,500,000 Soldiers' Memorial Building, by the Memorial Plaza Commission. The upper view looks southwest from the Thirteenth and Chestnut corner of the memorial structure towards the Municipal Auditorium and the cascade at Fifteenth and Market. A night scene that will greet persons leaving the auditorium from the Market street steps is the lower picture, with the memorial in the center, flanked by suggested future public buildings and backed by the Missouri Pacific Building.

Living Rules Of Healthiest Girl Simple

MARIE ANTRIM of Kingman, Kan., who won the national health championship of the 4-H. clubs at the Chicago Congress, is only 16 years old, a typical farm beauty with the added distinction of having attained perfection in physical proportions and other qualifications that go with her championship.

Winning the health championship was not a thing that happened to her accidentally. It wasn't all merely because she inherited health and was lucky enough to retain it. She worked hard for the title of the perfect girl and was picked from among the girls of an organization that boasts 600,000 members.

But Marie's rules of life and conduct are not complicated. She worked hard, she admits, but it all seemed so natural to her—and so good to always be in trim.

"Correct posture, correct exercise and correct diet," was her brief summary, delivered as if anyone ought to know what was correct in these things.

The only exercises she takes are such as tend to teach you how to bear yourself, how to walk and the like.

In diet Marie has a simple rule. That is never to eat too much. She follows in her diet, which is not a strict, ironclad affair, the rules laid down by common knowledge and common sense.

Clothing? Modern in practically every way. Only extremely high heels are barred.

"I don't like flat heels," she confessed. "I wear a medium or Cuban type heel on my shoes."

Marie says she has never had any serious illness outside of a contagious disease. Never any illness arising from a physical weakness for the heritage of a healthy constitution was handed down to her by her farm parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Antrim.

Marie was asked if living in the country gave her the advantage over people living in the city in matters of health.

"I don't see why it should," she answered. "I don't see why you can't be healthy in the city as well as in the country if you take care of yourself."

Health to Marie is a treasured possession. Perhaps it is to her advantage that she prizes health so highly while she has it. Certainly it is why she is the national health champion for it made her keep in trim three years. Twice she won the health championship of her county, and twice she placed second in the State contest. The third year she swept through to her great national honors.

Her hair is brown and bobbed—she is too young to have worn her hair in any other way. Her eyes are of a gray-green color. She is 5 feet 5¼ inches in height.

Her weight?

"I weigh exactly what I should for my height," she said.

And it didn't seem to occur to her that everyone wouldn't know that 122 pounds is the correct weight for a 16-year-old girl who is 5 feet 5¼ inches tall.

Kitchen Kinks

The apples will not burst in baking if you prick the skin with a fork before putting them into the oven.

After peeling apples for pies, etc., boil the skins and cores about 20 minutes and strain, then use this apple liquid to cook the cereals in.

If you have no olive oil on hand when making salad dressing you will find melted butter a good substitute.

• • •

When you take the pies from the oven place them on a wire rack—the broilers will do—until cool and the chances are you will have nice, crispy crust instead of a soggy pie.

One housewife greases the griddle for the first lot of pancakes and after that she rubs the pan with a raw potato cut in half and she prevents all smoke.

Seen on 5th Avenue

Satins, of course, are very smart again. Of these, parchment and the yellow tans are most seen, after the black.

The three-quarter coat, generally worn with an ensemble, is a favorite for spring.

Gauntlet gloves are still the smartest for the tailored costume, although those with fancy cuffs are seen.

We are told that white stockings will be worn for summer sportwear. Not for two years have they been smart.

Not since two summers ago when purple was for so short a time the rage, has it been as popular as it is now. All shades, ranging through the mauves and the violets are seen, especially for dress and evening wear.

Hats with no brim whatever, but very closely fitting the head, are very smart. Many of these come far down over one eyebrow and are cut up suddenly in a decided V on the other side.

MAYONNAISE STANDARD TO BE DEFINED

A PUBLIC hearing relative to a definition and standard for mayonnaise, mayonnaise dressing, mayonnaise salad dressing, will be held by the Food Standards Committee at the Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, 216 Thirteenth street, S. W., Washington, D. C., at 10:00 a. m. April 17.

The committee will be glad to receive comments upon the proposed definition and standard on which criticism was previously invited, as follows:

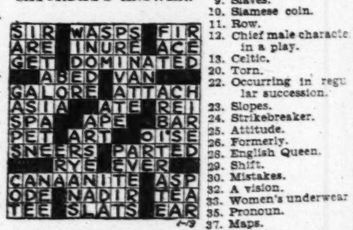

"Mayonnaise, mayonnaise dressing, mayonnaise salad dressing, is the clean, sound, emulsified product composed of edible vegetable oil, egg yolk or whole egg, a vinegar and (or) lemon juice, with or without one or more of the following: Salt, other condiments, sugar, edible stabilizing material. In its preparation are used not less than 60 per cent of vegetable oil, and not less than 6 per cent of fresh egg yolk free from white, or the equivalent thereof in egg yolk solids contained in commercial egg yolk, dried egg, dried egg yolk, or whole eggs. In the finished product the sum of the percentages of vegetable oil and fresh egg yolk free from white is not less than 78; and the quantity of any stabilizing material used does not exceed 0.5 per cent."

All interested parties will be given an opportunity to present their views as to what should constitute a proper definition and standard for mayonnaise, and the reasons therefor. Those unable to attend the hearing in person may submit their views in writing any time before or during the hearing.

FLOWERS THAT DO NOT FADE

By Gayne Torrey.

YOU may resist and resist and resist, but I have a presentiment that you'll eventually succumb to the wiles of the decorative artificial flower—for steam heat is death to cut flowers, and these new everlasting ones are truly beautiful. And they are done in so many materials that you may choose your effect—formal, bizarre, opulent, delicate or richly realistic.

It is no longer a matter of sticking a bunch of artificial roses in a jar or of having a single spray in a little vase. If you want to lighten a dark corner you may choose a wall basket of light wrought iron and have swaying from it long strands of exquisite petunias in amethysts and pinks and purples and reds. Or you may prefer a light green pottery basket with sprays of cheerful Dorothy Perkins with tendrils of foliage. Or you may like still better an ivory colored pottery Italian holder from which shower sprays of those most fairy-tale-ish of all garden blossoms—bleeding heart.

Mignonette with its soft grays and greens and its dusty foliage is lovely in a pottery vase of subdued color, and nasturtiums also used in this way—that is, in a mass by themselves—are effective as a spot of color in a sombre library or living room.

For softer-toned interiors there are things like tiny bluebells and heather and pinky apple blossom.

As an occupation for a bitter, blustery mid-winter day, I can think of nothing more engaging than to lose one's self in a riot of these decorative flowers and choose an old-fashioned bouquet. Practically all the flowers you might choose in mid-summer are here, and you can either make a small old colonial nosegay for your colonial guest room, or gather a big bunch of garden flowers for your chintz-hung living room.

THE FIRST LADY OF GEORGIA

SINCE Mrs. L. G. Hardman became the first lady of Georgia, there has been more entertaining in the Governor's mansion than in many a year.

Regardless of the prominence of dinner guests or the formality of the occasion, there is no "second table" at the mansion for the Hardman children.

"The home," Mrs. Hardman says, "is a place where everyone should be happy and comfortable. I look upon the home as the center of civilization. Parents should give their children the opportunity of knowing their visitors as well as their parents. Another thing; no boy or girl likes to stay at home when the parents are away.

Dr. Hardman, a physician and Georgia's first millionaire Governor, and Mrs. Hardman have a son and three daughters. Mrs. Hardman is prominent in women's club and church affairs, but professes only a passive interest in politics.

WOMEN WILL TALK ISSUES AT MEETING

THE national issues of 1928 will supply subjects for pro and con discussion in a two-day public affairs conference of the New York League of Women Voters April 10 and 11.

Problems of foreign policy will occupy the first day with round table discussions, led by political experts. Such questions as popular control of foreign policy, this country's attitude toward arbitration treaties, disarmament agreements, the League of Nations, the World Court, the Latin-American countries and the rights and duties of a creditor nation will be discussed.

The second day will be devoted to domestic problems, with particular emphasis placed upon the question of prohibition. The round table discussion will include the possible courses of action in regard to prohibition enforcement, modification, nullification or repeal.

"No definite action will be taken on any of the questions, of course," said Mrs. Henry R. Hayes, chairman of the program committee. "We won't even arrive at any conclusions. Our hope is that the frank discussion of the facts in each case will help to clarify the situation and make a definite contribution to intelligent use of the franchise by women in 1928."

Judge, manicurist, musician—every one of us, regardless of occupation or position in life, may offend unknowingly

BODY ODOR rarely warns the offender

IF only we could tell every time we are guilty of body odor!

But we can't. Quick as we are to detect the faintest hint of odor in others—we rarely know when we offend.

No one is safe from body odor, says science. But once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it. Very often, even fastidious people allow body odor to ruin their business and social chances—without suspecting that they are guilty.

Why no one escapes body odor

We perspire continually. If we didn't, we'd die. And at this time of the year . . . when activities are mostly indoors, in warm stuffy rooms—body odor is more readily noticed than ever.

Even on coolest days, our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether we see it or not, is always odorous. And it spares no one. Men or women—rich or poor—all may offend unless they take precautions.

A simple safeguard

Yet it's easy to avoid body odor now. Just wash and bathe often with the delightful toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same mild and abundant antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

And what a wonderful effect Lifebuoy has on the skin. It keeps complexions soft and clear, and so fine-textured. Millions of enthusiastic users find Lifebuoy unsurpassed for every toilet purpose.

Body odor more noticeable at this time of the year—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coolest weather.

SPRING SUGGESTIONS For the AMATEUR GARDENER

USES FOR A COLD FRAME.

COLD frames serve such a great variety of garden uses that they are now a common adjunct to a garden. Almost everything in the garden can be raised in them and some people even put young chickens into them. The cold frame serves both as a starting plant for early plants as well as a storage plant and a winter garden.

The most frequent use, however, is for early seed sowing. Lettuce, cabbage and cauliflowers can be started for early transplanting. A row of radishes may be planted to be pulled direct from the frame. Pansies will bloom off and on all winter in a cold frame, and parsley may be cut as needed from it. Gladiolus may be started in a cold frame and left to bloom there for the earliest crop of stems to cut for the house. They can get a month's advance on outdoor planting under the friendly protection of the glass.

A cold frame is a safe and convenient storage for chrysanthemums after they have bloomed. The stolons that sprout from the main stem in the fall, even in the hardiest varieties, are often injured by winter weather. They come through in a cold frame unscathed. The handsome penstemons, which do not bloom the first year from seed except from a very early start, may be started and wintered in a frame. Wall flowers may be grown in the same way.

The handsome poppy anemones, with their gay blooms which have become so popular as florists' cutting material, may be grown in the home cold frame, starting plants from seed this spring. They will start blooming next year in March. Dahlias may be sprouted in pots starting in early April to be set out in permanent quarters when May sunshine makes the temperature suitable. Start a cold frame this year. You will never be without one either for vegetables or flowers.

Woman Runs Hotel For Capital Workers

MISS MARY A. LINDSLEY is in complete charge of a big city hotel. She is, perhaps, the only woman in such a position.

She is the manager of the Grace Dodge Hotel, which was built by the Y. W. C. A. in war time to meet the housing problems of women workers in Washington. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., first vice president of the national Y. W. C. A. and chairman of the hotel's board of directors, said recently the hotel has continued its operation "because it is a demonstration of a practical business success run with the highest ideals."

Miss Lindsley formerly was a hospital dietitian in New York and Chicago, and during the war she was a Red Cross nurse overseas.

OF 6404 themes on "My Best Teacher," written by pupils in schools of Cleveland, O., by assignment of the elementary supervisor, to determine what present-day school children like best in their teachers, 5118 mentioned traits of character, 3621 had to do with teaching ability, 1896 with discipline and 262 with personal appearance.

The statement that "she did not scold" was made by 555 pupils; and the teacher's participation in different school activities was mentioned by 603 pupils. High school students emphasized a sense of humor.

ELINOR GLYN TELLS HOW TO WIN A MAN

(Twenty-second Article)

By Elinor Glyn.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE LOWLY RISE.

HOW exceedingly pitiful are poor Jimmy and Janey when they pretend they belong to a much higher social grade than they really do! They try to impress you subtly, if they do not deliberately lie about it, and invariably some school friend from the home town turns up, or some weird combination of circumstances gives them away, and then their house of cards falls together.

That is why I said they were pitiful—because it shows such feeble intelligence ever to be ashamed of the status from which you have risen. You ought to be proud that you have had the ability to rise. That is greatly to your credit. The stupid girls who are ashamed to say they worked for their living, but want you to believe they come from idle society folk! The stupid young men, ashamed of poor honest Dad who toiled with his hands for them, and hardly knew the three "R's"!

And behind the backs of these foolish camouflagers their friends snicker and laugh. Unconsciously they arouse irritation, for the other workers who "knew him when"—feel resentment that he should be even temporarily gaining a false advantage which he does not deserve any more than the former comrades deserve it.

So girls and boys, if you are contemplating putting anything of this sort over—do pause and consider that it never succeeds for long—and your trouble will have been wasted. There is nothing so attractive as honest simplicity and it never puts you in a false position. Many of the greatest men in America are proud to own they rose from the lowly, and one society matron, universally honored and respected, is proud to tell of the time when she helped her mother to scrub the floors of their lodging house!

What you can be ashamed of, if you like, is having been born in a high family with tradition and position, and then to have sunk into the sewers by your own incompetence! Be ashamed of sinking—never of rising.

THE IMPORT

By AGNES.

PARIS.

IN no branch of fashion is there more scope for variety than in hats. Perhaps I might almost add it is the most important. Who has not seen a woman, charmingly dressed, spoil her whole effect by choosing the wrong hat, or even by wearing the right hat in the wrong way?

Your hat is important because it is the frame to your face. If your eyes need shading, let the brim of your hat cast becoming shadows. But I think many women exaggerate the necessity for brims. The natural line of a woman's head is beautiful. If her hat is molded onto her head, outlining its form as if it were fashioned by a sculptor, the edge curved in becoming lines, no brim is needed.

Look at the wonderful effects achieved by Orientals with their striking turbans! It is not because they have beautiful faces that the result is so remarkable. Of course, some of them are remarkably handsome. But all of them look magnificent in their national headdress. The same lines are becoming to Western women. What is important is to get a good line.

The Oriental Idea.

I am making turbans of silk jersey modeled on the Oriental idea. These are charming in light pastel shades for the Riviera. One in cream and a pale shade of pink has been sketched for reproduction on this page. You will see how closely it follows the lines of the head. Not a hair is allowed to escape. Yet these turbans are becoming to all types of women. Of course, the face must be made up with care, and the turban must be put on properly. The slant up the side, rather behind the left eye, is particularly attractive.

These turbans are my present fancy. Probably by the time this article appears in print I shall be making something else. Change is the life and soul of progress in millinery. I show new models every week. I much prefer this method to that of showing a large collection four times a year. The creative faculty needs exercise like every other muscle. When one of my models is a great success I am already tired of seeing it before half the chic women in Paris have come here to order it. I must always be launching something new.

If fashions depended on creative modistes we should have left uniformity behind long ago. New dressmakers have evolved a new line—something more evase — so women will look like flowers instead of broomsticks. The trend toward more feminine fashions was apparent in millinery two years ago. This has induced the dressmakers to follow suit. Women were tired of the eternal felt cloche. They welcomed the new little toques and hats that gave them individuality. But the new hats did not look well with the universal jumper and skirt. They obliged women to be dressed by the real creators of fashion, who make gowns and not uniforms. This has brought about a change in the whole realm of fashion, and I must say I am glad to see it.

The Broad Brim.

Every spring there is a new discussion as to whether broad-brimmed hats will be worn or not. Usually it is agreed that they will be worn, and the summer, in Europe at least, proving unpropitious, women have continued to wear small, neat hats. I think this was because broad-brimmed hats were always made so as to extinguish the entire face. They made a line out of proportion with the straight, narrow skirts. Now that skirts are showing a delightful fullness I think the broad-brimmed hat will return to favor. Not the extinguisher variety, however. I hope I have solved the problem by making broad-brimmed hats that are so cut as to disclose the forehead. You will find one among the sketches reproduced on this page. It casts a becoming shadow over the eyes and forms a frame to the face at the same time, disclosing the features so that one can recognize the wearer without stooping down to peep under the brim.

This has suggested another new form of hat. In fact, it is two hats in one—a close-fitting skullcap of jersey, worn with a felt hat over it, with the brim rolled up in front, disclosing the cap underneath slanting over the forehead. Another version, which you will find in the illustrations to this article, has the cap edged with tiny flowers. This is worn with one of the new wide-brimmed straw hats, cut, as I have explained above, well off the forehead so that the feature are disclosed.

Made on the Head.

The success of my feather toques has been flattering. But, I confess, I am tired of seeing copies of them everywhere. My passion for change has induced me to replace them by toques made of flowers. These are charming in pansies, in cornflowers and in all kinds of small flowers.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CHOOSING THE RIGHT KIND OF A HAT

A Woman Otherwise Perfectly Apparelled May Spoil Her Whole Effect By Wearing the Wrong One, Says Mme. Agnes.

When one of my models is a great success I am already tired of seeing it before all the chic women in Paris have come here to order it. I must always be launching something new.

If fashions depended on creative architects we should have left uniformity behind long ago. New dressmakers have evolved a new line—something more evasive — so women will look like flowers instead of broomsticks. The trend toward more feminine fashions is apparent in millinery two years ago. This has induced the dressmakers to follow suit. Women were tired of the eternal felt cloche. Close-fitting toque made of yellow pansies with purple centers proves that Mme. Agnes is right in thinking the brimless hat very becoming.

I am also making another kind of feather toque. This is fashioned of flues of glycerine ostrich feathers, tightly curled, so that the effect is that of a wig of little close curls, and it gives a remarkably pretty line to the head.

As women of all nations cherish the ambition of possessing a Paris hat, the main characteristic of this hat should be that it is becoming. Of course, the Parisienne always achieves this result, no matter which model she chooses, by having her hat made on her head. For her the hat bought "off the peg" simply does not exist. Her hat must be fitted, adapted and trimmed before a mirror so that she can view it from every angle. Nothing is left to chance. She gives it just as much time and trouble, and often as many fittings, as she would to the most elaborate gown in her wardrobe. Quite frankly, this is the only method by which you can be sure of getting a successful hat.

As it is not always possible, outside Paris, to find a modiste with experienced fitters who can make hats on the heads of their clients, it occurred to me this season that it would be interesting, as an experiment to invent hats that a woman can twist and turn and arrange to suit herself on her own head. These are made of fine silk straw, crocheted by hand, as flexible as jersey itself. They have narrow brims that can be turned up or down at will. The small crowns can be molded with the hand to the line of the head.

Concerning Mirrors

In these days of so many mirrors it is well to know a few facts concerning them.

Never hang a mirror where it faces a glare of light.

The back of the mirror should be so protected that no light or water could possibly enter.

When cleaning be very careful about using so much water that it trickles in under the frame. A semi-dry method of cleaning is preferable.

Hang the mirror where it adds to the size as well as the attractiveness of the room. A couple of well-hung mirrors can do wonders to the small living room.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

BOBBY PRETENDS NOT TO BELIEVE.

Some people always will pretend
And care not if they may offend.
—Peter Rabbit.

BOBBY COON had just caught a minnow. Peter Rabbit had watched him. Peter had sat a long time watching Bobby, and Bobby had sat a long time watching the minnows in the Laughing Brook. But now that Bobby had caught his fish Peter knew that he wouldn't interfere by showing himself. So Peter hopped into view and down to the edge of the Laughing Brook.

"Hello, Bobby Coon!" called Peter.

Bobby looked up. He had just swallowed the last of that little minnow and as he looked at Peter he was licking his lips. "Hello, Peter!" said Bobby good-naturedly, for having caught his fish he was feeling good-natured. "What brings you over here at this time of day?"

"I was looking for a friend of mine," replied Peter.

"And who might that friend be?" inquired Bobby.

"A fisherman," replied Peter, and grinned.

"Do you mean Billy Mink or Little Joe Otter?' inquired Bobby Coon, looking as innocent as if he didn't know all the time who it was Peter meant.

"Neither one," replied Peter. "I came looking for the one you are looking at."

Bobby grinned then, for he had happened to be looking at his own reflection in the Smiling Pool. "All right, Mr. Curiosity," said he. "What is it you want to know this time: If you came over here looking for me it wasn't just to see me."

"I want to know what you know about your cousins who live 'way down South," said Peter.

"Who says I have any cousins living away down South?" answered Bobby.

"Scrapper the Kingbird," replied Peter. "Scrapper says you have some cousins who look a good deal like you and that you have some who don't look a bit like you; and they all live down in that warm country where he spends the winter. Anyway, they are in some country that he goes to on his way to his winter home. He says that one of them has a long nose and a long tail and another has a very long tail and very long tongue. And he says they all belong to the Raccoon family. Is that true, Bobby Coon?"

Now, that was a hard question for Bobby. You see this was the first he had ever heard of those cousins. He didn't really dare say that Scrapper's story wasn't so, because it might turn out that it was so.

"Did you ever see a coon with a long nose?" he demanded of Peter.

Peter shook his head.

"If you met one with a long nose and a long tail you wouldn't believe it was a coon, would you?" persisted Bobby.

"I-I-I don't know," stammered Peter.

"Well, let me tell you this much," replied Bobby, "I never yet have seen a Raccoon without black bars on his face, rings on his tail and with a nose longer than my own. So I don't take much stock in what Scrapper the Kingbird says. It's a very easy matter to tell strange stories about places where you know your hearers never will go. I may have some relatives down there, but I doubt if I have any such looking relatives as you have told me about. Do you know what I think?"

"What?" demanded Peter.

"I think," replied Bobby, "that Scrapper the Kingbird has just been suffing you."

Woman Member of Agriculture Board

THE senior member of the Oklahoma Board of Agriculture is Mrs. Ferne King of Kingfisher.

Mrs. King was appointed five years ago by Gov. J. C. Walton and has remained on the board under the two Governors who followed him. She is said to be the only woman member of a state board of agriculture in the United States, but she believes that every such board should have at least one woman at its conferences "to bring up problems that men might overlook."

At her farm home Mrs. King attends personally to a large flock of turkeys, pure-bred chickens and a herd of sheep.

The total passenger traffic on the Atlantic in 1492 was 88 persons, but in 1926 east and westbound, it totaled over 1,100,000.

At the Cooking Class

By Nancy Dorris.

A REQUEST for Boston brown bread must be answered today or one of our faithful readers will be deep in disappointment. It seems she has discovered—in a can—baked beans that remind her of the Maine woods. And she wants brown bread to serve steaming hot with them.

The lumber camps of Maine were famous for these beans, it seems. Baked in an outdoor oven where for hours fragrant branches of pine burned to heat the clay sides these beans tasted deliciously of the sweet-sugar-cured pork, molasses and brown sugar. They had a woodsy flavor after their 24 hours in an iron pot in the hot, hot embers. Impossibly good they tasted even to the lumberjacks who had them two or three times a day. And now to us.

So, since our friend has the beans on her emergency shelf for a hearty luncheon or supper surprise, we should devote today to Boston brown bread.

One cup rye flour.
One cup granulated cornmeal.
One cup graham flour.
Teaspoon salt.
Three-fourths teaspoon soda.
Three-fourths cup molasses.
Two cups sour milk.

The recipe is from the well known Boston Cooking School Cook Book, that court of last resort for New England recipes. Carefully measured and put together the bread should come to the table in a scant four hours moist and dangerously tempting.

Well, let's make the brown bread. First, collect the working kit—sifter, measuring cup, mixing bowl, teaspoon, large spoon, steamer or large kettle of water and cover, well greased mould or several small baking powder cans and lids. The small moulds require only half the cooling time of the large one.

Sift into the mixing bowl the rye, graham flour and cornmeal with the salt and soda. Stir into these dry ingredients the molasses and sour milk, mixing well. Fill the well greased mould or the baking powder cans two-thirds full; adjust the covers and set in a steamer over hot water—the large mould will require three and one-half hours of cooking over a steady low flame and the small one to one and one-half hours.

And when the bread is done, slice it and serve with the delectable beans prepared as the lumber camps cooks did years and years ago. No finer luncheon special can be served than this old-time combination.

A DISH FOR TODAY

Savory Pork Chops.

ALLOW one pork chop per person. Trim them and with a sharp knife remove the bones. Lay the chops in a marinade made of a chopped onion, a small bud of garlic, 3 cloves, ½ a bay leaf, salt, pepper, the juice of a large lemon, a saltspoonful of curry powder and a tablespoonful of taragon vinegar, turn the chops often and let stand for half an hour. Drain and lay the chops in a buttered baking pan, dot with little lumps of butter and sprinkle with grated cheese. Strain the marinade, add a cupful of water and thicken with butter and flour mixed to a paste and, when thickened, add a half teaspoonful of sugar. Turn into a hot sauce boat. Bake the chops in a medium oven a delicate brown. Serve on a hot dish garnished with baked sweet potatoes and sprays of parsley. Use the sauce over the chops.

THE STORY SO FAR.

Molly Anderson goes to work in the office where her fiance, Bob Brownell, is a salesman. Mr. Frazier, head of the office, objects to his men becoming engaged, but nevertheless he makes Molly his personal secretary. A man nicknamed "Sticko" is office manager, and he barely speaks to Molly.

CHAPTER VII.

MOLLY asked her fiance about the office manager that night. She had gone with Bob to dinner at a little restaurant, and now they were sitting over their coffee, talking busily.

"I don't see much of him," said Brownell, after a moment's thought. "He treats me all right."

"Why do the girls call him 'Sticko'?"

Brownell grinned. "Because they say he's sort of sticky. Stands close when he talks to 'em, and puts his hand on their shoulder when he leans over to look at anything on the desk." His eyes opened wider. "Don't let him do that to you, Molly!"

"Watch me!" There was measureless contempt in her tone. "I hate that kind of a man. But why do you suppose he hates me?"

"I don't suppose he does," said Brownell. "That's just girls' chatter. He hadn't been introduced, and I judge he simply didn't want to talk."

Molly was not satisfied with this theory. "He hates me," she insisted.

She returned to the subject again as they were leaving the motion picture theater to which he took her after dinner. "Does Mr. Sticko hire the other stenographers?" she asked.

"'Mr. Sticko,'" he repeated. "That'd tickle the gang in the office. They just call him 'Sticko'—except to his face. Yes, he hires all the office help except the boss' secretary. That's how Frazier happened to give you the job you've got. He wanted you to come, and didn't want to butt into Sticko's department, so he canned his secretary and put you in the place."

"Mr. Frazier's an old dear," said Molly. "But I can't see why he has such a mean man as Sticko around the office."

Unexpectedly, it was her employer himself who next brought up the question.

She was settling herself beside his desk for the first hour's dictation on the following morning when the office manager came in, laid a stack of papers on Mr. Frazier's desk and departed without a word.

"Met him?" asked the boss, as the door closed.

"Yes," said Molly, carefully avoiding any shade of expression in her voice.

"You won't like him," the man went on. "None of the women do who work here. Incidentally, he doesn't like you."

Molly looked up quickly. The boss was grinning.

"He came in last night and gave me a considerable list of errors you made yesterday," he told her.

"What errors did I make?" The girl leaned forward, in anxiety.

"None worth mentioning. When they are worth mentioning, I'll tell you." He swung around in his chair, rummaged in a drawer of his desk, and drew forth a disreputable and broken cigar, which he lighted with some difficulty. A twinkle of amusement remained in his eye as he continued. "The girls who work here call him 'Sticko.' If I'd fire him, they'd club together and buy me a bouquet."

He was silent for a time, drawing on the battered cigar. Then he went on, speaking soberly now. "I suppose I got you into trouble with him by hiring you the way I did. He's jealous of his authority—likes to hire all the typists and accountants and folks like that. It's his ambition to rise some day to a place where he can hire the salesmen, too. But he'll never get that far."

Mr. Frazier examined his cigar critically, and threw it into a corner, where the loose wrapper glowed and smouldered in each separate leaf.

"He's an old fuddy-duddy. His wife's in politics." Molly's employer said this as if it explained the whole problem of Sticko.

"Is he the reason you don't want your men to marry?" the girl asked.

"One of the reasons. They are about 40 in the concern. You see, as soon as a couple is married a contest begins to see who's boss. At least, the wife starts out to learn if she can be boss. If she wins, she loses interest in him. Women despise weak men. Well, our friend in the other office got licked. His wife won. So she had to find something interesting to do, and went out speechmaking." Mr. Frazier laughed again. "He gets even by hovering around the office girls, but he's harmless, of course. He's been henpecked so much that he wants somebody to flirt with him, to sooth his injured vanity, but for some reason girls won't flirt with bald, fat, poor men who are past 50."

"I don't think I'd keep a man like that in the office, if I were running it," announced Molly, with decision.

"Thanks for the advice. And when you marry, the first thing you'll do is to try to turn your husband into a 'man like that.' Ready?"

He began to dictate, and they did not return to the subject of the office manager again that day.

Molly had moved back into Mrs. Potter's flat, on the evening of her reunion with Brownell. True to her promise, the landlady had attached new curtains to the window frames, and furthermore had added a rug to the furnishings of the room.

Delighted with these improvements, Molly set about a further beautifying of the place.

"I never thought of it before," she told Brownell, that night, "but there's no reason why we shouldn't start buying things for our own house now. We can do an awful lot, before we get married."

"Wat'll we buy?" The youth perched himself on the edge of Molly's trunk.

"Just look." She opened a bundle that she had carried home from the office. "I bought these at noon instead of going to lunch. Aren't they sweet?" She shook out before him a half dozen lengths of linen.

"What are they? Towels?" he inquired.

"No, silly! You don't make towels out of stuff like this. They're to put on tables and dressers."

"But we haven't any tables and dressers," he objected.

"We will have, though. I can embroider these in the evenings, and when they're done, you can have some for your room and I'll keep the rest of them here. Won't they be nice?"

"I don't want any doilies," said he.

Molly showed vexation. "These aren't doilies. They are table covers, and they're going to be pretty."

"They'd have a darned short life in the place where I live," Brownell said. "The gang'd use them to wipe glasses with, or to polish their shoes. They wouldn't be good for dishrags in a month."

"I do believe that men live like pigs," said Molly, rolling up her linen. "Haven't you any cover to your dresser? What do you put on your tables?"

"Don't put anything on," he said. "The tops are polished, and they look nice, except where there are rings from gin bottles and glasses."

The girl's lips were compressed as she stowed the linen in her suitcase. "There won't be any gin bottles in our house, marking up the furniture!"

"We'll have to have some," said he. "The boys'll expect a cocktail when they come over."

"They can't have any cocktails." Molly stamped her foot.

"But Mollykins—I'm afraid they won't come if we don't act hospitable," he urged. "I won't take any gin, of course, but the boys'll be sore if we don't give 'em something to drink."

"Then let 'em stay away." The girl spoke sharply, her voice a little higher than Brownell ever had heard it before.

He blinked at her in bewilderment, and then got to his feet. "Guess I'd better run along," he said.

"All right." She was rummaging in a dresser drawer. "Just as you like."

She submitted to his kiss, turning a corner of her cheek to his lips, however, instead of her mouth.

After he was gone she bustled around the room for a time, and then suddenly collapsed upon the couch, her head upon her folded arms, face down. A minute later Brownell returned and cautiously opened the door.

"Dearest!" he cried, as he saw the huddled body. "What's wrong?" He ran to her and lifted her high enough to tuck the brown head beneath his chin. "Did I do anything mean?" he asked. "What is it, Mollykins?"

"I was mad because you didn't like my table covers," she said, her face still concealed in his vest.

"I did like 'em," he said earnestly. "I thought they were nice. But it'd be wicked to take 'em over to my place and have 'em spoiled. Don't you think so?"

She nodded, moving his chin back and forth by the pressure of her forehead. "Bobsie, we won't have to have 'em spoiled in our house, will we? The boys don't have to come and spoil 'em, do they?"

"Why, no," he said. "I'd rather keep everybody away than make you cry." He patted her cheek as he went on. "The reason I came back was because I was afraid I'd hurt your feelings, some way. And besides, I had an idea. Since we're going to buy things in advance, what's the matter with this?"

He worked his arm free so he could dip a hand into his pocket, from which he produced a circular, highly illustrated.

"Look, Mollykins!" he said, shaking the pages open before her.

When a Man Goes in for Washing Dishes

"THE best housekeeper I ever had," said a young married woman the other day, "was a man.

"It was in a little village down in Maine where we lived for two years. Maids were scarce and I prevailed upon Joe to help me in the house. Joe had been in the Navy, and later had had his own fishing schooner.

"I have never known a woman who was so scrupulously neat as Joe. The way he washed dishes, for instance, was a lesson in efficiency.

"First he scraped and piled them all according to size. He used Lux for the suds in the dishpan, because, he said, Lux made better suds in half the time of anything else, also because Lux was easier on his hands.

"Sailors, he said, use Lux because their hands are often badly chapped and broken and Lux is soothing.

"Now I myself follow Joe's plan in doing dishes, and I always use Lux. The difference it has made in the looks of my hands is really amazing. Lux keeps them so white and smooth, that I've passed on the hint to my friends."

Because Lux contains none of the harmful alkali found in many household soaps, whether flakes, chips or cakes, it never irritates even the most sensitive skin, never dries the delicate oils of the hands.

And the big package of Lux washes 6 weeks' dishes.

Peter Minuit who purchased the whole island of Manhattan from Indians for beads worth approximately $24, was the first successful Governor of the Dutch Colony in New York.

The settlement of Delaware came about through dishonesty in the fur trade which caused the dismissal of Minuit from the Dutch West India Company. He went to Sweden and offered his services to establish a colony. He was granted rights to represent Sweden and established a settlement near the present site of Wilmington, Del., which he named Fort Christiana. The land in question was claimed by the Dutch West India Company, but at length Minuit was able to secure rights from the Indians and to engage in fur trade to such an extent that the resources of the Dutch West India Company were seriously impaired.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

J. S. H.—The Plumber's Laborers Local is listed in telephone directory, and probably has the address of the secretary of Master Plumbers.

STUDENT. — Exemptions are stated on the blank income tax returns, which makes it unnecessary to publish them here. The time for making State returns is passed for the year, but you would avoid some penalties by reading the blanks and acting accordingly.

M. W. K.—The Immigration Office, Custom House, might advise you how to trace the name of the ship you arrived in. Also all the important steamship lines have offices or agents in St. Louis who might furnish the names of ships plying between certain ports if you have the date.

MRS. J. W. S.—It may happen that a house is built on land through which there is a natural drain of water, making the walls of a basement damp at times regardless of what is done to the wall inside. An excavation of a few feet, with retaining wall, which keeps the earth from direct contact with the walls, has been made in such cases. Consult an architect or engineer.

MISS J. G.—Each state constitution contains a Bill of Rights, placing restrictions upon the State Legislature just as the Bill of Rights in the Constitution of the United States places restrictions on Congress. Such a bill names the different things which must not be infringed on even by act of legislature such as, guarantee of trial by jury, religious freedom, freedom of press, etc.

G. H.—Probably there are no cities in the United States which do not collect a property tax from citizens, though there might be some isolated cases. In compiling "Statistics of the Chief Cities in the United States," see World Almanac, page 429, questionnaires were sent to authorities of all cities having over 30,000 inhabitants. Where no answer was received, Bureau of the Census figures of 1925 were used, and you may see this compilation at the public library or purchase a World Almanac. How cities and states raise revenue is an economic question and you will find books on the subject at the public library.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

INTERESTED.—Consult a lawyer about suit filed by Court for costs.

A READER.—A girl under the age of 18 does require consent of parents, to obtain marriage license in Illinois.

H. R. H.—File an affidavit with the Secretary of State, but you should consult a lawyer in dissolving a corporation.

J. W.—Write to the Clerk of the Court which granted the divorce decree for a certified copy. It can't be said here what the charge would be, but it would not be very much.

E. W. M.—Section 10672, as amended in 1925, regarding poll tax in Missouri, is long for publication, but will be held for you a few days if you wish to send stamped, addressed envelope. You may read it in some office in your town.

ROY E. G.—If there is more than one remainderman and the property cannot be divided in kind, the life tenant could be compelled to accept cash. If it can be divided in kind, it would be partitioned subject to his life estate.

MRS. J. D. M.—In Missouri marriges between first cousins are illegal and void. For any official to knowingly issue license for such a marriage is a misdemeanor. The law is based on what most people regard as sound public policy. (2) You can file a replevin suit for the piano.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

R. B. F.—Anything in the way of self or home treatment for the ears is not only unavailing but likely to do more harm than good. You should consult some specialist, and if you wish names send stamped, addressed envelope, repeating the reason.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.—Muriatic acid, 2 parts; quinine, 12 parts; purified lard, 200 parts. Mix and apply at bedtime, washing off in the morning with hot water and castile soap. Apply three nights successively, then skip three or four nights, and if need be repeat as before.

RUTH.—Touching the back of the tongue with a mild solution of the nitrate of silver (3 grains to an ounce of water) two or three times daily is the recommendation made previously in this column to help in overcoming the cigarette habit. This allays the taste and relish until abstinence overcomes any desire.

A. O. S.—Emphysema is a condition of the lungs in which the air cells and smaller bronchial tubes are over-distended and lacking in elasticity and vitality. Whether or not it is serious depends on causes, and extent of condition. Some things which may add to your comfort may be outlined if you wish to send stamped, addressed envelope for this reply, referring to A. O. S.

BROWN EYES.—Answer to your question will be held a few days for stamped, addressed envelope you may wish to send for suggestions as the necessary hygiene in your case. You should know if the condition is a specific disease and this can only be found out by microscopic examination.

RUTH.—Aristol, 2 drachms; white vaseline, 30 drachms; essence of peppermint, 3 drachms; mix, rub the leg with this every night with gentle massage, and then cover with compresses wet with the following mixture: Alum, 2 drachms; acetate of lead, 30 drachms; distilled water, 400 drachms. Cover the compresses (moist cloths) with oiled silk and let remain in place during the night. If possible wear an elastic stocking or properly adjusted elastic bandage during the day. Answer as to cigarette habit will be published separately.

STOCKS RECOVER EARLY LOSSES IN RECORD SELLING

DAY'S TOTAL SALES ARE 4,762,000 SHARES

General Motors Dropped $18 in First Few Hours of Trading Then Rallies to $189.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 27.—All trading records on the New York Stock Exchange were broken today in one of the most sensational reversals of price movement in Wall Street's history. Prices crashed $5 to nearly $20 a share in the first half hour of trading and then rallied in spectacular fashion. Most of the early losses were substantially reduced or wiped out, and, in many cases, converted into material gains. Total sales were 4,762,400 shares, as compared with the record of 4,286,000 shares established yesterday.

Radio Corporation common provided the greatest thrill of the day. Slumping from $157.50 to $146.25 in the opening outburst of selling, the stock subsequently rallied to a new high level for all time at $169.50, closing at $168.75 for a net gain of $12.75.

General Motors, which had plunged from $198 to $130, snapped back to $190.50, or $7.25 below yesterday's final price. New York Central climbed more than a share to a new high record at $170 as rumors of higher dividends were circulated around the street. General Electric, which had opened with a block of 10,000 shares at $140.25 and then dipped below that level, pushed forward to another new high record at $149.25.

A stupendous demand for Sinclair Oil, which advanced nearly a share to a new high record of $36.50, was accompanied by unconfirmed reports of buying for control by Standard Oil interests. Both the Atlantic Refining Co. were eminently mentioned as the ultimate owner of the Sinclair properties.

Curiously, today's dramatic reaction came within a few minutes of the opening outburst of bullish enthusiasm in several motor and merchandising issues which established new high records on initial sales. This group, which included Chrysler, Packard and Studebaker motors, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, declined with the rest of the market as the swollen volume of selling orders poured in on the floor from all sections of the United States and the leading capitals of Europe.

The resumption of bullish operations in the railroad shares which had so participated extensively in the recent upswing had a steadying influence on the general market. The bond market developed a reactionary tone, with selling largely inspired by the stiffening in the money rates. Some of the convertible liens declined sharply in sympathy with the break in stock prices.

Prices on the New York curb market also broke sharply, with trading at a record breaking pace.
